Chums Lose Lives Wading in Creek; 22 Are Injured In Holiday Traffic

Holiday and ideal weather yesterday brought death to four Washingtonians.

Two children were drowned at Chesapeake Beach, Md., and a third was injured fatally in a swimming pool accident here. A woman was killed near Galesville, Md., in a three-car collision, in which seven others were hurt.

Twenty-two others were injured in traffic mishaps, and two by firecrackers.

The dead are:

Agnes Healey, 10, of 1832 A street southeast.

Grace Postman, 11, of 1836 A street southeast.

Mrs. Adelaide Vincent, 36, 1121 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

The Healey and Postman girls were drowned in Fishing Creek, also known as the Old Canal, at Chesapeake Beach, after leaving a family picnic group with 20 cents to buy "something good," according to Agnes' mother, Mrs. Wilbur Healey.

Try to Wade Creek

At about 3 p. m. Agnes and Grace, chums for the last seven years, left the party, which included Agnes' parents, her uncle, John Healey; her brother, Wilbur, jr., 9, and her sister, Betty, 5, and started for Seaside to buy some sweets for the children. Fishing Creek divides Seaside from Chesapeake Beach. Although there were no witnesses to the drowning, Mrs. Healey said she believed the children, neither of whom could swim, had attempted to wade the creek, not realizing that the water was more than 6 feet deep.

AGNES

The tragedy came to light when Frank Patalena, of 1856 G street northeast, fishing in the creek, hooked one of the girls' bathing suits. He called for help, and the second girl's body was found floating nearby.

Firemen from North Chesapeake Beach, a mile away, raced to the scene and nine men under direction of Capt. Linwood F. Lambdis, took turns applying artificial respiration in an attempt to save the children. Pulmotors were rushed to the beach from Upper Marlboro and Bladensburg. Resuscitation efforts were given up after two hours.

When the children failed to show up after being away from the party 30 minutes, Agnes' father, a painting contractor, went to look for them. Mrs. Healey soon took up the search when her husband did not return, and encountered a large crowd surrounding the life-saving crews. She fainted on learning the identity of the children.

4 Passengers Hurt

The two little girls, Mrs. Healey said, lived in the same block, played together, and even took their music lessons together. Agnes was to have entered the third grade at Holy Comforter School; Grace was going into the sixth grade at Bryant school, and only last week her father, William Postman, a bakery manager, had presented the child with a piano.

The Johnson boy, colored, died when his skull was fractured on the bottom of the swimming pool at Banneker Recreation Center, Georgia avenue and Harvard place northwest. Attendants at the pool said the youth had dived into the water at the shallow end.

Mrs. Vincent suffered a broken neck and fractured skull early yesterday in a three-car crash near Galesville. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital in Annapolis. Her husband, F. H. Vincent, driver of their car, was severely hurt.

Drivers of the other two autos, police said, were Vernon E. Hill

New Jersey Man Flies 233 Miles in Glider

Elmira, N. Y., July 2 (AP).—Chet Decker, of Glenrock, N. J., sailed his German sailplane, Minimoa, to a new unofficial American distance record today when he landed at Atlantic City, N. J.

Decker's flight of 233 miles exceeded yesterday's of Lieut. Robert M. Stanley, naval aviation cadet, from here to Long Island, by 43 miles.

Police to Show No Leniency For Firecrackers in Capital

Better be safe and sane than sorry

Toll From Pyrotechnics, Though Less From That of Holiday Traffic, Held Just as Cruel Because Easily Avoidable

Violent death will come today and tomorrow, if history repeats itself, to at least four young Americans, victims of fireworks that exploded faster or nearer than someone expected. In the District 30 or more children will be treated for painful burns from fireworks.

These figures are an average of the Fouth of July week-end toll in this city and Nation in the last three years.

Blindness, powder burns and lockjaw are the common penalties when children play with explosives. The days when giant "cannon-crackers" mangled dozens of young limbs are gone, but internes at any District hospital can tell you the campaign for a "safe and sane Fourth" is not over.

1936 Toll, 60 Injured

Last year 15 youngsters in Washington and nearby areas received emergency treatment after injury by fireworks. The year before there were 42. Sixty were injured, one fatally, in 1936.

The toll of fireworks, though less tragic than that of holiday traffic, appears almost as cruel to safety officials because they believe it could be wiped out easily.

With a District regulation forbidding sale or private use of any fireworks containing explosives—and a spectacular public fireworks display given every Fourth of July night—there has been an encouraging reduction in the number of casualties since 1935.

Yesterday, however, calls were going over police radios at the rate of one every ten minutes, directing squad cars to the sound of firecrackers. And the Fourth was still two days away. Nearly 300 police have been assigned to special duty tonight and tomorrow morning.

Police Show No Leniency

A last plea to the boys and girls of Washington was made yesterday by Commissioner Hazen. "This useless loss of life and limb could be ended," he said, "if everyone of you would obey the simple law governing the use of fireworks."

To parents the Commissioner addressed an appeal to take their families to the public display at the Washington Monument Grounds "and forget all about giving the children their own fireworks."

The Commissioner's statement was re-enforced with a warning from Maj. Ernest W. Brown, who said his force has been instructed to show no leniency to violators of the fireworks regulation. He requested any citizen noting a violation to make an immediate report to the Police Department.

Bromides Calm Dogs

Chicago, July 2 (AP).—A veterinarian prescribed bromide tablets today for dogs with firecracker jitters.

"The noise of exploding firecrackers gives many dogs fits and convulsions," said Dr. W. A. Young, managing director of the anticruelty society. "Any bromide or sedative will help them to overcome the jitters."

Holiday Takes 150,000 Out Of Washington

Seaside, Mountains And Fair Have Large Capital Colonies

Washington was a wallflower yesterday. While tourists stayed away from the city in great numbers, an estimated 150,000 of the Capital's own sons and daughters had gotten as far away as a three-and-a-half day holiday allows.

A dozen "little Washingtons" flourished at seaside and mountain resorts in Maryland and Virginia. A large District contingent inspected Grover Whalen's World of Tomorrow, on Flushing Meadows, N. Y.

District residents who stayed at home enjoyed a day of unbroken sunshine, with temperature rising from 64 at 6 a. m. to 85 at 4 p. m. Today's forecast is for fair skies and continued warmth, tempered by gentle southeast winds.

The Capital is expected to regain some of its old popularity tomorrow when hundreds of travelers return early from a week-end of almost British proportions to swell the crowd at the annual fireworks display on the Washington Monument grounds.

Marine bandsmen will strike up martial airs at 7:15 p. m., as spectators fill 10,000 reserve seats. Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, Majority Leader, is to give the principal address, after the Declaration of Independence is read by Senator George L. Radcliffe

$200 Fireworks Go Up in Smoke At Burtonsville

An unscheduled but dazzling fireworks display yesterday entertained Burtonsville, Md., when pinwheels, Roman candles and firecrackers in a stand operated by John T. Athey went up in $200 worth of smoke.

Athey told Sandy Spring volunteer firemen, who arrived after the loud and colorful blaze had consumed his entire stock, that he believed a small boy had thrown a match into the stand.

The only salesman at the stand was uninjured.

Blast Rocks Portland, Oreg.; Meteor 'Big as Moon' Blamed

By the Associated Press.

Portland, Oreg., July 2.—A mysterious explosion, which observers believed was caused by a huge meteor, rocked Portland and surrounding territory shortly before 8 a. m. (P. S. T.) today.

Scores of persons reported they looked skyward in time to see a vast burst of smoke and spurting flame. The shock was felt over a 40-mile radius.

The terrific explosion shook buildings, rattled dishes and window panes and awakened thousands of sleepers. It was followed by a series of lesser explosions. Police reported two cracks in the wall of a grocery store.

Local reports confirmed the statement of Ford Hand, druggist, that he saw a meteor which appeared "big as the moon," over Eugene, 100 miles south of here, at 7:35 a. m.

No fragments were found to support the meteor theory. Moreover, a check of the University of Washington seismograph at Seattle and delicate instruments in the telephone company here showed there was no earthquake or other ground shock.

J. Hugh Pruett, University of Oregon astronomer to whom Hand reported the meteor, said the absence of sound indicates it was more than 50 miles high when it passed over Eugene. Hand said it was clearly visible in the bright sunlight.

Eye-witnesses said the burst of smoke and flame appeared about 3,000 feet in the air.

L. S. U. Plane Hops to Get Dr. Smith

Wife to Be Returned By Auto to Appease Wrangling State And Local Police

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baton Rouge, La., July 2.—Rivalry between State and local police as to who should have the honor of bringing back from Canada the indicted former president of Louisiana State University, Dr. James Monroe Smith and Mrs. Smith, who surrendered in Brockville, Ontario, last night, resulted here today in the decision to bring them back separately.

They would both have been brought back here tomorrow by plane, it was explained at the offices of Sheriff N. H. de Bretton, but when one representative of the State police and one of the local police were accorded seats in the smart four-seater, belonging to Louisiana State University, assigned to fly to Canada, and the necessary place at the controls had been reserved for the pilot, there was room for only one prisoner.

Governor Settles Wrangle

The decision to settle the conflict between the State and local police by letting one of each go along on the trip to Canada was not reached without an all-night wrangle, and a long-distance telephone call to Gov. Earl K. Long, at his home in Winnfield, La., this morning.

Original plans called for the plane to reach Brockville tonight, returning tomorrow, but the party stopped overnight at Cleveland, and will proceed to some airport near Brockville tomorrow morning.

The red and blue university airplane, bought a year ago by the man who will be brought back in it as prisoner, has been used chiefly to transport star athletes between their homes and the campus, whenever their services on gridiron or diamond were required.

At its controls this morning was J. P. Fraim, flying instructor of the university. Bryant Clemens, a special investigator for the district attorney's office, represented the local police, and Maj. Murphy Roden, assistant superintendent of State police, who was one of the bodyguards with Huey P. Long when the "Kingfish" was assassinated in 1935, represented the State.

Extradition Papers Signed

The plane stopped briefly at Natchitoches, where Gov. Long delivered extradition papers to Maj. Roden.

Deputy Sheriff Frank D. Trimble left by train to bring Mrs. Smith back sometime late this week. Trimble, accompanied by his wife and a woman deputy, will pick up the automobile the Smiths bought in Detroit and drive the party back here.

District Attorney Dewey J. Sanchez said that former Gov. Leche would appear before a grand jury in the Smith case by virtue of a sort of "invitational summons."

"The former Governor will be invited to tell all he knows of the various phases of the way the administration's financial affairs were handled, the administration of the college and the current difficulties of L. S. U.," Sanchez said.

The district attorney was asked if Leche would be questioned about a statement he made that he suspected a year ago that "everything was not right" at L. S. U.

"The former Governor, like the others, will be questioned about anything and everything about which the jury is curious," Sanchez said.

Grand Juries in Recess

The approaching return of a key figure in the administration of Louisiana, his coming trial on charges of embezzlement, and the current investigations of the Long-Maestri machine by the United States Treasury are being hailed by critics of the State administration as "the beginning of the end" for

Real Estate Man, Missing 16 Hours, Is Sought Here

Headquarters detectives early today began a search for a 79-year-old, well-to-do Washington real estate man, missing from his home here more than 16 hours after he left to make a collection of rents.

The missing man, Louis Sachs, 4810 Georgia avenue northwest, left home at 10 a. m. yesterday. At 10 o'clock last night his son, Herman Sachs, 1451 Maryland avenue northeast, received a phone call at the father's home. The caller inquired if he had the Sachs' residence then a voice identified as that of Sachs said: "I won't be home tonight."

There was a clatter at the other end of the line and the receiver was hung up the younger Sachs said.

Ickes a Buddha If 3d Term Fails, Says Johnson

THE BUDDHA

Contemplation to Be Only Occupation if He Loses Job, Is Forecast

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, advancing what he said was the reason for Secretary of Interior Ickes' appeal for a third term for President Roosevelt, wrote yesterday:

"If Mr. Roosevelt doesn't continue, Honest Harold will be 'out,' with no more authority or attention than a Buddha sitting on a lotus leaf contemplating his navel and dreaming of happier days. This would slay Mr. Ickes."

For emphasis he added:

"There is perhaps no word in the English language adequate to describe how completely and finally and irrevocably 'out' Mr. Ickes would be. . . . Mr. Ickes is not a Democrat. He used to be a Republican, but ran out on his party twice—to be a Bull Mooser in 1912 and a Democrat in 1932. Neither a Republican nor a real Democratic President would therefore lose a moment in booting Mr. Ickes."

Gen. Johnson's article was written for the magazine Look, which previously published Secretary Ickes' third term appeal.

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives Medal to Miss Anderson

Presents Award at N. A. A. C. P. Conclave In Richmond

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 2.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt presented the Spingarm Medal today to Marian Anderson, colored contralto, and told the singer, "your achievement far transcends any race or creed."

The medal is given annually by Joel E. Spingarn, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to the member of the race who "shall have made the highest achievement during the preceding year or years in any honorable field of human endeavor."

Mrs. Roosevelt told 5,000 persons in presenting the medal at the annual conference of the N. A. A. C. P. that Miss Anderson "had the courage to meet many difficulties" and that "her modesty and her great gift are well known."

The ceremony recalled the incident of last spring when the Daughters of the American Revolution denied Miss Anderson the use of their Constitution Hall in Washington for a concert April 9.

Shortly after the incident the President's wife, although refusing to name the group, said she was resigning from "an organization" because she could not actively fight an action by it which she disapproved.

Mrs. Roosevelt's talk was preceded by a program of vocal numbers by massed colored choirs and brief talks by Gov. Price, Walter White, executive secretary of the N. A. A. C. P., and Mrs. Daisy E. Lampkin, of Pittsburgh.

Norway's Royal Pair Phones to Children at Oslo

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., July 2 (AP).—A transatlantic telephone talk with his three children highlighted the celebration today of the thirty-sixth birthday of Crown Prince Olaf of Norway.

The call was placed as a surprise by William A. Coolidge, the Prince's Oxford classmate, at whose home Olaf and Crown Princess Martha were guests.

The royal couple talked with the Princesses Ragnhild, 9, and Astrid, 7, and Prince Harald, 2. They also conversed with King Haakon VII who, with the children, was at the palace in Oslo.

Fight Looms On 3-Billion Lending Plan

Administration to Force Action; Lines Tightened to Resume Arms, Money Battle

By William V. Nessly.

Rebuffed on two of the outstanding session-prolonging issues in Congress, Administration forces prepared yesterday to cast into the two chambers another proposal certain to bring battle.

Legislation to carry out the President's $3,860,000,000 lending program designed to provide work and promote business will be introduced by Majority Leader Barkley in the Senate and by Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee.

Over the holiday week-end both sides were seeking to strengthen their lines for resumption this week of the two major fights now raging—neutrality and the President's monetary powers.

In this situation, House Majority Leader Rayburn said last night:

"If the Senate committee reports out a neutrality bill, we'll be here a long time. If it doesn't, we go home soon."

The Senate will vote late Wednesday on legislation, now of doubtful legality, to extend the Chief Executive's powers to devalue the dollar, operate the international stabilization fund, and continue the silver-buying program—powers that expired Friday night because of the Administration's inability to pass the extending measure before the end of the fiscal year.

Court Action Foreseen

While the President's supporters are generally believed to have the votes to pass the legislation in its present form, such action would throw the issue into the courts, it is conceded. Avoidance of a court fight would depend on submission of entirely new legislation, granting the powers to the President again, rather than attempting to extend authorizations already dead. The substitute program, however, would involve going through the entire legislative procedure of committee and floor action in both houses, while the course being followed entails only Senate acceptance of the conferees' report before final enactment is attained.

Bloc to Continue Fight

Republicans and conservative Democrats who "talked the powers to death" by preventing passage of the extending legislation Friday night will continue their fight when the Senate reconvenes Wednesday. Opponents of the devaluation power are joined in the fight with silver State Senators seeking to force an increase in the Treasury's price for domestic silver from 64.64 cents an ounce to at least 75 cents.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, was inclined yesterday to agree with the Administration view that enactment of the pending resolution would revive the devaluation and silver powers, but since the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund had reverted to the general fund of the Treasury with expiration of the old act creating it, Borah held that new legislation would be required to re-create the stabilization authority.

Silver Buying Assailed

Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, at the same time attacked, in a statement, continuation of purchase of foreign silver as a gift of American wealth to foreigners. He said that in buying silver the United States was helping Japan conquer China, since most of the Chinese silver is in Japan's hands, and that Italy had sold silver in her campaign to conquer Abyssinia.

On the neutrality issue there appeared yesterday little liking in the Senate for the bill approved by the

Auctioneer Still Going, Going 90 Miles Short of 288-Mile Swim

By the Associated Press.

Miles City, Mont., July 2.—Leg pains, minor injuries and a slackened current slowed a towering auctioneer today in his dogged struggle down the Yellowstone River toward a world's record swim.

Gordon Giles, of Glendive, passed this eastern Montana cowtown at 12:25 p. m. (Mountain Standard Time). He still was some 90 miles from completing the 288-mile swim.

"I'll swim it with one eye," the 220-pound Giles said defiantly as he plunged back into the swift current at Forsyth last night after emerging for 10 minutes to treat an eye infection.

He hoped to reach Glendive late Monday or early Tuesday.

When Giles left the river at Forsyth last night, he had been in the water constantly 52 hours and 35 minutes, had covered 176.8 miles, and had bettered the American distance swim record of 147 miles in 147 hours set by legless Charles Jimmy on the Hudson River.

The world's fresh water swim record is credited to Pedro A. Candiotti, who in 1933 negotiated 281 miles of the Parana River in South America in 84 hours.

Frank Hyde, Giles' manager, said both Jimmy and Candiotti left the water a number of times and that while the Glendive auctioneer's emergence shattered his hope of reaching Glendive nonstop, it would not affect his world record claim if he finished the grind.

Goal in Sight

By William Hillman,
International News Service Correspondent.

London, July 2.—A warning by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain's readiness to fight for Poland's independence and a Moscow communication indicating imminent signing of the Anglo-French-Soviet entente was followed tonight by reports that Reichsfuehrer Hitler is hesitating in his plans regarding Danzig.

Rumors reached London late tonight hinting at the possibility that the German dictator has been impressed by the stream of week-end British and French utterances, reiterating determination to help the Poles if they resist a Danzig Nazi coup.

May Cancel Danzig Visit

These reports intimated that the Reichsfuehrer is considering possible postponement or even cancellation of a personal trip he was said to have planned to make to Danzig late this month. The reports however were not verified and Hitler's intentions still remained a mystery in a dangerous international atmosphere.

Meanwhile, the foreign office received from Ambassador Sir William Seeds in Moscow what was understood to be a favorable Soviet reply to the latest Anglo-French proposals for the formation of the projected triple entente, history's biggest alliance, designed to safeguard the security of 12 smaller nations as well as the 3 major powers.

Special Cabinet Session Seen

This correspondent was informed by a British government official that he expects an announcement this week, stating that the mighty military alliance has finally been consummated after nearly three months of negotiations.

Prime Minister Chamberlain will meet with the cabinet's foreign affairs committee tomorrow to discuss the Soviet reply.

The full cabinet may be called into special session before its regular meeting day Wednesday in order to receive the foreign affairs committee's recommendations, after which an announcement of vast moment to world peace may be made by Chamberlain in the House of Commons, Premier Daladier in Paris and V. 'Ready to Die For Hitler,' Say Danzig Nazis

No Threat of Poles Can Frighten German City, Forster Asserts

By the Associated Press.

Free City of Danzig, July 2.—Albert Forster, fiery leader of Danzig Nazis, told a rally at nearby Tiegenhof today that Danzigers were ready to sacrifice "blood and life" in order to return to Germany.

"We in Danzig declare we want to return to Germany and we declare further that we will return," he asserted at the close of a district Nazi meeting.

"One word of the Fuehrer has a thousand times more weight with us in Danzig than all the war cries and lying agitation in the world," Forster said, adding:

"No threat from Poland can frighten Danzig. When the Fuehrer brings Danzig liberty, then this German population will stand together as one man in brazen faith to the Fuehrer and Germany and it (Danzig) will be ready for every sacrifice which the Fuehrer demands, not only of possessions, but also of blood and life."

Forster charged that "the encirclement powers" were ready to wage war against the theory of self-determination of peoples in order to perpetuate "an injustice."

"They are preparing to deliver Danzig to Poland rather than to agree to fulfillment of the wish of the determined Danzig population

Australia Stands By Motherland, Premier Declares

Sydney, Australia, July 2 (AP).—Premier Robert Gordon Menzies, in one of the most forthright speeches by an Australian statesman since 1914, declared today Australia stood with Britain "to the last man and shilling . . . even if it means war."

Disclosing he was in "hourly" contact with the British government, Menzies said:

"We never hesitated in expressing an opinion . . . but because we believed Britain throughout has acted with honor, judgment and long-suffering, care and patience . . . Australia takes her stand."

6 More Bombs Hurt 2 in England

London, July 2 (INS).—In a fresh outbreak of terrorism attributed to the illegal Irish Republican Army, six time-bombs exploded today in railroad stations of six English cities.

Two persons were injured and considerable property damage was wrought.

MEMO TO HENRY WALLACE: Your farm man kept after Secretary Ickes to be a good fellow and sign up to conserve the soil on his farm north of town here and qualify for a benefit check. Finally Mr. Secretary asked how much he'd get if he complied with the act.

GALLUP SURVEYED: One of the things to watch in the Gallup polls of Presidential prospects is the percentage of voters who haven't made up their minds. In most polls this has been running high, between 40 and 50 per cent. So if Dewey gets 50 per cent of the votes in a poll, he has approximately one-half of one-half, or just about 25 per cent of the total. That makes him far less a cinch than the figures show.

Second, there's a law forbidding former officials to practice before their former departments within two years. Third, I haven't been asked, and fourth, I wouldn't take the case if I were asked."

$552,000,000 Defense Fund Is Completed

$293,895,547 Bill For Planes, Bases and Munitions Is Signed

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 2.—President Roosevelt has signed a bill giving the War Department $293,895,547 in cash contract authorizations to spend primarily on new fighting planes.

The measure completes a $552,000,000 emergence defense program which Mr. Roosevelt outlined to Congress early in the session, and raises the outlay for defense, in the fiscal year which began yesterday, to the unprecedented peacetime total of $1,783,187,847.

For the purchase of 2,290 airplanes of the Regular Army and 177 for the National Guard, the bill includes an appropriation of $186,885,547 and authority to enter into contracts up to $64,560,000.

5,500 Planes By 1941

Addition of the new craft to the Army Air Corps will give it about 5,500 serviceable planes by July 1, 1941. The bill also carries $14,250,000 for educational orders to train industry in the production of munitions and $27,000,000, partially in a contract authorization, for strengthening the garrison at the Panama Canal.

Funds are provided, too, to begin construction of five major air bases, in Alaska, Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone and in the Northeastern and Southeastern United States. New air depots also will be built in the Southeast and in Utah.

The bill contains a total of $223,398,047, in direct appropriations and $70,497,500 in contract authorizations.

The President put his signature on it before leaving Washington yesterday. The signing was announced by White House officials here today after Mr. Roosevelt arrived for a three-day visit with his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, who sails for Europe Thursday.

Omitting morning worship, the President decided to spend the day on his 1,200-acre country estate resting, chatting with the family and catching up on some reading.

A second bill which has been signed, White House officials said, appropriates $20,000 for use this month by the Interior Department's petroleum conservation division in administering the newly extended Connally "hot oil" act.

2,500 Orders Soon

By the Associated Press.

The Army is preparing to place mass orders shortly for more than 2,500 warplanes—several times as many military aircraft as American industry has turned out in a single year.

Bids from manufacturers to be received from Wednesday to Saturday this week will throw into high gear the $300,000,000 treble expansion of the Air Corps.

Officials said yesterday the contracts would be awarded possibly by the end of the month. Some of the planes will be delivered in a few months, but it will be two years before the last to be completed take the air.

To bring the Air Corps' strength to at least 5,500 planes within the next two years, Congress provided funds for more than 3,500 new craft. Acting with a minimum of delay, the War Department has ordered nearly 1,000 in two months and asked bids from manufacturers on the remaining planes.

Of the new planes already started, 527 are single-engine pursuit ships credited unofficially with speeds of 400 miles an hour, and about 190 are attack bombers believed to rival them in speed.

Just how many of each kind are to be purchased next is a secret, but these ten types are to be ordered: Light, primary, basic and advanced training planes; two and four engine bombers; one and two engine interceptor pursuit planes; multiplace fighters, and observation craft.

J. F. Crosby Speaks Before Retreat Congress in N. Y.

John F. Crosby, of Washington and Chevy Chase, Md., Assistant Attorney General in the Wilson Administration, will address tonight's banquet concluding the third annual Congress of the National Laywomen's Retreat Movement at the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

A large group from Washington, among 1,200 delegates, yesterday heard Miss Nell C. Merrigan, of New York City, Congress chairman, urge extension of a program for weekend "away from the world" meditations in convents.

Among the local delegates are Mrs. Leo Kelly, president of the Washington Retreat League; Mrs. Francis E. Smith, jr., vice president of the league; Mrs. Lynch Younger, retiring president; Mrs. Harry E. Goodwin, publicity chairman; Miss Nannie L. Gibson, Miss Emily Jamieson, Mrs. Lucy Goldsborough, Miss Eileen Kelly, Miss Irene Morgan, Mrs. Mary Essrey, Miss Naomi Gonter and others.

Education Funds Held Diverted to Old-Age Pensions

San Francisco, July 2 (AP).—Funds needed for education are being diverted to meet old-age pension requirements, Dr. George Willard Frasier, president of the Colorado State College of Education, said today.

"Education is suffering in the conflict between the old and the young, between grandfather and grandson," Dr. Frasier told the National Council of Education in a meeting preliminary to the annual convention tomorrow of the National Education Association.

Business Women Plan Centennial

Kansas City, July 2 (AP).—Two thousand delegates from American Business and Professional Women's Clubs meet here next week to celebrate a "centennial" of progress for women.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage and peace leader, suggested the theme for the biennial national B. & P. W. convention, pointing out women now are active in 500 professions, where 100 years ago they were restricted to seven. More than 70,000 women belong to 1,700 business and professional clubs.

YouthCongress Told to Record Views on Isms

Organization Resents N. Y. Legislator's Demand for Vote

By the Associated Press

New York, July 2.—On the heels of a public statement by 16 city council members charging the American Youth Congress, in session here, with being a "Communist front," 56 members of the State Legislature today issued a statement "demanding" that the Congress go on record against communism, fascism and naziism.

The statements evoked an indignant reply from the secretary of the congress, Joseph Cadden, who called the authors of the statements "long distance critics" and "adult lobbyists" who had been "pretty presumptuous" in "slyly and secretly preparing sniping statements."

The legislators' statement, whose signers included Assemblyman Robert F. Wagner, jr., said in part:

"While wholly in favor of any constructive movement in the interest of the general welfare of the youth of the Empire State and the Nation at large, we do, however, demand that any congress of youth, claiming itself to be representative of the youth of our nation, do unequivocally resolve itself for the preservation of American democracy by definitely, decisively and publicly opposing communism, as well as fascism and naziism.

"Resolutions condemning fascism have been adopted during the past four congresses of the American Youth Congress, but never has a word been said against the cancerous menace of atheistic, materialistic communism."

After the statement was received, a resolution denouncing communism, fascism and naziism was howled down at one of the several panel meetings of the congress, which is composed of representatives of young people's organizations all over the country.

Benes Forecasts Military Action For Czech Liberty

New York, July 2 (INS).—"We will win our struggle for independence!"

As Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of the Czecho-Slovakian Republic, made this promise in a speech at Randall's Island tonight, 18,000 Czechs raised shouts of approval and the words went to countrymen at home by short-wave radio.

The occasion was celebration of Czecho-Slovak Day. Dr. Benes said, in part:

"Liberty and democracy in Europe are being destroyed.

"The European dictatorships . . . will fall sooner or later. And we must be prepared . . . At the right moment we will form a political directorate which will co-ordinate our political and military action in event of war."

Gain Reported In Freedom Of Religion

Civil Liberties Union Surveys U. S. Status Of Right to Worship

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 2.—Restraints on religious liberty in the United States are slowly giving way to a larger freedom, it is said in the conclusion of a survey of current and past restrictions just completed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Published today in a 48-page pamphlet entitled "Religious Liberty in the United States Today," the survey has as its announced purpose the winning of support for remedies in law and the counteracting of intolerances which restrict religious liberty outside the field of law.

On the question of constitutional guarantees the survey finds that the guarantees now in effect insure that there shall be no religious test for Federal office, but that this rule is qualified in some States.

In Maryland, for instance, belief in God is a prerequisite to holding public office.

Prejudice Restricts Offices

"Anti-Catholic feeling," the report says, "widespread in many sections of the United States, still operates against candidates for public office who belong to the Roman Catholic Communion, and, in sections of the country against the appointment of Catholics as teachers in the public schools."

Anti-Semitism, according to the survey, was not a serious problem during the nineteenth century, "but in recent years, scores, if not hundreds, of little organizations have sprung up to defend 'Americanism' and as part of their propaganda to attack Jews as an international menace to American democracy.

"With the advent of the Hitler regime in Germany anti-Semitism has been intensified not only through German-American organizations sympathetic with Hitler, but by their native American counterparts and sympathizers.

Bible-Reading in Schools

In 12 States and many localities Bible reading in public schools is required by law, despite the fact that Jews object to the reading of the New Testament; Catholics object to the use of the Protestant version of the scriptures, and many freethinkers object to any reading of the Bible. "For children to be compelled to listen to Bible reading to which their parents are opposed constitutes a denial of religious equality," the report says.

Teaching of the theory of evolution, which runs counter to fundamentalist beliefs, is still forbidden in the public schools of some States, "although the agitation for this restraint upon modern scientific teaching has died down in recent years," the report says.

Prosecutions still occur frequently for violation of Sunday laws—which, according to the survey, restrict religious freedom when they compel men to observe Saturday as a day of rest and worship to refrain from business activity on Sunday. "Sentiment against the observance of Sunday in the Puritan manner is mounting," the survey says, "and interference with peaceful pursuits on that day is regarded by many as a gratuitous curtailment of their liberty."

Sayre Terms Open Trading Way to Peace

Hull Assistant Says U. S. Won't Resort to Dictators' Practices

By the Associated Press.

Francis B. Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State, said last night there was "not room in the world" for both the system of closed economy and the system of open trading.

"So far as we can see," he declared in a radio address, "probably the one or the other policy must ultimately come to dominate the world."

Sayre, who has charge of the trade agreements program under Secretary Hull, added:

"We are touching close the crucial struggle of our times—the struggle between individual freedom under law and the advance of civilization, on the one hand, and, on the other, ruthless suppression and the advent of a new dark age."

Sayre contended that the United States would not "refuse to trade with totalitarian states" and would not "make economic war upon them." He added that "we want their trade and they need ours. Through trade lies the way of peace."

Would Keep Principles

But, he cautioned, the United States must not surrender its principles or adopt the commercial policies of the "totalitarian states" as its own.

"For the United States to resort to trading in preferences, to bilateralistic balancing practices, would be only tragically to weaken our own defenses," he asserted. "Our strength lies in our great market, our free exchange, our system of free economic initiative."

At the same time it was being pointed out here that Japan and Germany, whose territorial expansion activities have been criticized sharply by the American Government, are among the leading potential beneficiaries of the Administration's proposal to pay a bounty on cotton, and possibly lard, sold abroad.

Both Use Much Cotton

For years, both nations have been among the largest users of American cotton, Germany particularly before she embarked upon a "self-sufficiency" program which emphasized the production of cotton substitutes.

The cotton export subsidy program, designed to help the United States reduce an unwieldly surplus and regain what officials call the Nation's "fair share" of world markets, would make the product available to foreign buyers at about $10 a bale below domestic prices. The Government's loan program has been credited with having held prices of the American cotton above world levels, thereby causing a sharp loss in sales.

The extent to which Japan may benefit is shown by foreign trade reports that she took 16 per cent of American cotton exports during the 1923-33 period and 26 per cent during the first nine months of the current marketing season. Japan's purchases this season, totaling 806,000 bales, are slightly larger than those of the United Kingdom and France combined, totaling 739,000 bales.

Large British Trade Expected

However, during the 1923-33 period, the United Kingdom took about 23 per cent, averaging 1,604,000 bales, and France 11 per cent, averaging 786,000 bales. Although exports to the United Kingdom are less than half of what they were a year ago, Agriculture Department officials expect the Kingdom to be the largest buyer under the subsidy program.

The percentage of American cotton shipped to Germany this season was 9 per cent, or 292,000 bales, compared with 23 per cent, or 1,638,000 bales, in the 1923-33 period.

Foreign trade reports indicate that Japan plans to replenish depleted stocks of American cotton when the subsidy program is inaugurated. The Agriculture Department's attache in Berlin reports that the textile industry in that nation and in annexed Austria and Czecho-Slovakia has slowed down because of a raw material shortage.

No Mediation For China Now, Envoy Asserts

Dr. Hu Says Just Peace Is Impossible; Sees Finish Fight

By Lee Rashall.

International News Service Writer.

Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih last night represented his beleaguered government as unwilling to accept mediation of the Sino-Japanese war at this time, and predicted the conflict will continue at least two years.

"The demands of Japan in any mediation would be "unreasonable," the ambassador declared, "and there is no just peace in sight."

Strengthened by new national confidence and morale, China is prepared to fight the war to a conclusion, he said in an interview.

Only "Just Peace" Acceptable

The scholar-diplomat stressed that any mediation presupposes acceptance of terms by both sides of a dispute, and that in the present undeclared war China would accept only the tenets of a just peace.

Because such a peace is at present impossible, he said, arbitration efforts by the head of any democratic third power would be poorly timed as well as probably futile in this stage of the conflict.

Recent unofficial efforts of a Japanese emissary to determine with State Department officials the possible basis for inviting President Roosevelt to mediate the two-year war were disclosed Saturday.

Former leader of the unifying "New Life" movement in China, the ambassador pictured his country as revitalized in the last eight months, and fired with new energies to repel invasion.

China has recently benefited, he said, in two ways;

The people have adjusted themselves readily to the stricture of being cut off from the main accesses to the sea, and have, in part, counteracted this program by depending upon China's "back doors" as channels for strategic imports and new exports;

Vital shifts in the international situation have been "more or less in our favor," he declared, with the growing world realization that the war of defense waged by China is now "the war of the world in behalf of peace."

War Isn't Isolated

"What happened in Spain, Czecho-Slovakia and Albania now is happening in the treaty ports of China," the envoy said. "Circumstances of the war have supplied ample evidence that China is not fighting an isolated war, and that her conflict is merely an integral part of a world situation in which a few, well-armed aggressor nations are trying to bluff the peaceful nations into acceptance of their dictates."

Dr. Hu conceded that silver purchase and neutrality legislation now before Congres could exert tremendous effect upon China's stability and defense power, but declined to discuss such "pending legislation" until it is written into law.

C. I. O. Appoints Organizing Group In Canal Zone

Formation of an organizing committee for workers of the Panama Canal Zone was announced yesterday by John Brophy, director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Although Brophy limited the committee to activity among the zone's 20,000 unorganized workers, American Federation of Labor leaders viewed the move as a threat to A. F. L. unions in the zone.

As committee chairman, Brophy named H. A. Stoudt, of the National Maritime Union, a former employe of the Panama Railroad Steamship Line. Stoudt has been at work for months organizing the zone's marine workers to form a link in the national federation the maritime union has set as its goal.

Committee headquarters will be set up at Cristobal.

NLRB Reports It Has Averted 714 Strikes Since 1935

The National Labor Relations Board last night announced it had handled 21,933 cases involving 5,045,561 workers since autumn of 1935, and said it had averted 714 threatened strikes, involving 180,323 workers.

Over four-fifths of the cases handled, 17,727 disputes, have been closed, leaving 4,206 cases pending on June 1, according to the announcement.

Of the cases ended, 52 per cent were closed by agreement of both parties; 16 per cent dismissed by the board and its regional directors; 26 per cent withdrawn, and 6 per cent closed in some other manner.

Among total closed cases, 2,223 were strike cases, involving 373,684 workers. Of these 1,676, or over 75 per cent, were settled, and 239,905 workers reinstated following strikes and lockouts, the Labor Board reported.

In Six Years CCC Gave Jobs to 2,500,000

The Civilian Conservation Corps said in a progress report yesterday that in six years of operation it had given employment to 2,500,000 young men, war veterans, Indians and territorials on more than 150 types of work.

The enrollees, the report added, had allocated to dependents out of basic cash allowances of $30 a month an aggregate of more than $500,000,000.

Wagner to Ask Lifting of Quota On Child Exiles

Calls Senate Committee Action 'Needlessly Cruel' to Adults

Expressing dissatisfaction with a change the Senate Immigration Committee made in legislation permitting the entry of 20,000 German refugee children into this country, Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, said yesterday he would ask the committee to reconsider its action.

The committee approved the legislation last Friday, but inserted a proviso that the entries would have to be deducted from present immigration quotas. Germany's annual quota is 25,957. Under the resolution, children of 14 or under would be admitted over a two-year period.

Wagner, who is a co-author of the resolution with Representative Rogers (Republican), Massachusetts, said the quota provision was "wholly unacceptable" to him and to other supporters of the "humanitarian plan."

"The proposed change," he said, "would in effect convert the measure from a humane proposal to help children who are in acute distress into a proposal with needlessly cruel consequences for the adults in Germany who are in need of succor and are fortunate enough to obtain visas under the present drastic quota restrictions."

In asserting that he would ask the committee to reconsider its action, Wagner said he understood it had voted at a time when a number of members were absent.

At the same time Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, hailed the committee's approval of legislation designed to stop all immigration into this country for five years.

In one of five alien bills, Reynolds proposed a ten-year moratorium on immigration. The committee reported the measure in a modified version. Reynolds, in a prepared statement, said he anticipated Senate and House will approve the committee's action.

"But I shall continue fighting for all the points set forth in the five bills," he said.

France Assails House Action On Neutrality

Newspapers Declare U.S. Rejected Opportunity To Curb Dictators

By the United Press.

Paris, July 2.—The action of the House in refusing to remove the embargo provisions from the United States neutrality law caused bitter disappointment in French government circles tonight and newspapers asserted that the United States had rejected an opportunity to curb the dictators.

The press refrained from criticism of President Roosevelt, whom it admires above all other foreign statesmen, but bitterly assailed the action of the House in passing the Bloom bill retaining the barriers against American arms shipments to possible warring nations.

"Congress distinguished itself again by voting such incoherent and inopportune measures," said the Hournee Industrielle which represents French industrialists.

"Congress made no discrimination between the democracies and the the dictators. The new bill is without distinction between those who are still trying to save the very principles of freedom and democracy to which the Americans themselves are so ardently attached and those who are provokers of disorder."

Blum Voices Disappointment

Leon Blum, France's first Socialist premier who called his Popular Front regime "Le New Deal Francaise," wrote in the Socialist organ Le Populaire:

"France and England by direct warnings to Hitler and Mussolini have done much to set aside the imminent danger, but Congress, by refusing to revise the neutrality act, did just the opposite.

"I realize that if war does break out American public opinion will rally to Roosevelt's views, but the immediate objective of the democracies is to prevent war. It is not a question of insuring ourselves of a source of supplies, but if the American Congress had revised the neutrality law and made America's position certain now they could have turned the dictators away from war."

[Claude Vivieres, writing in the Centrist Lorde, commented on the gravity of the action for the British-French front, saying "no matter what it be, the blow is grave," the Associated Press said.

["Grave above all for the democracies who risk in case of an European conflict not being able to buy arms or munitions from the United States," he said.

Revolt at Munich Seen

[Deputy Henri de Kerrillis, director of the independent L'Epoque, said public opinion in the United States "revolted" at the "Munich spirit of concession and capitulation."

["We have killed the spirit of Munich," he added, "we must revive the spirit of Marne and Verdun and we will again find the heart of America."

[Vladimir d'Ormesson, in the Rightist Figaro, expressed "absolute confidence in the insight of American conscience" and declared he believed the House text "will not become law."—Editor's note.]

A week ago Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, in a speech at Arcachon, deviated from his prepared text and urged the United States to publicly align itself with the European "peace front," saying that if the United States made it known in advance that she would aid Britain and France the menace of war would be brushed aside.

Bonnet's remarks created bitter resentment in many American quarters, with the result that the French government ordered all cabinet ministers to stick to prepared texts of speeches and do nothing that would give the impression of pressure being brought against the United States for a lifting of the arms embargo.

France Ready To Meet Crisis, Says Gamelin

Paris, July 2 (AP).—France geared her war machine today for a prolonged crisis over Danzig.

Extra defensive precautions were taken as the independent newspaper Paris-Midi declared that only prompt warnings by London and Paris "stifled a Nazi plan of having the Danzig Senate demand the Free City's union with Germany this week-end."

Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander in chief of all France's armed forces, reported to Premier Daladier he was "more than satisfied" with the defense line facing Italy. He gave a glowing report on France's land forces.

Informed quarters said "every military step necessary for immediate action up to the calling of reserves" had been taken in the last few days.

Both France and Britain were reported in Paris to have given Poland formal assurances that they were ready to give automatic aid to her without previous consultation if Germany grabbed Danzig. French diplomats reported the Paris action to French-British allies in eastern Europe.

The Paris-Midi reported that the French-British front, fearing a German invasion of the Netherlands should war come, had opened diplomatic conversations with the little kingdom and also planned military exchanges.

Russians Accept Pact, London Says

premier and foreign commissar, in Moscow.

A high government source said the treaty would include in an attached protocol antiaggression guarantees to Poland, Rumania, Greece, Turkey, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Finland, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland and Luxembourg.

Molotoff May Visit London

Signing of this broad pact, which would range some 25,000,000 armed men and reserves as well as thousands of planes and other weapons against the Italo-German alliance, would be followed by a conference among representatives of the general staffs of Britain, France and the Soviet Union. A permanent council or military commission would be established to facilitate prompt and co-ordinated action against any move likely to upset the "structure of peace."

Molotoff, it was understood, is to be invited to visit London and Paris, while high-ranking members of the British and French cabinets visit Moscow.

In his address Chamberlain made no direct mention of Hitler or Danzig or Poland by name. But there was no mistaking the fact that he was telling the German dictator that the Chamberlain of September, 1938 —when the Munich pact placed Czecho-Slovakia at Hitler's mercy—is not the Chamberlain of July, 1939. The premier declared:

"We are living in a critical and dangerous time. We ourselves are a peaceful nation. We desire no quarrels with anyone.

"But let no one make the mistake of supposing that we are not ready to throw our whole strength into the scales, if need be, to resist aggression, whether it be against ourselves or against those whose independence we have undertaken to defend."

1,250,000 Volunteer

In fervent tones the prime minister praised the rapidly growing national voluntary services as "our fourth arm" supplementing the navy, army and air force. He revealed:

"Within a few months, nearly 1,250,000 volunteers have been added to our defense forces of all kinds."

Chamberlain read a message of gratitude from King George to the national voluntary services, which said:

"You know that all our preparations are designed not to provoke war, but to preserve peace. We still preserve the hope that the nations may learn to live together in fellowship and harmony, but in the meantime we are resolved to leave nothing undone to maintain our country's security."

British government quarters looked forward to this new week as one likely to produce developments of far-reaching consequence to the issue of European peace or war.

[Britain, France and Poland were reported agreed that any sort of attempted German-Danzig reunion would be resisted forcefully, the Associated Press said.

[Of the three only Britain had yet to tell Berlin her decision, it was said in official British circles, and that decision would be presented this week through diplomatic channels.

[The London reports of the British-French-Polish stand represented it in stronger terms than ever before. Emphasis previously had been on the British proviso that Poland first construe any Danzig move as a threat to Polish independence before Britain would move to Poland's side.

[Meanwhile, political sources in Warsaw heard that a new British-French-Polish warning was being prepared for Danzig if reports of military preparations—denied in Berlin and Danzig—persisted.—Editor's note.]

for return home to the Reich," he said.

Meanwhile, Danzig authorities waited impatiently to learn results of diplomatic discussions in Paris and London.

Considerable interest was centered on the action of the British and French governments in calling home their Ambassadors to Warsaw to report on German-Polish relations and the whole question of Danzig and Pomorze, the Polish corridor.

The Nazi newspaper Vorposten declared, however, that such discussions could not change the "inevitable trend of events."

"The return of Danzig to the Reich has been decided," the newspaper said. The time of such return is to be decided by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler."

Danzig continued calm with its police and black-shirted Danzig S. S. men in complete control. The watch along the free city's borders was strengthened and several barracks were full of S. S. men ready for any emergency.

Rome Press Discreetly Hails Neutrality Bill

Plays Up 'Cruel Disillusion' of France; Taunts Democracies

By James M. Minifie.
Special Cable to The Post.

Rome, July 2.—The Congressional rebuff to President Roosevelt over the neutrality bill was front-page news today in Rome, where it was regarded as a most welcome aid to the totalitarian powers.

The view expressed by well-informed Italians was that the embargo on the sale of arms meant that American influence now could be discounted, and there was much satisfaction at the consequent weakening of the position of the western democracies.

Go Easy on Jubilation

One Italian described it as "a smashing blow at France and Britain" and predicted that, with their chief source of supplies threatened, they would not dare to oppose the march of the totalitarians to new triumphs.

The press was careful not to comment on the action of the House of Representatives. It was realized that the issue was not absolutely settled and that premature jubilation might have unfortunate repercussions in Washington. Hence, as if by signal, the newspapers with impressive unanimity limited themselves to recording the event and the "cruel disillusion" of France.

At the same time, the campaign against the European democracies became more violent, although less well focused. They were accused of both aggression and ineffectiveness, of bellicosity and cowardice.

Described as Bravado

Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, ran banner headlines, "Paroxism of Alarmism Among the Democracies" and "London Demands General Mobilization."

The policy of the democracies was described as a desperate attempt to arrest the fateful course of events by hurling threats and mobilizing spirits for war.

Stage Is Set For Japanese, British Parley

Delegates Arrive in Tokyo, Confer With Superiors on Tientsin

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, July 2.—The stage was set tonight for what may be one of the most momentous conferences in the history of the Orient, the British-Japanese discussions growing out of the Tientsin controversy.

The chief delegates of the two nations, Maj. G. A. Herbert, British Consul in Tientsin, and Sotomatsu Kato, slated to be Japan's Minister-at-large in China, arrived in Tokyo and immediately were closeted with superiors.

There were indications the conference would be opened Tuesday but no official announcement yet has been made.

The controversy began with the British refusal to hand over to the Japanese four alleged Chinese terrorists who had taken refuge in the British concession in Tientsin.

The Japanese on June 14 imposed a blockade on the British and French concessions and spokesmen, particularly military leaders, have widened the demands on the British.

British spokesmen last week insisted that only local issues connected with the blockade would be considered, but Japanese, especially military leaders, indicated that demands for Britain's "co-operation" in Japan's program for a "new order in east Asia," would figure vitally.

It was reported reliably that Japan's chief objective in the conference would be a British pledge to support the Japanese-sponsored federal reserve currency in North China.

It was said that at the same time Japan would attempt to gain commitments respecting Tientsin which could be applied later to other concessions and settlements. The Japanese were said to hope to end foreign administrative and police powers in these areas.

Tientsin, Monday, July 3 (U.P.)—Japanese demands in Tientsin were set out today in simultaneous statements issued by the Japanese-dominated Peiping provisional government and Japanese army headquarters for North China, Exchange Telegraph dispatches said.

The demands came in the midst of new incidents increasing Anglo-Japanese tension, including the stripping of John Anderson, a China-born Briton, at the barrier of the British Concession here. Anderson was slapped across the face with his passport by a Japanese officer.

The demands of the puppet government included:

Joint control of British and French concessions here by these authorities and the provisional government;

Co-operation by British and French concessions in the provisional government's currency policy;

Permission for provisional government authorities to "inspect" banks and business houses in the concessions, and

"HONEYMOON SKIPPER" FINDS CAMELS GIVE MORE PLEASURE PER PUFF...MORE PUFFS PER PACK!

CLOSE-UP BESIDE MIGHTY NIAGARA. Jolly Captain Robert Graham leans against the rail of his Maid of the Mist to give an inquiring reporter his views on cigarettes: "I've been a Camel smoker for more than 10 years. Lots of times I've compared with other smokers—noticed how much longer my Camels burned. To a steady smoker, that extra smoking mounts up. I figure—on the basis of these recent laboratory reports—that I'm getting the same as 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK. Even without that bonus, Camels still would be my smoke. They're milder, cooler—easy on my throat. They have a rich, mellow taste I've never found in any other cigarette." Try Camels. Enjoy the supreme luxury of Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos...and the economy of long burning that make Camel "penny for penny your best cigarette buy."

Hitler Forms Secret Supreme War Council

Most Important Army and Diplomatic Advisers Summoned

Special Cable to The Post.

Geneva, July 2.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, at a secret meeting held June 23 at his Bavarian mountain home near Berchtesgaden, organized a supreme defense council to prepare Germany for whatever action that country may take in the next few months, it was learned here today.

Faced with perhaps the greatest problem of his career—how to bring the Free City of Danzig into the Reich without involving his country in a major European war—Der Fuehrer summoned his most important advisers. They went by plane and remained but a few hours, but in that time he told they were being made members of a secret council which would pilot the country through any forthcoming crisis.

Goering Is Present

Nothing more could be learned about the meeting, except the names of the men who attended it.

The official positions of the men present at this meeting of the new council may constitute some indication of Nazi intentions for the next few months. Military leaders present included Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of staff of the German armed forces; Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the army; Gen. Franz Balder, chief of the army general staff; Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, and Marshal Goering, head of the air force.

Kept Secret in Germany

It is believed that Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police, including the Gestapo (secret political police), and Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Reich protector for Bohemia-Moravia, were present also, although they were not seen at the Munich airport that day. Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop attended, with several members of his staff.

Nothing has been published in Germany concerning the meeting, which was held for the purpose of organization and preliminary discussion. The same men are to be called together from time to time during the rest of the summer, probably with secrecy on each occasion.

Hitler Attends State Funeral of Knochenhauer

Hamburg, Germany, July 2 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler came here from Munich today to attend a state funeral for Gen. Wilhelm Knockenhauer, commander of the Tenth Army Corps, who died last Friday.

The Fuehrer was expected to go either to Munich or Berchtesgarden.

Politically, Germany was exceedingly quiet today. Newspapers almost without exception refrained from attacking Britain and few references of any sort were made to the international situation.

Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy, repeated, however, in a speech on the Siegfried Line at Kaiserslautern that "any encirclement of Germany and Italy can not be successful because the axis is stronger than the fighting power" of the "others' encirclement pacts."

Father Dionne Charges Dr. Dafoe Is a Chiseler

New York (Monday), July 3 (U.P.).—The Daily News today said in a copyright dispatch from North Bay, Ontario, that Olivia Dionne, father of the quintuplets, has filed a claim in Surrogate Court demanding that Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe, the girls' physician, account for and return money allegedly received from personal contracts with 43 corporations using names or pictures of the quins for commercial purposes.

The suit also alleged that Dafoe had his name written into other contracts made in behalf of the quins so that he shared in their profits.

Among the corporations named in the suit with which Dafoe allegedly had private dealings were Carnation Milk, Colgate Palmolive Peet, Corn Products Refining, Libby, McNeil & Libby, Quaker Oats, and Twentieth Century-Fox films.

Blowout Nips Hop To Palestine in Bud

New York, July 2 (U.P.).—Explosions of both tires of an overloaded cabin monoplane today ended before it started a distance flight with Palestine the reported destination.

In the stalled plane, disgruntled but unhurt, were Alex Loeb, 23, and Richard Decker, 21.

Kenneth Behr, manager of Floyd Bennett Airport, said he understood the youths proposed to fly to Palestine. After questioning the pair, Behr ordered them and their plane grounded.

Richmond, Va., July 2 (AP).—The Virginia Department of Disabled Veterans heard a talk by Charles R. Anderson, chairman of the board of appeals of the Civil Service Commission, and toured Richmond's historical places as the group's eighth annual convention opened today.

The program was curtailed by the absence of several speakers and officers who wired that they were unavoidably detained and would probably arrive Monday.

2,500 Apply for Tags

Hundreds of Arlington County motorists, who found themselves without new driver's licenses which were required on and after July 1, can stop worrying if they can show proof that they filed applications for the new licenses on or before July 1.

Lyman M. Kelley, authorized distributor of Automobile license tags in Arlington County, yesterday said he received more than 2,500 applications for new driver's license prior to July 1.

Those who have not yet received the new cards from Richmond should be sure that they carry the receipt showing that they have applied for the new license as required by law, Kelley stated.

Fairfax Sets Construction Record in June

Building Permits Valued at $224,950; 487 Deals Recorded

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va. Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

Real estate transactions in the county last month reached an all-time time high and building permits granted totaled almost a quarter million dollars, county records disclosed yesterday.

County Clerk John M. Whalen stated that 487 deeds and trusts were recorded by his office during June, largest number for single month in the history of the county. It also established a record for the first six months of any year when 2,268 instruments had been recorded. During the same period in 1938 a total of 1,970 were recorded.

County Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe reported value of building permits totaled $224,950 for last month. This brings the total for the first half of the year to $767,483, compared to those issued during the first six months of last year totaling $495,555. Of the permits issued last month 66 were for new construction, at an estimated cost of $212,750, and 6 were for improvements, estimated to cost $12,200.

Traffic Hazards Listed

Falls Church—The Devonshire Gardens Citizens Association has started a drive in the interest of highway safety and its president, William G. Cunningham, has written the State Highway Department requesting correction of two traffic hazards on the Lee Highway.

The letter points out danger spots at the intersection of Rosemary lane, one of the streets in Devonshire Gardens and the Lee highway. The street enters the highway on the side of a hill on a curve. It is pointed out the condition causes a particular hazard for those making a left turn into Rosemary lane. Traffic at this point on the Lee highway is diverted from two lanes to three lanes almost at the intersection. The association seeks to have the two-lane center line mark of the Lee highway extended farther down the hill in the direction of Falls Church.

The other point complained of is in the town of Falls Church, where the Lee boulevard cut-off intersects the Lee highway just over the crest of a hill. Traffic traveling east often speeds over the hill without realizing there is an interesting road within a short distance. The two roads join at an acute angle. It was suggested by the association that a State highway safety engineer be sent to study the hazard and possible ways of reducing the danger.

Charles County Tax Rate Boosted 5 Cents

Leonardtown, Md., July 2.—The Charles County commissioners have announced that the 1939 tax rate for Charles County will be $1.15 on each $100 of assessed valuation. This is an increase of 5 cents over last year's rate. The increase is due largely to the cost of a new general assessment and an appropriation of $4,000 for Physicians Memorial Hospital.

Better System Seen for 1940 Wheat Insuring

Simplified Procedure Developed, Asserts FCIC Manager

The 1940 wheat insurance program will be vastly improved over its 1939 counterpart, Leroy K. Smith, manager of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, predicted last night.

He said experience gained in administering the 1939 program would make it possible to accelerate and facilitate crop insurance plans next year.

Under the 1939 program, 163,000 growers in 30 States insured their crops. As of June 26, more than 1,934 claims had been settled in 17 States, representing total indemnities of 625,889 bushels. Total production of 70,000,000 bushels was insured this year, and about 7,000,000 bushels were paid into the insurance reserve.

Procedure Simplified

Next year, he added, growers will be able to obtain advances for premiums against future payments to be earned under the Agriculture Adjustment Administration program.

Other improvements, he explained, involve simplification of procedure by placing additional responsibility on county committees for establishment of yields, premium rates and computation of cash equivalent payments and extension of the base period to include yield and loss data from the crop years 1936-38, giving a blended 9 and 13 year base. The latter, he said, tends to smooth out the effects of unusual losses, which might throw a shorter base period out of line with the actual risks involved.

Premiums Explained

Smith disclosed that the new program is now being taken to the field through a series of regional, State and county meetings being conducted through the AAA to train workers. Applications will be taken in the winter wheat belt for the new program within the next two months, he announced.

Premium payments, he explained, will be made by delivering warehouse receipts for wheat equivalent in value to the amount of wheat specified for the premium; by payments in cash equivalent to value of the wheat at current market quotations; by executing an advance against future payments to be earned under the AAA program.

U. S. Chamber Questions Lending Plan

More Light Is Needed Before Action, Says Business Group

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States took a "show me" attitude last night toward the Administration's new lend-for-recovery program.

In a summary of the Nation's business affairs, it said:

"Far-reaching proposals of one kind and other, now before Congress, to extend the uses of the national credit for nongovernmental purposes, call for the clearest possible public understanding of the deeper issues involved.

"More light is needed, so that an intelligent public appraisal of the whys and wherefores of such plans may be made."

Before any action is taken, the chamber said, such vital questions as the following should be considered:

"Would a broad extension of Government into the field of investment banking lead to state capitalism?

"Would it mean that large-scale Government spending and lending are to become permanent, rather than emergency, functions of the Federal Government?

"Would it mean that States and municipalities are to surrender more of their independence in return for Federal-guaranteed loans for public improvements?

"Would the prospect of an increasingly Government-dominated economy cause a further shrinkage in private investment, thereby more than offsetting any improvement that may result from further Government lending?"

The chamber also insisted that information should be provided showing how many of the proposed loans would be actually self-liquidating, and how many "would be eventually charged to the taxpayer."

Construction In South at 9-Year High

Federal Works Are 75% Ahead of First Six Months of 1938

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Md., July 2.—Construction contracts awarded in the South during the first six months of this year amounted to $452,430,000, largest figure for any similar period within the last nine years, the Construction Daily Bulletin reported today.

Much of the total, it added, is due "to the tremendous sums the Federal Government has been pouring into public works and buildings, rural electrification and publicly owned power developments."

Private contracts were tabulated at more than one-tenth below the level reached during the first half of 1938, but public work is almost three-quarters ahead.

Road Building Stable

The total of $452,480,000, to which June contributed $59,004,000, is larger by one-third than for the first six months of last year.

"Road and bridge construction totaling $93,480,000 for the first six months is slightly ahead of that in the same period of last year, this type of work having maintained a greater stability than any other phase of the construction field," the Bulletin said.

"Mississippi and Texas have led the field with programs showing awards totaling $17,000,000 and $15,000,000 respectively. Among other active States are Maryland, Alabama, Virginia, and West Virginia."

Industrial Construction Lags

Sewer and water works contracts totaled $16,460,000, a figure well over the amount for the similar period last year, while other heavy governmental construction such as dams, harbor, levee and airport improvements almost trebled, the aggregate for the first six months being $30,847,000.

"Industrial construction during this year has not assumed the proportions of the same period for 1938, although removal of the excess profits tax, it is hoped will encourage expansion of manufacturing facilities," the Bulletin stated.

Bomb Hurting 4 In Paris Blamed on '3 Judges of Hell'

Paris, July 2 (AP).—A bomb which exploded in a Montmartre garbage can early today injured four city employes and sent detectives again on the trail of the elusive "Three Judges of Hell" and members of a secret revolutionary committee.

Bits of the bomb, which apparently had been dropped in the sidewalk garbage can on the Avenue Saint-Ouen, were taken to police laboratories for comparison with other bombs found in Paris in recent years.

Mysterious terrorists of one group signed themselves "Minas Eaqua Rhadamante"—"The Three Judges of Hell"—and have mailed dozens of home-made bombs in the Paris area in the past five years.

Another group was the secret revolutionary committee whose leaders were arrested in 1937 when police found scores of large arms caches throughout France.

3 Gypsies Rob 68-Year-Old Cripple of $17

Removed, Emptied And Replaced Wallet During 'Treatment'

A gypsy trio who claimed supernatural powers yesterday took advantage of a 68-year-old cripple's maimed leg to rob him of all his available money.

Limping along Wheeler road southeast toward the home of a friend, George Allen, of 1008 Savannah street, Anacostia, D. C., was hailed by a dark-skinned woman who, with two swarthy male companions, drew up alongside in a large sedan.

The woman asked Allen directions to a nearby address to which, she said, the three "healers" were on their way.

Questioning him about his injury, the woman offered to demonstrate her healing powers to Allen, a former Naval Research Laboratory employe. During the "treatment," she ordered him to turn around. This gave the two men an opportunity to pick his pocket, and so deft was the theft that $17 was removed from his wallet and the billfold returned to his pocket without his knowledge. He discovered the theft on his return home—still limping.

Climax of the program will come with several thousand dollars worth of loud noise and multicolored flame, a pyrotechnic display as elaborate as any in the country.

The Weather Bureau last night was unable to promise full co-operation, however, predicting overcast skies with showers and thunderstorms due during the afternoon and night.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, will give the chief address at a meeting of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, to be held at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Old Engine House, Nineteenth and H streets northwest. John B. Dickman, sr., will read the Declaration of Independence.

The Capital View Citizens Association will hold an all-day Fourth of July celebration at Fifty-third and Ames streets northeast. The program includes games, music by the Elks Band and Marching Club, of Columbia Lodge 85, and a fashion show. A fireworks display will be given after dark.

All retail stores will be closed tomorrow, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association announced. A majority will be open today, though many are closing at 4 p. m.

Third Lanzetti Brother Killed In Gang Warfare

Philadelphia, July 2 (AP).—Links between six unsolved gangland shootings in the last 11 months was sought by police tonight.

Latest victim was Willie Lanzetti, 38, found yesterday doubled up in two burlap bags on an estate in the exclusive "main line" residential section of Philadelphia.

A search was begun for Louis (Fats) Del Rossi, pal and bodyguard of the murdered Willie. Detectives not only want to know what he knows about the shooting of Willie—but whether he may have met the same fate.

The murders, reminiscent of prohibition days, began last November 21. Control of the white slave and numbers rackets, investigators believe, is the hub of the warfare.

Willie Lanzetti was one of six brothers who have been connected with crime here for years, and was the third to die. Leo was shot in 1925, Pius on New Year's Eve, 1936. Two of the others are presently at liberty, the third in prison.

Government Denies Rumors of Futile Revolt in Bolivia

Salta, Argentina, July 2 (U.P.).—Reports of an unsuccessful subversive attempt against the Bolivian government by mining interests reached towns along the Bolivian frontier today, and were denied by the government.

The rumors said that President German Busch, backed by the Bolivian army, had taken stern measures to suppress the attempt against the government, which developed in La Paz early Saturday.

The reports were denied flatly by the government which refused comment on the arrest Saturday of Mauricio Hochschild, mining executive, reportedly in connection with an attempt to organize opposition to the recent decree which in effect nationalized the tin mining industry.

2 Bandits Battle Over Victim Till He Blows Whistle

Los Angeles, July 2 (INS).—Sol Bernstein, 35, was strolling along a lonely street today when two men accosted him.

Said one:

"You give me your money or we are going to beat you up."

Said the other:

"No, give me the dough or I'll beat you both up."

While Bernstein hesitated the two men fell upon each other with flailing fists.

The intended victim remembered he had a whistle in his pocket. He blew long and lustily. The battling bandits fled.

Three persons were injured in a head-on collision on Beaulah road, near Franconia, Fairfax County, Va. Mrs. Evelyn Foster, 26, received injuries to her arms which may prove to be fractures when X-rayed today and her husband, Austin Foster, 30, driver of one car, and Clarence Staats, 18, driver of the other car, received minor head injuries. All are from Franconia and were treated at Alexandria hospital.

Others injured in traffic accidents were Juanita Long, 14, of 721 South Glebe road, Arlington, who suffered possible concussion in a collision at Lee boulevard and Glebe road; Claude Bishop, 23, of Leonardtown, Md., ankle injuries received in a fall from his motorcycle in Leonardtown; Joseph Green, 28, colored, of Newberg, Md., who received internal injuries when struck by a hit and run driver.

Four Hurt on Park Road

Four persons were injured in a freak three-car accident on Park road northwest. According to police, a car driven by Drusie P. Henning, 41, of 3814 Eastern avenue northeast, was being pushed by a taxicab. When the motor started Henning lost control and crashed into a parked car, which in turn was forced into another parked car.

Florence Poling, 70, a passenger, of the same address, suffered head injuries and cuts and was admitted to Garfield Hospital. The driver and Barbara and Joseph Henning, aged 10 and 14, respectively, were treated for minor injuries.

Accused Slayer Hates to Be in Cell With 'Murderer'

Los Angeles, July 2 (AP).—A youth accused of killing his mother and an elderly man held in the slaying of his wife and a son faced each other in jail today.

"I don't want to sit beside that—that murderer," cried Albert Singer 67, cringing and trembling as he looked at Campbell McDonald, 25. Police said McDonald has admitted he killed his former actress-mother, Margaret Campbell, with a hammer.

Singer kept repeating over and over that he himself was "crazy." McDonald, calmly smoking a cigarette, said: "Despite opinion to the contrary, I emphatically am not insane."

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 2 (AP).—Marshall Neilan, once Hollywood's ace director, was arrested here today on a charge of passing worthless checks.

Neilan's name spelled magic for years, but it declined with the advent of the talkies and brought a confession of bankruptcy with debts of $195,000.

Worship God, Not the State, Ga. Prelate Tells Institute

Bishop O'Hara, in Vesper Sermon, Deplores Growing Tendency Toward Deification of Government

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., July 2.—The Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta, deploring "State deification" in a vesper sermon preliminary to the University of Virginia's thirteenth annual Institute of Public Affairs, said tonight that "man was not made to worship the state, but to worship God."

"The moral and religious responsibility of a citizen in a democracy was its foundation in the principles on which democracy is based—the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man," Bishop O'Hara continued.

American foreign policy and problems in Europe and the Far East will be discussed tomorrow morning in the opening sessions of the institute, and in the afternoon there will be a round table on "Foreign Policies Under Dictatorships and Democracies" under the leadership of Ernest Lindley, Washington author and columnist, and Prof. Bruce C. Hooper, of Harvard.

Hardy C. Dillard, acting director of the 1939 institute, will join with President John Lloyd Newcomb, of the university, and Col. William M. Kemper, representing Governor Price, in welcoming members and visitors tomorrow night. A reception at the Colonnade Club will follow.

Bishop O'Hara, whose subject was "The Religious and Moral Responsibility of the Individual in a Democracy," stated that while a democracy is a government of the people, for the people and by the people, it is not the people who confer authority upon those they place in office, but this authority is from God.

"Authority comes from above, not from below," he declared. "The people elect those who are to rule, but once the President, for example, has been placed in office by the voice of the people, he receives his authority to govern from God, the Supreme Ruler of the Universe. All are bound to obey that authority, not because it is expedient, but because such is the will of God."

The institute will continue for two weeks, international matters to be emphasized this week and internal affairs next week.

William T. Stone, vice president of the Foreign Policy Association, will be the first speaker tomorrow morning in Cabell Hall.

The Fourth of July program on Tuesday will be devoted to national defense, with Col. Louis A. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War and former national commander of the American Legion, together with several Army and Navy officers and economists listed as speakers.

Washington's Obligation

Washington, along with all other American cities, acquires a greater obligation to its unemployed with the enactment of the new statute reforming the WPA. It appears that the primary purpose of Congress in modifying the national relief system was to throw more responsibility for unemployment aid upon local governments. The District should be no less backward in accepting this charge than are other communities.

There is one great distinction, however, between Washington and other cities that will be confronted by the problem of adjusting their relief systems to the new WPA setup. Virtually all local governments can make their own decisions in matters of this sort. The District has to rely entirely upon Congress for local relief funds as well as aid through the WPA.

Fortunately, the local appropriations bill now deadlocked in conference committee carries funds for public improvements that may be used as the District's 25 per cent contribution to the cost of construction projects aided by the WPA. It also provides $189,000 for sponsor contributions on nonconstruction projects. So it appears that WPA undertakings in Washington will be able to go forward without difficulty, if this measure is finally passed.

But curtailment of WPA activities in response to the smaller appropriation voted by Congress will mean a more acute problem for the District's Public Assistance Division. That agency should be prepared to help families of the 900 WPA workers who are being released, if they are unable to find employment. But under the bill to which the House is giving such determined support the PAD would be allowed virtually nothing to spend for this group or for other destitute families fortunate enough, or unfortunate enough, to include a breadwinner. Provision is made for only the unemployables.

Now that Congress has succeeded in shifting a larger degree of responsibility for relief of unemployment to local communities it cannot reasonably deny to Washington the means of meeting this greater obligation. There was an acute need for aid to families of jobless men who are able to work, even before economies in the WPA were ordered. Now greater leeway for the PAD in meeting this problem seems to be imperative. Acceptance of the larger relief fund approved by the Senate appears to be the only way of preventing acute distress among the unemployed in the Nation's Capital.

What Is Life?

The distinguished biologists who are assembled at Palo Alto for the Centennial Cell Symposium chose an appropriate moment to expound their findings as to the nature of life. Of course, any scientist who has reason to speculate on the elusive dividing line between living and inanimate things can attract an audience at any time. But it seems particularly considerate of these students of cells and cytoplasm to discuss this intangible something called life at a time when so many holiday excursionists are in danger of losing it.

From reports reaching this side of the continent, however, it must be admitted that the biologists at Palo Alto have not yet turned any dazzling floodlights upon the greatest of all mysteries.

There seems to be substantial agreement with the statement of Dr. Edwin G. Conklin, of Princeton, that "life is not found in atoms or molecules or genes as such, but in organization." Evidence to sustain that conclusion was offered by Dr. Robert Chambers, of New York University. But this learned "father of microdissection" also went on to admit that the organization of matter into life-giving relationships is a phenomenon "about which we know nothing at present, because the moment we attack the cell to find what is there the organization decomposes into its elements, which in themselves are non-living."

Something has been accomplished if the biologists have merely succeeded in defining their problem. If life is to be found in the interaction of cells, in their organization rather than in their physical structure, this field of research has been constructively narrowed. But is it not also possible, as hinted by Dr. Chambers, that the biologists have traced the mystery of life beyond the boundaries of their own field?

Does science have any instruments by which it can measure or determine the nature of that organizing force which makes a group of cells function as a living organism? What is the difference between this inscrutable life-giving organization and the "spirit" of which religion teaches? At any rate, it can be said that the biologists at Palo Alto have raised some fascinating questions.

Deficits Ahead

The Treasury closed its books for the fiscal year 1939 with a deficit of $3,600,000,000, the third largest of any peacetime year and the ninth in an unbroken succession of deficits. With another huge deficit in prospect for the new fiscal year, one can only wonder how long the Government's credit will stand up under the strain of a rapidly mounting public debt.

The prospect of attaining budgetary balance seems more remote at present than at any time since the Roosevelt Administration came into power. In the early years of depression, just before and immediately after Mr. Roosevelt assumed office, Government receipts were abnormally low. It then seemed reasonable to hope that as business improved, tax collections would increase and the task of balancing the budget would be much easier.

But as revenues began to rise, spending for relief, for industrial pump-priming, for veterans' bonus payments and other purposes mounted even faster, with the result that deficits also grew. Official hopes of achieving a balanced budget persisted, however, and short-lived efforts to turn the spending tide led to a pronounced shrinkage of the deficit for 1938.

With the goal of a balanced budget almost in sight, the 1937-38 business recession brought renewed demands for Government pump-priming. Spending was again speeded up, in the hope of providing a stimulus for lagging industrial activities. The result is reflected in a record peace-time outlay of $9,200,000,000 for the fiscal year just ended.

Obviously it is futile to talk about budget balancing so long as the spending advocates in official circles and in Congress are in the ascendant. For to balance the budget drastic retrenchment is imperative. The only alternative would be to raise new taxes to cover recurrent deficits. There is not the slightest indication that Congress will consider that solution, because of the burdensomeness of existing taxes.

The only way to call a halt to the dangerous prodigality which is causing the Federal debt to rise with amazing rapidity is to convince Congress and the country that a continuance of deficit financing will lead inevitably to national bankruptcy. Unfortunately, fear of such a disaster has been allayed by the ease with which the Treasury has been able to borrow to meet uncovered outlays. Moreover, there are numerous persuasive advocates of spending for prosperity who are ready to prove that a large public debt is a national blessing, a symbol of affluence. Others, who do not go that far, sincerely believe that the Government could pile up indebtedness for an indefinite period without endangering the Nation's economic and financial structure.

Even the skeptic is lulled into a feeling of security by the smooth working of the Treasury's financing machinery and the readiness with which Government obligations are taken by banks, investment institutions and individuals.

It is well to remember that investment support for Government bond issues rests ultimately upon confidence in the stability of the Government's credit. However efficient the mechanism for marketing Government bonds, however assured investment outlets may seem to be, trouble would speedily develop if the public came to believe that borrowing had passed safe limits. Just what specific incident might occur to start a flight away from Government bonds is anybody's guess. But we cannot afford to take chances of any such catastrophe occurring.

Bootlegging Cigarettes

Anticipating a 3-cent rise in the price of a package of cigarettes, residents of New York City are said to be making strenuous efforts to learn how to "roll their own" or to have their supplies mailed or brought to them from nearby New Jersey.

The price advance in question is due to the imposition of a 2-cent State tax and 1-cent city tax upon packaged cigarettes. With these charges added to the Federal levy on cigarettes, the smoker should feel the pride of a public benefactor making substantial contributions to the upkeep of government. But instead of taking this public-spirited attitude, New Yorkers are employing all their ingenuity to evade the taxes which distributors seek to shift to them in the form of price increases.

By the time the first furor of excitement dies down, it is more than likely that the enthusiasm of the amateur cigarette makers will have waned. Office boys and friends from more favored communities will grow tired of making special deliveries of cigarettes. The man who is accustomed to buy at retail will not find it easy to change his habits and order cigarettes in larger quantities for mail delivery. However, in one way or another, a good deal of business will be lost to New York distributors as a result of the tax, and revenue results may prove disappointing.

Already there is talk of the best way in which to circumvent "bootlegging" of cigarettes across State lines. Some Southern States, it is pointed out, require travelers bringing in more than two packages of cigarettes to buy State stamps for them. The mere suggestion that such a system could be applied in the case of New York is ludicrous.

It serves, however, to emphasize the unsuitability of local excise taxes levied upon easily transportable articles of mass consumption. Liquor and tobacco are admirably adapted to serve as sources of Federal revenue. For many years the Federal Government has obtained substantial sums from its excise taxes on these commodities. When such Federal levies are duplicated by local taxes, however, the result is a veritable challenge to the public to circumvent the tax collector.

And Still We Buy

When the monetary bill was sent to conference it carried a Senate amendment discontinuing the purchase of foreign silver. That provision was deleted by the conference committee. As a result, the silver purchase program, authorized by permanent legislation, will go on, regardless of the ultimate fate of the monetary bill. That is a keen disappointment to those who had hoped Congress would put a stop to the acquisition of foreign silver, which constitutes the preponderant part of all Treasury silver purchases.

Although these foreign purchases of silver are financed by the issuance of silver certificates and hence entail no drain on Treasury funds, they have most undesirable effects upon our national economy. We are paying artificially high prices for silver supplies which we do not need and have to store in specially built vaults at considerable cost. In exchange for this useless metal, foreigners acquire funds with which to buy valuable goods from us. Clearly we get the bad end of the bargain.

As a matter of fact, the foreign silver purchase plan ceased some time ago to have any real significance as a monetary measure. Today it is primarily regarded as a device for bestowing benefits in rather undiscriminating fashion upon nations whose good will we desire to cultivate as well as some countries toward which we feel none too friendly.

Japan, for instance, has profited by calling in Manchurian silver and selling it to the United States Treasury. Mexico, the chief beneficiary of the silver purchase plan, has rewarded our generous conduct by confiscating American-owned properties and cutting down imports from this country. China, after being forced off the silver standard by our price-boosting silver purchases, has found compensation in sales of demonetized silver to our Government. Canada is another country that has benefited by our silver purchases.

Of course the buying operations of the Treasury have stimulated world production of silver by raising world prices far above the levels that would prevail under more normal conditions. The silver purchase plan has also made possible a certain amount of foreign trade that would not be carried on if we refused to take superfluous silver in exchange for useful goods.

In short, we have aroused hopes and created expectations that are doomed to disappointment whenever we quit boosting silver prices for the benefit of the world at large. That is unfortunate, of course, but it does not constitute a valid argument for clinging to a discredited policy. However painful the adjustments resulting from a discontinuance of foreign silver buying may be, they must be faced sometime. The longer we delay, the more difficult it will be to bring about a return to normal conditions.

Moreover, our present price-raising policy is self-defeating. Instead of restoring the prestige of silver, it actually discourages its utilization both for monetary and for commercial purposes.

Another thing we've never been able to find out is who is the Grover Whalen of the San Francisco Fair.

There are many and continual complaints about the weather, but not nearly so many as there would be if the Government regulated it.

Remember the good old days when everyone was afraid the Government would go broke messing around with Muscle Shoals?

"This country will never have another depression," declares a New Dealer. Please, mister, don't tell us this one is going to last forever!

The Hotter The Tooter

From the Pathfinder.

Peter-Piperisms are alliterative sentences containing many words beginning with the same letter—like the famous old "Peter Piper picked a peck of peppers . . . " Many social groups like to try their tongues on such twisters. So the next time anyone starts the company off on tongue-twisters, have them try this one:

If a Hottentot tot taught a Hottentot tot to talk e'er the tot could totter, ought the Hottentot tot be taught to say aught, or naught, or what ought to be taught her? If to hoot and toot a Hottentot tot be taught by a Hottentot tutor, should the tutor get hot if the Hottentot tot hoot and toot at the Hottentot tutor?

What, Propaganda

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I generally never read your "In Hollywood" column by Hedda Hopper, but in The Post of June 30 I just happened to notice a statement made by this writer.

She mentions the "20 top-money pictures of all time" and then mentions "that there was practically no propaganda in the lot" and "they didn't sing the Star-Spangled Banner once." Since when is singing the Star-Spangled Banner called propaganda; when I went to school it was called patriotism and love of country. Perhaps Miss Hopper would rather have the movies have people singing the Horst Wessel or the Internationale?

If singing the Star-Spangled Banner is propaganda let's have more propaganda; and such a statement as made by Miss Hopper shows just how badly we need it. And incidentally, when the great majority of those 20 pictures which she mentioned were made and exhibited it was not necessary to have people sing their own national anthem, but since then foreign isms and battle cries have been pushed into this country, and it is just about time that people were re-taught the words of the Star-Spangled Banner, and what it represents.

Something For Nothing

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Don't you think it is strange that people never change, but always look for something free in this great land of liberty? The poor old folks now have a scheme to make their lives as smooth as cream, and get enough from the U. S. A. so it will be easy for them to pay for many things they might desire—from vacation to some new attire.

It even seems that some of them would have to figure out where to spend all the "dough," once it's brought about! But their great leader has it figured, and they needn't worry much; just pay their dues—Uncle won't refuse such a modest "touch."

As I say, it's very strange that such people never change, but always look for something fine and free. Maybe, sir, you could explain and relieve my head of much great pain, thinking what our taxes then would be! SIJIM.

The Group Health Association

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: James Rorty's recently published "American Medicine Mobilizes" (W. W. Norton) is suggested as required reading for those interested in the tribulations and future of Group Health Association, Inc., of Washington. Rorty at the same time indicts organized medicine for its opposition to experimentation in new forms of medical care, summarizes the facts presented at the National Health Conference in 1938 as well as the program there evolved and the opposition to that program, and tried to prophesy what lies ahead.

In discussing group health specifically Rorty says that it was especially dangerous to the entrenched vested interests of those dominating organized medicine for three reasons: (1) Because it is a consumer co-operative; (2) because the group organization of physicians makes for efficiency and economy and an application of the insurance method of prepayment; (3) (in his own words) "The Group Health Association was particularly dangerous because it had an ideal potential membership of some 115,912 Government employes and their families resident in and around Washington whose employment was relatively secure and whose capacity for co-operative organization was relatively high."

Today the important thing is whether we can make James Rorty's prediction come true or not. Group health as contrasted with the Mayo Clinic and, in fact, with most other group medical organizations in the land, is a consumer co-operative. Mayo Clinic is a producer co-operative. The doctors usually get together and form the group.

The Group Health Association was formed by the ultimate consumers of medical care. They got together for their own benefit. It is also true, as Mayo Clinic has shown, that group medical practice makes for economy and efficiency. All the required diagnosticians, general practitioners, surgeons and medical specialists work together as a team. Of course you do not get the precise physician of your choice at Mayo Clinic, but you do get the attention of the thoroughly competent physicians best fitted to treat your particular case. The saving in overhead, equipment and avoidance of duplication of effort is enormous.

A surgeon in private practice may do an operation a day; he may perform but one every 2 or 3 days or every week. Naturally his overhead is high and his fees must be high. If, however, he belongs to a group, he can be paid a very good yearly salary about which he does not have to worry, and he can conveniently do 5 or 6 operations a day if necessary. His efficiency is greater because he does more work, his income is steadier, and the cost to the patient can be decreased tremendously. Hence a medical consumer co-operative can, as Dr. Hugh Cabot says, give a better article of service for a greatly reduced price.

But is Group Health dangerous to organized medicine today because it threatens to grow enormously? Is it at all likely to get the hundred thousand or more patients Rorty mentions? Unfortunately it is doing no such thing. It owes the American Medical Association a great debt for giving it a tremendous amount of free advertising. It has had plenty of publicity. Surely there is no one in Washington or vicinity who has failed to hear about it. But what? It drags along in the red. Its membership is all but stationary. Its appeal as a consumer co-operative seems very limited in this city where the "capacity for co-operative organization is relatively high," according to Rorty. It is faced with the possibility of failure not because of sinister forces from without. The American Medical Association is not forcing it to the wall. It will be forced to the wall, if at all, by weakness from within, by failure of the membership to sell the idea to sufficient prospects to keep it going.

It actually seems as if neither physicians nor prospective patients, particularly the latter, are mentally conditioned to accept the operations of a medical co-operative, and to give it the confidence and financial support it requires for full success. If Group Health Association fails we shall have only ourselves to blame. The medical societies will not have licked us. We shall have licked ourselves. We shall have proved too reactionary and too stupid to have made full use of our medical opportunities.

Security And Peace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been writing letters to The Post for about 20 years, most of them relative to more or less profound questions, but none of which ever evoked an answer, remark or challenge. Of course, I concluded that any remark or criticism on the part of readers necessitated a deeper study of subjects discussed in those letters, and no one, apparently cared to give his valuable time for earning more money and getting more pleasure out of life, just to help improve the condition of the Nation or of humanity.

And right at this time, when Mr. Nover, of The Post, writes of "the promises kept, as the essential basis of civilization," I am reminded of a very significant incident which happened about six months before the World War broke out, and which as news appeared in the papers, and was forgotten.

It was the case of a Protestant minister from Boston, who, with his only daughter, 9 years of age, had fled to Japan for refuge from legal or other phases of persecution. Efforts had been made to deceive the Japanese government and bring him back, but such efforts had failed, and he was given a position of teacher in Japanese schools.

The letter of gratitude written by the minister's daughter, to the Mikado, for the security of her father's life, liberty and happiness was also republished in the New York World. Have any "vindicators" given due consideration to that incident—a native American to have to go to Japan to live in peace?

This brings us to the current question, peace. Have any of your readers reasoned out the fact that peace is merely the phenomenon dependent on a feeling of security? The very day I arrived in Paris, as a young man, some 35 years ago, I observed that Frenchmen had no peace. Everywhere I could notice suspicion and fear of Germans, just as most of us around here feel about kidnapers, careless drivers, irresponsible boys with rifles in our back alleys. Security must be our goal, which is dependent on culture. C. P.

Self-Liquidating

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Millions of conservative Americans, who still hold the opinion that we cannot squander our way out of financial trouble, are wondering how much longer President Roosevelt and his New Dealers will be permitted to gamble with the taxpayers' money.

Mr. Roosevelt's recent request for an additional four billion is camouflaged by the term "self-liquidating projects" which, when analyzed, is seen to be misleading and more or less meaningless.

Hospitals, among other things, are included in these self-liquidating projects. Since when have hospitals been self-liquidating? According to Representative Bruce Barton, there are none. In any case they are rarer than Dodo birds.

The Tempter's Voice

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why do we spend the time of hundreds of policemen in trying to stop the "numbers" game, upon the theory that the weaker elements of society must be protected against themselves, and at the same time permit silver-tongued radio announcers to tell the people how easily they can borrow $300 without any security?

All over the city there are people borrowing from Peter to pay Paul in an effort to discharge these easily contracted but high cost debts. The further they go, the more deeply they become involved. Radio announcements of that sort should be prohibited. MONITOR.

The Post Impressionist

Domesticated Muse

Whenever I hear John Kieran or Franklin P. Adams identifying fragments of verse, producing missing lines, finishing soliloquies, and otherwise playing a brisk game of poetic tag—without benefit of "Bartlett's Familiar Quotations"—I have an hysterical desire to see Mother on that board of experts. She might get the giggles; in fact, I'm sure she would. But she would not exhaust her repertoire of quotations. The business of raising four children couldn't do that.

The muse was certainly Mother's helper, and the lines she loved carried her through the routine of many a heavy day. Sleepy heads were routed, but to the music of Shakespeare's "Full many a glorious morning have I seen." Grubby clothes were scrubbed while Mother muttered darkly, "Out, damned spot!" Grubby hands were washing with Mother bemoaning that "all the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand." The same scene from "Macbeth" like as not sent us off to bed, with Mother saying in the words of the Thane's tragic lady: "To bed, to bed: there's knocking at the gate. Come, come, come, come, give me your hand. What's done cannot be undone. To bed, to bed, to bed."

Or else Mother shooed us off to a sleep that would, she promised, knit up the raveled sleeve of care. Anyone who thinks a 5-year-old has no cares never spent long hours, as I did, imprisoned in a piano crate while the boys in the neighborhood were pretending I was a maiden captured by (1), pirates, (2) Indians, (3) cowboys. What the cowboys were doing capturing maidens no one bothered to explain. In fact, they seldom even told me who had captured me. They just shoved me protesting into the piano crate, and there I sat, surrounded by a ring of shrieking desperados. After such occasions, Shakespeare was a comfort.

Most of Mother's quotations came from him and from Tennyson, Swinburne and, curiously, Alexander Pope. The acid Mr. Pope stood at Mother's shoulder when she took up the distasteful task of reprimanding a child. Anyone of us found in a lie was sure to hear, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave . . ."

But the lines from Pope that served Mother most often were these four:

"Vice is a monster of such frightful mien
That to be hated needs but to be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

The vice indicated therein changed through the years. The sin with time shifted from taking a fourth cookie to taking a fourth cocktail. Up would go Mother's eyebrows at any excess as she began, "Vice is a monster. . . ." In our impertinent teens, we developed the custom of chiming in at that point, and finishing the quotation with her, using, of course, her every inflection: The significant pause after "endure," the pronunciation of "pity" that showed the pit at our feet, and finally the dramatic and emphatic "embrace." Mother's sense of humor betrayed her then. She always giggled at the chorus, and the offense was forgotten.

We did not always know exactly what she was going to say. At times, her tag would be as unfamiliar as it was startlingly apposite. That was the case one evening when my middle sister was going out, for the fourth time, with a young man of whom Mother disapproved. She didn't like his manners. They were bad, she said; maybe they were only modern. And here he was again. Mother frowned and hurried to our bedroom where she caught my sister giving her nose a final dab. As Sis started for the door, Mother said in an intense sotto voce:

"As the husband is, the wife is:
thou art mated with a clown,
And the grossness of his nature will have weight to drag thee down."

She fairly hissed the sibilants in her warning. Tennyson was the poet of Mother's girlhood, but not, alas, ours, and Sis couldn't identify the lines. Mulling over them made her so absent-minded her escort grew sulky. She decided maybe he was a boor, and that was the end of that. It wasn't until months later that we stumbled on the quotation in "Locksley Hall."

We're far away from Mother now, but her every letter is liberally sprinkled with the words of her favorites. In her latest, she greets the news of our coming vacation visit with "And hasten, sweet, thy coming." She quotes:

"A combination and a form indeed
Where every god did seem to set his seal
To give the world assurance of a man."

And it develops that she is writing about our brother!

But letters cannot take up all her days, and I often wonder on whom or what she now showers the dactyls and trochees and iambs of her delight. The neighbors undoubtedly get their share. I can picture her smiling while the woman from upstairs wonders at the flowers Mother manages to grow in profusion in an apartment house windowbox. And what is Mother saying? Why, of course, it's Herrick:

"For well thou knowst, 'tis not th' extent

State Lottery Act

THE SENATE of the State of Illinois, which has no State income tax, has passed a lottery act whereby mul'ple awards of $5,000 each would be paid once a month out of a grab bag raised at the rate of $2.50 a ticket for the laudable purpose of eradicating slums. If the bill becomes law, Illinois will be the first State to break through an ancient prejudice against this form of gambling under government auspices, but its capital prizes, although numerous, will, nevertheless, fall short of those awarded by at least one private drawing known as the Pressroom Monthly, which operates in San Francisco.

The Pressroom Monthly, in its recent circulars claims to have paid a capital prize of $7,000 in May and an $8,000 capital prize in June, and secondary prizes of five, three, two and one thousand dollars in both of these months, followed, in each case, by a $500 prize and by many units of $100, $50 and $25, amounting to $16,000.

How Pressroom Lottery Operates

THE TOTAL distribution was more than $35,000 a month, which is not small money for an independent concern doing business at a dollar a ticket and doing it more or less confidentially, subject, no doubt, to the perils and exactions which usually beset a man who has his office behind a post.

The tickets have an appearance of dignity and sincerity, being printed on watermarked stock and serially numbered, and the communications which covered these specimens and the circulars in the mail strongly suggest that the Pressroom Monthly is an institution of some standing—although, perhaps, not legal standing—in San Francisco.

Despite my efforts to proceed warily in the discussion of the many lotteries which, to my own diminishing surprise, already exist in this country, I have evoked a note from H. S. Ashcroft, secretary of Philipsburg, Pa., Lodge No. 1173 of the B. P. O. E., who desires to say that his lodge never has run a lottery. If his lodge did run one that would be an amiable and philanthropic discretion at worst in the State of Pennsylvania, where such drawings abound with the sanction of public opinion and the toleration of local authorities, but it is due the Philipsburg Elks that this confusion be corrected.

Prestige Of Lodges Is Used in Some

THE CIRCULARS to which I referred in a previous number of these dispatches calls attention to a distribution known as the Elks' Kiddie Sweep under the motto, "In Uplifting, Get Underneath with a Dime for a Kiddie Ticket," and bears an elk's head at the top, but the name Philipsburg is spelled with two "l's." The lodge number, which is given, for reasons of discretion will not be repeated here.

This one claims to pay a capital prize of $1,000 and total awards of $3,000 and is only one of many operating in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and California, mostly under the names of fraternal and veterans' organizations.

The grand lodge, if such there be, of the Elks, might be interested to know that several of its subordinate lodges are identified by name and number with local lotteries, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, too, are advised that the prestige of their insignia and name are employed in connection with drawings that could be contrary to law, if not public sentiment.

State Income Tax More Appropriate

THERE ARE THREE weekly sweeps in San Francisco, one paying $1,800 as the capital prize, the others $1,000 each, in addition to many secondary and consolation prizes ranging from $900 down to $10, and another, running twice a month, with a $1,000 top. In fact, $1,000 seems to be the standard capital prize, and the extent of the popular interest may be estimated when it is considered that in some cases tickets sell for as little as a dime or tnree for a quarter. This patronage, at a dime a chance, doubtless represents poverty, but the dollar chances denote enthusiasm for the lottery traffic among those who have regular relations with the payrolls.

The adoption of a lottery in Illinois, or any other State which now takes a regular cut out of every dollar wagered through pari-mutuels, would call for no sacrifice of principle. But Illinois has a high-income group comparable to New York's, and a State income tax would seem a more appropriate method of raising money to eradicate hovels.

Two U. S. Clippers Arrive at Lisbon Within 3 Hours

Lisbon, July 2 (AP).—The American flying boats Dixie Clipper and Transatlantic alighted here today at 9:30 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. (E. S. T.), respectively. The former is en route to the United States to complete the first regular transatlantic round trip with paying passengers and the latter on a survey flight from New York.

The Dixie Clipper, Pan American Airways flying boat, left Marseille at 9:20 a. m. (3:20 a. m. E. S. T.) with 12 passengers aboard.

The Transatlantic, American Export Airlines plane, had left Horta at 2:15 a. m. E. S. T.

Light on Environment vs. Heredity

Tiny Worms Changed By Conditions, Says Johns Hopkins Savant

By the Associated Press.

Palo Alto, Calif., July 2.—New evidence indicating that environment can influence heredity was reported today at a gathering of some of the world's foremost biologists.

Dr. Herbert Spencer Jennings, zoologist and geneticist of Johns Hopkins University, told how tiny animals, grown under scientific manipulation, became different from their ancestors. The cultivated animals became able to live and reproduce their kind in surroundings which would have poisoned their forebears.

Reporting experiments in another field, Dr. Charles Manning Child, of the University of Chicago and Stanford University, described other small living things which "remodeled" themselves when subjected to a complicated process that interferred with their normal growth.

Environment Changes Paramecia

Dr. Richard Goldschmidt, stanch opponent of the widely accepted theory that heredity is governed by extremely small particles called genes, suggested instead that hereditary changes are caused by the rearrangement of invisible spheres of influence within the chromosome, which is supposed to be a chain-like molecule within the egg cell.

All three reports were made at Stanford University's symposium on the cell and protoplasm. Dr. Goldschmidt was unable to be present and his paper was read by Dr. C. V. Taylor, Stanford biologist.

Dr. Jennings found that environment could change paramecia, which are single-celled animals, so that they could resist a chemical which would poison an "unconditioned" individual of their kind.

Flatworm Type Changed

Whether environment has a direct bearing on heredity is one of the commonest subjects of argument in biological science. Dr. Jennings expressed belief that the cultivated paramecia had demonstrated "the (hereditary) transmission of a conditioned tolerance and shows that environment does affect hereditary characters."

Dr. Child changed the physical aspect of planaria, a species of the flatworm, as well as other life forms, by a complicated process called "differential inhibition."

It is based on the finding that the matter in a living cell can be made to change its nature by stimulation or excitation, and that the change can be controlled by outside factors, particularly by inhibiting or restricting some portion of the change induced.

Nerve Masses, Eyes Joined

The ordinary planarian is a flat, triangle-shaped creature with the head at one corner. On each side back of the head it has a tiny mass of nerve-like substance, and behind these are eye spots on each side. There is a sensory lobe at each side of the triangle's base.

Controlling the change resulting from stimulation, Dr. Child observed that the nerve masses and the eyes gradually moved inward, toward each other, until they finally joined. The sensory lobes to right and left moved forward.

Extreme inhibition resulted in the development of a creature with no outward evidence of an eye, and finally in an animal in which the head disappeared. He said, however, the inhibitions did not specifically eliminate any particular organs but eliminated "regions" in which the organs happened to be.

Shape of Head Changed

This graduated series of head form changes was noted in the embryos of fish, amphibia and chicks, causing organs on the side of the head to move toward the center line until they finally came together or failed to appear.

Planarians returned to normal conditions tended to continue their development more along their natural lines, Dr. Child said, producing eye spots at the sides and nerve centers in their usual locations. However, the head developed a long trunk-like affair having sensory and motor qualities.

The changed portions of its anatomy became more resistant to things that ordinarily would kill planarians. In the unaltered animal, Dr. Child said, death started at the head and moved downward along the body.

Gene Theory Assailed

When the altered planarians were subjected to poisons that ordinarily would slowly kill their uncultivated relatives, the death process started at the tail. But in some cases this death march ended at the point where the new animal had begun to grow "conditioned" tissue.

The forward portion continued to live indefinitely and finally developed a new posterior end which could remain alive in the same environment that killed the original portion.

Dr. Goldschmidt, authority on genetics, argued that the gene theory was wrong, because hereditary changes could occur in processes by which their influence could be counted out.

Chromosome Unit of Heredity

He said the chromosome, a unit of the cell widely regarded as the bearer of genes, or separate particles, should be considered the unit of heredity, because changes could be initiated by a reshifting of the pattern of the chromosome arrangement or by an alteration of the arrangement of matter within a chromosome.

Under this hypothesis the heredity factor within the chromosome would be an integral part of the chromosome capable of certain independent action, but would not be a wholly independent particle.

the dictatorship set up by Huey Long.

State and Federal grand juries, themselves trying to untangle the complex situation and get at facts behind charges of WPA corruption at the university, were in recess over the holidays, during which Federal investigators are delving into Smith's income tax accounts in an effort to determine if Federal statutes were violated.

Smith and his wife were held under guard in a Brockville hotel today.

Brockville authorities said Dr. and Mrs. Smith were willing to waive extradition, and that they would not be arraigned formally, but would be required merely to sign a waiver of immunity.

James N. Nicholson, of the Buffalo office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, conferred with Smith tonight.

Smith was said to be maintaining a stoical calm. Police said, however, that Mrs. Smith was on the verge of hysteria.

Brockville Police Chief W. F. Young said Dr. Smith told him he and his wife came to Charleston Lake, nearby resort, to find a quiet place so they "could write."

He said Dr. Smith related his first knowledge that he was wanted on embezzlement charges came yesterday afternoon when he was reading a Toronto newspaper. He telephoned Young, immediately offering to give himself up.

"Nearly an hour later Constable Ronald Young was patrolling the city when he saw a car, bearing a Michigan license, for which we were on the lookout. When the constable halted the car Dr. Smith identified himself and said he was en route to my office.

"Dr. Smith had identifying papers and around $300 cash on his person."

Young said the Smiths recounted that they left Baton Rouge June 24 and went to Detroit by bus and purchased a sedan in suburban Dearborn in Mrs. Smith's name.

Crossing the international border Tuesday at Windsor, the couple said they gave their correct names to Canadian immigration authorities.

Choppy Seas Delay Raising of Squalus

Portsmouth, N. Y., July 2 (AP).—Choppy seas, whipped up by a 30-mile-an-hour northwest wind, temporarily interrupted today the U. S. Navy's plan to begin lowering pontoons for the first stage in raising the sunken submarine Squalus and its 26 dead.

Before heavy weather interfered, divers had succeeded in attaching a tow line which will be used to drag the submersible shoreward after she is raised to various stages on pontoons.

Allies May Send Ships to Gdynia

Warsaw, July 2 (AP).—Political sources heard reports tonight that a new joint British-French-Polish diplomatic move was being planned possibly to give Danzig a direct warning if reports of military preparations in the free city continue.

Poland kept in close contact with both France and Britain over developments in the belief that a "free corps" is being organized and German military equipment imported into the free city.

The Cracow newspaper Illustrowany Kurjer reported that Britain and France were considering sending warships to Gdynia, Polish port on the Baltic.

Pay to Be Raised $239 on Average; Governors Report

Chicago, July 2 (AP).—The average annual salary for Governors will be boosted from $7,916 to $8,155 next year, the Council of State Governments announced today after a survey of the 48 States.

The salary of Louisiana's chief executive will be raised from $7,500 to $12,000 in 1940, the council reported, while the Governor's salary in Kentucky will be increased from $6,500 to $10,000 and in West Virginia from $8,000 to $10,000.

The council's survey showed the average Governor was 51 years old, a lawyer by profession and the father of three children.

Sailors Mutiny On Refugee Ship

Jerusalem, July 2 (U.P.).—Two British warships last night responded to S. O. S. messages from the Greek ship Panthas, anchored outside Palestine territorial waters with nearly 300 illegal Jewish immigrants aboard, and found that the crew had mutinied.

The Greek sailors refused to land the immigrants and risk imprisonment and confiscation of the ship. The Panthas, which flew the flag of Panama, was escorted to Haifa.

Haifa, Palestine, July 2 (AP).—The British destroyer Ivanhoe seized the small Greek steamer Laspertos carrying 400 refugees today after the ship disregarded a warning not to enter territorial waters of the Holy Land.

Japanese Attack On Mongolian Border

Hsinking, Manchukuo (Monday), July 3.—New fighting was reported today on the frontier between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia, where Japanese and Soviet forces have been engaged in sporadic border warfare since May 11.

The Kwantung army, Japan's northern force on the Asiatic mainland, announced that an offensive had been launched against Soviet-Mongol positions along the Khalka River, southeast of Lake Bor.

Economic Outlook

By Ernest K. Lindley

Mild Recovery Seen

THE ECONOMISTS, who seldom agree and often fight each other with the fury of fanatical religious sects, are in remarkable accord on the business outlook for the next six months.

Their consensus is that business conditions will improve mildly. As usual there is an "if." The "if" in this instance is a general war in Europe, which doesn't seem very remote at the present time. But there is nothing that the economists can do about it.

The accord on the business outlook is all the more striking because it is not confined to economists in the Government. Newsweek has just published the results of a confidential poll of 20 well-known economists. Eight are in the Government, but they are of several different varieties from left-wing New Deal to orthodox. Ten are in private industry and finance, and two are connected with organized labor.

Each was asked to guess where the Federal Reserve Board Index of Industrial Production (seasonally adjusted) would stand in (a) September and (b) December. It is now around 98. The average of all 20 forecasts was 99.4 in September, and 102.8 in December. It was 104 last December but slid off to 92 in April. In 1937 it got up to 118 for several months, which was only one point short of the average for all of 1929.

Federal Economists Are Less Optimistic

IN THEIR GUESSES concerning September, the eight Government economists, on the average, were only one point removed from the ten business economists. Curiously, the Government economists were the less optimistic.

In their guesses concerning December the Government economists, on the average, were two-tenths of one point less hopeful than the business economists. The two labor economists were the most hopeful about both September and December.

The range between the lowest and highest guesses was 15 points, less than usual in such surveys—ranging from 93 to 108 for September and from 97 to 112 for December. But none of the 20 thought the second half of the year would be worse than the first half, and none anticipated anything that could be called a boom.

The 20 economists may all be wrong. Most of those in the Government were wrong in their forecasts made six months ahead about the first half of this year. The spring recovery did not arrive according to schedule—which they blamed partly on the coal strike, but chiefly on the European crisis growing out of the seizure of Bohemia-Moravia.

Stimulation Possible In Event Of War

A PERIODIC European crisis has now come to be a normal affair, and I imagine most of the economists took that into account in making their forecasts for the next six months. A general war, of course, would be another matter. It is generally believed that the first shock would be disturbing to business, but that in time we would feel the stimulating effect of orders for war materials.

The depressing thing about the economists' forecasts is that the greatest gain foreseen by the most cheerful of the 20 would not reduce the unemployment rolls much, if any, below 9,000,000 by the end of the year. Concerning next spring it is permissible to hope for a further gain. But anything approaching full employment—which would mean a reading of between 135 and 150 on the Federal Reserve Index—remains little more than a dream.

The Newsweek survey indicates how little the New Deal economists expect from the present spending-lending-investment program. Their greater anxiety from a political viewpoint is with the year 1940, rather than with the last half of 1939. Some of them are hopeful that by the spring and summer of 1940 they can begin to get some results through the new program of "self-liquidating" projects. But the whole amount of Federal spending, lending, and investment now in sight is far short of that which the New Deal economists believe to be necessary to achieve full recovery.

Slight Improvement Is Most Expected

MEANWHILE various "deterrents" to private business have been removed, especially by the revision of corporation taxes and the decision to put off an increase in the social security taxes. The Administration wants to encourage private credit to flow into small business enterprises by setting up a loan-insurance system.

With all this smoothing of the way and all the pushing from Government expenditures, the most that the economists expect during the next six months is a slight improvement. The conservatives offer no alternative except some mumblings about balancing the budget when their representatives in Congress are not voting to increase it.

We seem to be drifting close to the point when somebody, and everybody, will have to stop haggling and shadow-boxing, acknowledge that our troubles are more deep-seated than we thought, and act with becoming boldness.

Books And Things

By Isabel Patterson

Doings Down East

REGIONAL books are becoming a staple form of publication, naturally enough. This is a big country, with plenty of local variations to furnish material. "Maine Summer," by Edwin Valentine Mitchell (Coward-McCann, $2.50), is one of the pleasantest and most distinguished offerings of this type we have had for some time.

Aside from their natural beauty, the Northern Atlantic States have the charm of contrast from the exotic elements introduced into an austere type of culture by the world trade which the Yankee skippers pursued. In Maine the mixture was peculiarly striking. The terrain is austerly magnificent, the climate none too gentle. "The great rivers eating their way out of the land and the sea biting deeply into it have left a series of long, dark-green peninsulas, many with bold headlands, and an infinity of islands." The mountains march down to the sea. The tall pines once held possession, and tracts of the timber remain. "Sweeps of sea and sky give a sense of enormous space" and the air is bracing with salty and balsamic odors.

YET the ARCHITECTURE of the region is either homely or classical. In the antique shops, one may find stout iron-clamped sea chests next to delicately carved amber and ivory, "queer shells and barbaric weapons, and the most singular and delightful bird cages," brought home from the far corners of the earth by Maine seafaring men as gifts to their highly respctable wives and families. And a figure of the Angel Gabriel used to be the most popular form of weathervane for Maine houses. There were also weathervane ships, gulls, whales, swordfish—and horses. For Maine was a horse-breeding State, famous for its trotting stock. Many a Maine sailor was a farmer when ashore, "with seagulls following the wake of his plow." The phrase "seagoing hack" might have originated from an extraordinary and fatal accident which is said to have occurred in Maine. Two Portland hackmen were hired to take some passengers out to see Portland Head Light. They ventured too near the shore: "A great wave suddenly leapt up and swept them away." Drivers and passengers perished. Another extraordinary fatality was that which befell a school teacher, who sat reading a book on the rocks of the Isle of Shoals. A wave rose and engulfed her, in her neat bonnet and shawl.

THE PEOPLE of Maine move their houses about casually, as if emulating the elements. They will even transport a house from island to island if they have a mind to. One historic house was furnished as a refuge for Marie Antoinette, so legend says, by a sea captain who had planned to rescue the imprisoned queen. He failed, but the furniture he had brought to enable her to feel at home was there waiting. And the house still exists, but not on its original site. It was moved, complete, to a new spot.

"The Maine poets," Mr. Mitchell remarks, "seem to have been very lucky in their environment. Edna St. Vincent Millay was born at Rockland and lived there and at Union and Camden . . . Her sustained and powerful lyric, 'Renascence,' a poem of mystical experience that is a masterpiece, must have been helped by her surroundings. Camden is a beautiful town. The town lies at the foot of the mountains, looking over the water. The 'three long mountains and a wood' and the 'three islands in a bay' are there for any one to see. It would require a long search to find so lovely a place for a poet's childhood."

THE MAINE FOLKS become weatherwise. Mr. Mitchell overheard one woman say to another encountered in a bookshop: "Are you budgeting for the fog, too?" And a remarkable testimony to the enduring vitality of the inhabitants may be read indirectly in the request of another customer, a lady who wanted a book for her father, aged 80. "Nothing to stir the emotions, please," she stipulated.

The cats of Maine are exotic, Angoras a specialty. They must have been brought from the Levant by shipmasters; some have run wild. But the "coon cats" are equally celebrated. "They are the proudest and haughtiest cats I have ever seen, and if I were buying a cat, I should want this cattiest of species . . . They have a splendid sense of their own dignity and worth, and would never dream of anything so degrading as to take the slightest interest in human beings." The author overheard some one who had stepped on a coon cat apologize to it formally.

MAINE had pirates in its time; but it was a Portland man, Commodore Preble, in command of the Constitution, who put down the Algerian pirates, leading the American naval expedition against Tripoli over a hundred years ago.

Then enchantment of islands attracts some visitors to Maine; those who can afford to do so, buy islands. One island owner, asked the reason for his isolation, answered in one word: "Relatives."

House late Friday. Overriding the President's wishes, the House decreed a mandatory embargo on munitions, in case of war, though the Administration's chief objective in opening up the neutrality issue at this session was elimination of the present mandatory embargo provisions.

More than a dozen distinct neutrality measures will confront the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when it meets Wednesday to decide on legislation to be recommended.

Seriously handicapped by the action in the House, where they had counted on a comparatively easy victory and where they had eliminated some minor provisions that had encountered opposition, Administration leaders were determined to press in the Senate for the principles of the Bloom bill on which the House acted.

With the Senate committee badly divided on the many neutrality proposals, which range from the Bloom bill to measures for outright repeal of the present legislation, there was speculation on whether the 23-member committee could get together on any bill and report it to the Senate. It was clear, however, that Administration pressure on behalf of the original Bloom bill, embodying the views advanced by Secretary of State Hull, would be emphatic.

Committee Polled

In this connection, the International News Service reported a private poll of committee members showed ten members favoring reporting some bill, preferably the Administration measure, ten favoring postponement of the issue until the next session, and three, George, o fGeorgia; Gillette, of Iowa, and Schwellenbach, of Washington, undecided.

These were listed as favoring action now:

Pittman, Nevada, chairman; Harrison, Mississippi; Wagner, New York; Connally, Texas; Thomas, Utah (he would include powers for the President and Congress to name aggressors); Murray, Montana; Pepper, Florida; Green, Rhode Island; Barkley, Kentucky, and Guffey, Pennsylvania, all Democrats.

These were said to favor delaying a decision:

Van Nuys, Indiana; Reynolds, North Carolina; Clark, Missouri, all Democrats; Borah, Idaho; Johnson, California; Capper, Kansas; Vandenberg, Michigan; White, Maine, all Republicans; La Follette, Wisconsin, Progressive; Shipstead, Minnesota, Farmer-Labor.

Restricted Legislation Expected

Opposition voiced since President Roosevelt proposed his tremendous lending program for construction of self-liquidating toll roads and similar projects, for railroad equipment advances and loans to South American countries, has brought the expectation that when the legislation is introduced it will be more restricted.

Studies have been under way in Government departments to determine how much of the program could be put under way without new legislation, with the result that the bills are not expected to be so sweeping as were Mr. Roosevelt's proposals.

Opinion was expressed in some circles on Capitol Hill yesterday that should the monetary, neutrality and social security amendments be disposed of, Congress would hardly be in the mood to remain longer for consideration of the lending proposals.

N.E.A. Report Hits Firing of Teachers

San Francisco, July 2 (AP).—Forcing the appointment of 21 of 22 school teachers discharged in Oklahoma City was the outstanding achievement in 1938 of the N. C. A. committee on tenure, said a report prepared forthe annual convention of the National Education Association, which opened here today.

The committee said "the discharge of 22 teachers was not because of their incompetency or failure to perform their duties.

"Apparently the majority of them were discharged because they were active members of the Classroom Teachers Association."

World's Fair Nudity Trial

Court.—Who are these defendants?

Prosecutor.—They are World's Fair dancers, your honor.

Court.—I thought Grover Walen said there wouldn't be any at this World's Fair.

Prosecutor.—A World's Fair is a World's Fair.

Court.—With what are these girls charged?

Prosecutor.—Giving a nude or nearly nude performance.

Court.—I assume you girls wish to deny it.

First Girl.—If you do you're crazy.

Second Girl.—All we want is a fair trial.

Court.—Do you doubt you will get it?

Second Girl.—Well, I don't see any radio hookup and the press seats are only two-thirds full.

Court.—There will be no radio broadcast of this trial.

Third Girl.—So you're prejudiced!

Prosecutor (putting a police officer on the stand).—Did you arrest these women?

Officer.—I did.

Prosecutor.—On what complaint?

Officer.—On the complaint of the managers of these girls. They said the show wasn't getting any publicity.

Court.—Do you mean to say you made arrests on a flimsy complaint like that?

Officer.—Everything I saw there was flimsy. But I demanded further evidence that this act was vulgar and I got it.

Court.—Where?

Officer.—From the publicity department.

Prosecutor.—Did you witness the performance?

Officer.—I did. It was strictly a World's Fair dance.

Prosecutor.—What do you mean by strictly a World's Fair dance? Don't they differ in different cities at different times?

Officer.—Not in the slightest.

Judge.—Aren't they more shocking at some fairs than at others?

Officer.—Yes; they are more shocking at fairs where the managers repeatedly announce nothing vulgar will be tolerated.

Fourth Dancer.—Say, do we have to stay here any longer?

Court.—Of course. This trial has just begun.

Fourth Dancer.—But it's holding up the newsreel men outside.

Court.—The newsreel men can wait. Proceed with this trial in a dignified manner.

First Dancer.—Dignified! Where does he think we come from, the British Pavilion?

(There is a loud disturbance without.)

Judge.—What's all that racket?

Prosecutor.—The court is being picketed.

Judge.—By whom?

Prosecutor.—All I know is that they're a lot of girls carrying banners that read, "This court unfair to the other World's Fair dancers. We demand to be arrested, too!"

Court (swooning).—Set 'em up in the next alley!

Pastel Gowns, White Fox Furs and Parasols in Perfect Setting at Annual Garden Party in Fairfax Home

By Elizabeth Henney.

THEIR TRIP HAS ENDED but the memory lingers on. Probably nowhere is the influence of the recent Royal British Progress more noticeable than in Washington, where pastel garden party gowns, white fox furs and even summer parasols have begun to blossom at every social event, in a flurry of Elizabethan femininity.

The annual garden party of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Richardson, given yesterday afternoon at their country estate, White House, in Fairfax, brought out the latest and best in garden party styles. The host and hostess provided a perfect setting, white columned colonial house set in a rolling lawn, with tree-shaded nooks and corners, tiny formal garden corners and the blue green gleam of still water in the swimming pool. The result would have delighted Watteau.

The hostess, who received on the grassy terrace near the house, was gowned in a navy blue dotted swiss teagown, fashioned floor length. With it she wore a white pique jacket, with a small flower design around the scalloped edges. Assisting Mrs. Richardson in welcoming their guests were her two daughters. Miss Randolph Richardson wore a floor length garden party frock of pale green organza, fashioned with a flowing skirt and trimmed with bands of narrow orchid grosgrain ribbon. Miss Phyllis Richardson, the other daughter, was gowned in a full-length garden party frock of white net over satin.

Tea Tables In Garden

Spotted here and there among the trees were large tables loaded with punch bowls, sherbet and delicacies of all varieties. Small hot beaten biscuits filled with ham, were especially in favor.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Baldwin Day Spilman and Mrs. Adeline Serre, of Warrenton. Also Mrs. George Rothwell Brown, Mrs. Rixey, Smith, Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, Mrs. Franklin Kenworthy, Mrs. Anna Wickes, Mrs. Anne Cureton, Mrs. Neitah King, Mrs. John S. Barbour, Mrs. Ewell Thornton, Mrs. A. Denny Lewis, Mrs. Lensing Sweet and Mrs. Joseph Crockett, of Alexandria.

The Baroness von Pagenhardt, gowned in an Eleanor blue crepe frock and wearing a blue trimmed white sailor hat, looked especially chic, as did Mrs. J. P. Crockett, who wore a floor length gown of romany striped chiffon. Fashioned shirtwaist style, the blouse was of white and her turban matched the stripped material of the skirt. With her was her house guest, Miss Jacqueline Smith, of Fredericksburg.

A popular corner in the garden was the one chosen by Baroness von Below. Gowned in black and white chiffon, with a hat of glossy black straw trimmed with flowers, she held court all afternoon for her numerous friends.

Also noted among guests was Mrs. Abner Drury, who wore a frock of black sheer with a white pique collar and panel down the front of the frock. With it she wore a small white hat.

Recent Debutante Among Guests

In a group of younger fry around the swimming pool were the recent debutante, Miss Harriet Dawley, who wore a maroon and white print chiffon and large leghorn hat, and her sister, Miss Gail Dawley, wearing a blue and white print and cartwheel leghorn hat.

Others among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Antrim McKay, of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howrey, Mrs. Hal Claggett, Miss Lucy Claggett, Dr. William Williams, of Alexandria, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kinnier and Tanner Kinnier, Stewart Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Greene.

Mrs. Dunbar Rounds Out Year in Office

Finds Clubwomen Are Attuned to Needs of the Hour

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A growing seriousness of purpose is evident in the attitude of the clubwomen of the Nation, says Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who has just returned from the Pacific Coast. The General Federation Council meeting, held in San Francisco in May rounded out the first year of her administration in which she included visits to 18 State federation conventions.

Every one included outstanding reports in some field of study—legislation, international relations, public welfare, or conservation—the emphasis depending on the interests in that section, she said. In each convention Mrs. Dunbar gave an hour to answering questions from the floor and she was gratified that they indicated a uniform desire among the women to improve their organizations' strength and make use of it to better advantage in the solution of community and State problems.

Women Attuning Selves To Needs of the Hour

"There has never been a time," she said, "when women have been so willing to tune in to the needs of the home. National committee chairmen say they are constantly challenged to prepare new material to keep abreast of the progress being made by the States in their study programs.

Following the council meeting, Mrs. Dunbar conducted an 11-day tour to Alaska with 86 clubwomen in the party. On her return she visited her home in Portland, Oreg., from there went to Bellingham, Wash., to attend the convention of the Washington State Federation, and from Washington crossed the continent to Portland, Me., and went on to Rangeley Lakes, Me., for the convention of the federated clubs of that State. "Universal Membership", in the General Federation is being discussed there and is also to be voted on by the Minnesota Federation in September. By this plan, now in force in 38 States, every club affiliated with the State federation automatically becomes a member of the General Federation.

Honored Conferred By Tuberculosis Group

On her return to the Capital Mrs. Dunbar stopped in Boston to attend the convention of the National Tuberculosis Association and there was made an honorary vice president of the organization at the same time that the honorary office was conferred on President Roosevelt.

She will remain at the federation headquarters, 1734 N street, until September, when she will resume her swing through the country attending State conventions. The first four will be those of Minnesot, South Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming, and from September on she will be kept busy making the rounds of State meetings.

Your Figure Madame!

—— By Ida Jean Kain.

Summer Is Bad Time To Be Fat and Good To Take Off Weight

NOW THAT THE good (and hot) old summer time is here again, you probably wish fervently that you had taken off about 20 pounds of avoirdupois. That blanket of surplus fat hinders the escape of excess heat from the body, and there is no question but that the fat people feel the heat most.

It's too late now to start the summer slim, but there's every inducement for you to end it 20 pounds lighter. If you want to enjoy reducing, start today with the summer class!

In the first place, the hot weather takes away your appetite, so you don't have that to contend with. In fact, you have to force yourself to eat—so you say—and for comfort's sake you won't want to force yourself to eat too many fuel foods. With the thermometer hovering around 98 degrees, you don't need much fuel to keep your body temperature at 98.6.

Heating Foods

Some foods are higher in fuel and make you hotter than others. These are the foods that are higher in calories, which are the measure of food in terms of energy, and they are also fattening. By taking the fuel foods out of your menus, you not only keep cooler but you also lose weight.

What's wrong with that?

The foods to sidestep at this season are those containing a high percentage of fats, carbohydrates and protein. The fats contain so many calories that they should be the first to eliminate in the summer menu. Protein gives off more heat during digestion, which makes you warmer, and an excess of meat is too "heating." You can get your carbohydrates—all you need—in fruits and vegetables.

New Menus Given

Nature has provided fruits and vegetables so lavishly that the summer menus are practically made to order for the reducer. All the fresh berries, green vegetables, melons are extremely low in calories and high in the protective elements, and by giving just a little thought to the matter, dieting is very easy. Besides, I've done all the work! I have made up a set of summer slimming menus which will enable you to avoid the "heating" foods and to lose between 2 and 3 pounds a week. By halfway following these menus you can lose 1 pound a week and, in time, even that leisurely loss can change you into a sylph. The first of the new slimming menus is given today.

Gloves Have Slits For Wrist Watch

Hollywood, Calif.—Miriam Hopkins gets around the problem of wearing bulky rings and a wristwatch with gloves by having her doeskin sports gloves made with a series of slits around the lower part of the ring fingers and another series of slits over the wrist so she can peek at the face of her watch without turning down the cuffs.

The cuff-links Olivia de Havilland wears with her formal evening shirtmakers are fashioned from heavily jeweled button earrings which have been in her family for several generations.

Genealogical Mystery

I

I have never yet met a woman or man
Who did not date back to some illustrious clan;
Whose forbears had not been about to sprout wings,
Or had not been descended from nobles and kings.

Yet surely the nobodies who lived in the past
Had progeny vigorous, prolific and vast;
Now where can these offshoots today be abiding,
How could such a large company all be in hiding?

News From Home

The telephone message on your desk says to call Miss Chumley at her hotel . . . Chumley? . . . Why that's Grace Chumley! Of course! From home!

Well, you might have known she'd run you down sooner or later. And here you are simply rushed to death and you'll have to take her to lunch, and maybe to dinner. Why she's likely to stick around two or three days sightseeing.

Besides, it'll be such a bore. You two haven't a thing in common any more. You've completely passed out of each other's lives. Oh, if only all those people from Meadowburg would just leave you alone . . .

Well, you'll have to make the best of it—for old times' sake. Of course you used to have some good times at the Chumleys . . . with Arthur Marsh . . . and Maisie Prink . . . and Sally Steppit . . . and Ted Mooner . . .

What on earth has become of Ted anyhow? The last you heard he had made all that money in noodles . . . and then there was something about his divorcing his wife to marry his secretary . . . Anyway, Grace'll know.

She'll know all about Sally's father-in-law being indicted in that political clean-up you read about in the paper . . . and if Maisie is still working at the bank and going with Fred Creeper . . . and if Maude Flitter really married some 75-year-old zipper magnate as somebody told you . . . and if Walter and Julia Hopp have split up yet (you didn't give them over five years) . . . and how many children the Crumpets have by now . . . and if Mark Simper has ever settled down . . .

Well it will be sort of fun to see Grace—and hear about everybody. She'll know, too, all about—about Arthur Marsh . . . how he is getting along and—and about his family. Someway you've often wondered about him and Jane——

It's strange how you can't forget Arthur. You'll go for weeks . . . months at a time and never think of him and then something like this will bring him up and it'll seem like yesterday when you were sitting with him on the porch swing at home . . . and the locusts were in blossom . . . and he was saying——

Oh well, he's probably forgotten it all now. And you too. Still, he said—oh, come now, there's no use to be foolish! Anyway you've forgotten a lot of things yourself.

Still it will be interesting to hear all about him . . . what he's doing . . . how he looks . . . if he's changed much . . . if he's happy . . . And Grace'll know. She never misses anything.

After all, it will be good to see Grace again. You'll call her this very minute!

Today's Social Note

(From the Truthtown Torch)

In a large and ostentatious wedding, Miss Imogene Smirk was finally married yesterday to Rufus Nitter. The couple had been going together off and on for six years.

The bride wore a white organza dress (with detachable train so she can use it for parties later) and the bridesmaids were in rather trying shades of green and yellow. At the wedding reception at the bride's home only weak punch and wafers were served, which caused considerable comment among the women guests.

Although they will not take a honeymoon trip, the couple will not be at "home" until July 15 at the home of the bride's parents. In the meantime they expect to reside at the same place.

Make-up, Dress Shouldn't Clash

Hollywood.—Which comes first? Make-up trends or dress fashions?

The questions are as puzzling a problem as the old one about the egg and the chicken, but Perc Westmore and Orry-Kelly, of Warner Bros., agree that beauty is lost if the two are not in harmony.

Westmore's first rule of make-up is that it be suitable to one's own coloring. Next is that it complement or be complemented by the right clothes.

Westmore believes the short baby bobs he has created should go with a soft, natural make-up. A tint of rouge is sufficient, followed by a faint dusting of powder. Brows are natural and lips are rosy rather than vivid. Perfect with this are all the little girl fashions, such as peeping petticoats and jumpers.

The obviously artificial make-ups are ones containing a lot of purple. They are best with upswept hair styles, flower-laden hats carrying out the same color tones and slim silhouettes with suggested bustle.

Interesting Summer Dishes Suggested by Miss Webster

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

NOT LONG after Alice E. Webster was graduated from Simmons College, Boston, one of the outstanding schools for home economics, she came to Washington as assistant manager of Allies Inn. When Woodward & Lothrop opened their tearoom, they chose Miss Webster to be the supervisor. Approximately 5,000 people are served daily at this place and it is over this tremendous task that Miss Webster presides so successfully.

Miss Webster

Today, Miss Webster is giving her version of German Potato Salad and also the way to prepare Creamed Mushrooms.

Potato Salad, German Style

Boil new potatoes, peel them and slice while warm, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons each finely minced parsley and onion, and pour over them the following dressing. Cook 2 tablespoons bacon or ham fat, 1 tablespoon of butter and ¼ cup weak vinegar. Add salt, pepper and a very little German mustard. When cold, add sliced cucumbers and diced bacon or ham and garnish with chilled ripe tomato quarters.

Creamed Mushrooms

Saute the mushrooms slowly in butter. Cover and let them steam until tender. Dredge with flour, cook a moment, add ¼ cup each chicken stock and cream, season with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and when boiling add 2 yolks beaten with 3 tablespoons cream. Serve on toast, in nappies or on dish surrounded with triangles of puff paste.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Malignant Gossip, Founded on Fact and Broadcast By Enemy, Blights Woman's Life; She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A good many years ago a woman formed a very bitter hatred of me because, unwittingly, I took a man away from her daughter. She has done much damage to many people and at one time her daughter had her locked up. At one time she tried to get me discharged from my job by sending unsigned letters to the head of the concern; letters accusing me of awful things, and backing this up with gossip concerning financial difficulties which my father had experienced in another city. In spite of her efforts, however, the officers of this concern were kind to me and gave me a promotion with a salary increase.

The trouble since then comes from letters addressed to friends, which she writes from her home out West. Every time a man starts to care for me, he stumbles on someone who brings up the gossip about father's unfortunate past experiences. Then suddenly these men ask me strange questions about my father's past, after which they fade out of the picture. I have gone on, with a new hurt each time, as this gossip always seems to start up in whatever group I have attracted to me.

The reason for this letter is that the trouble has arisen again, in the case of a man who has shown me considerable attention and whom I do like immensely. Everything was going well when, suddenly, he, too, began asking questions about my father's past. Although he likes me well enough to say he doesn't listen to gossip, I know he has moments when he is strained about this, with the result that I feel extremely unhappy.

I feel sick at heart because I see the invariable happening again. There have been hard struggles these last years, with consequent loneliness, so that I cannot bear to lose more friends. I hope this is clear enough, although I can hardly think straight this time. Whatever advice you can give me will be deeply appreciated. Yours sincerely,

WOMAN ALONE.

The Armor of Courage

DEAR W. A.: In my opinion, Fear is the real enemy of your happiness, the actual destroyer of your friendships. Fear, I imagine, has been your constant companion for years, casting a black and blighting shadow across your present and your future, and causing you to behave in a manner so peculiar as to sow seeds of distrust in the mind of any interested observer.

I am convinced that neither the vicious, largely fictitious gossip of an incontrovertibly malevolent woman, nor the whole truth about your father's financial irregularities, however deplorable and however widely known—I am convinced that these things could not really harm you, if your own spirit were free from the neurotic taints of furtive shame and defiant dread.

You have only to consider that gossip is, and always has been, one of mankind's favorite pastimes; that few, indeed, are the individuals of any consequence or popularity who have escaped its mosquito-cloud barrage; that skeletons in the family closet are a generally accepted social phenomenon, and that not very many illustrious escutcheons are altogether free of the stain of some shady ancestral transaction—you have only to consider these things to realize that you have joined a goodly company, in becoming the butt of spiteful comment.

Defamatory attacks should be met with courage; never with fear and cringing cowardice. The valorous individual either ignores such attacks altogether (as beneath his notice), because serenely confident of his intrinsic ability to override them without a blemish, or he disarms his calumniators and renders them powerless by declaring the whole truth on which their half-truths or poisonous falsehoods are based; or he promptly institutes legal action designed to bring his traducers to justice, thus forcing them either to abandon their nefarious activities or else pay dearly for their sport.

In my opinion, there are three indivisible, equally advisable, approaches to a lasting and happy solution of your problem. These include (1) employment of psychiatric counsel, for the purpose of setting your thinking straight, so that you will know, with finality, how much of your problem is real and how much is imaginary; (2) employment of legal counsel, so as to know what action can be taken to stop the flow of poison-pen letters from your ancient adversary; and (3) the development of that spiritual poise and honesty which will permit you, when faced with embarrassing questions concerning your father's "unfortunate past," to state the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, with dignity, calm and brevity.

Since the subject of your father's transgression inevitably arises to invite discussion, it is worse than futile for you to try to withhold the truth from your close associates. It is possible you have made the continuous, serious mistake of issuing a blanket denial of the no doubt erroneous allegations with which your questioner has been supplied. Perhaps you have thought, by such denial, to gloss matters over. Far better for you to have said, and to say in future: "Yes, it is true that my father was involved in such-and-such a transaction, although the stories one hears are remote from the facts, which are these——."

If, as I suspect, you react to curious or accusatory questions in a manner that is surcharged with shame, fear, evasion and conciliation, it is natural for your questioners to conclude that you are a pretty shabby character yourself, and forthwith to abandon you for that reason, rather than because of your father's shortcomings. My advice to you is to "tell the truth and shame the devil" (as the saying goes)—thus proving your personal possession of the noble qualities of pride, courage and candor.

A Woman's New York

Dorothy Lamour Wears Girlish White Dress To Fair and Enjoys Eating Hot Dogs

New York, July 2.

WE ARE quite accustomed to interviewing movie stars. In fact, we have turned many a dishonest penny in this way, and we have grown used to the fact that most of them, when in the East on parade, are usually doing an act. They let their egos run riot, and are either high and mighty or affect an accent which even a policeman could detect.

ALICE HUGHES

For this reason it has been a great pleasure to play hostess to Dorothy Lamour during the past week. As far as I know, she is the most natural and unaffected girl ever to come out of Hollywood. My sister Frances and I spent an exceptionally happy day at the fair with Dorothy. She did not wear a sarong, but a simple and girlish white dress, and I am sure that she had more fun than anyone else on the grounds. We made almost a complete tour of the big show. We bought her hot dogs, and noticed that she used the popular overlapping grip when munching the succulent frankfurter. We visited most of the important exhibits, including the Communications Building, which she seemed to enjoy most of all, especially when she was listening to the long distance phone calls by other people.

The climax of our trip was the usual parachute drop, which caused her to scream loudly in the usual way, and the net result was not only a good time for us all, but also a remarkably fine set of photographs en route. If only Hollywood could produce larger numbers of sweet and simple girls like Dorothy, life would be far happier for those of us who face them with pen, paper and camera. But since this is not the case, I think we must be satisfied to have Dotty, the sarong girl. She is a honey.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: It was a big day on the Hudson when the new Mauretania sailed into port on her maiden trip last week. She is the bearer of a great name, and she even steams a bit faster than her predecessor. One of the high spots of the trip lay in the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Middlemas, who were passengers on the maiden voyage of the old Maury in November, 1907, came in on the first trip of the new liner. They said the new boat was just fine.

The smarter night clubs are beginning to perk up after the tragic business of May and June, and although the Monte Carlo has put up the shutters for the summer, the famous Stork Club will stay open during the hot months, as will the popular garden of the Marguery and the outdoor eating spot of LaRue. The management of El Morocco has not yet decided on its summer program. More and more the fair visitors are deciding to spend a sizable portion of their fresh money in New York itself. Even so, there is still enough left to make Grover Whalen happy.

When Violet Haven took off on the first press crossing of the flying Clipper, she asked me what she could bring me from abroad. My wish was modest enough, and I asked her to slip Richard Tauber's record of "Morgen" into her baggage, which she did, 48 hours after she had bought the platter in Paris. I was playing it on my Murray Hill phonograph, which is certainly some kind of a record.

A VALUABLE new cook book has just appeared on local shelves. This one, edited by Imogene Wolcott, lists nearly 600 recipes from the six New England States, including all the favorite dishes from way down East. Many of them are specialists of that territory, such as fish chowder and a great variety of cookies. New England cooking, at its best, is some of the finest in the country.

First Lady Joins Fight on Intolerance

Urges Support of Campaign to Better Protestant, Catholic, Jewish Co-operation

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has urged support of the campaign of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for the promotion of better understanding among Protestants, Jews and Catholics, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. A. W. Gottschall, regional secretary of the conference.

According to the Rev. Mr. Gottschall, the First Lady in a July 4 message to the organization declared joint action by citizens of all groups in dealing with common problems to be "urgently necessary in view of much that is happening elsewhere in the world."

Most Necessary Task

The organization was founded in 1928 to "further justice, amity, understanding and co-operation among members of the three faiths.

"The promotion of better understanding among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in America is truly one of the most necessary tasks confronting us, not only for the sake of lasting social peace and goodwill, but in order that the idealism of religion may make its most effective contribution to the welfare of the Nation," Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out.

All Need to Co-operate

"If anything is evident today," she said, "it is the need of all groups of Americans to co-operate in all those undertakings which are common concern to them as citizens and which help to make America the land of our dreams."

"We have a right to differ from one another in religious conviction and practice. But there is an obligation upon us as citizens of the one country to join together in common civic tasks upon which all of us agree."

Clara A. Moore Dies; Resident Of Alexandria

Had Also Lived in Harrisonburg, Va., and Sandy Spring, Md.

Miss Clara Archie Moore, one of the best-known residents of Alexandria, died yesterday in Alexandria Hospital where she had been a patient since April. Miss Moore suffered a fractured hip, and, as that healed, a heart condition developed which kept her in the hospital.

She was born in Sandy Spring, Md., the only child of the late Archibald and Virginia Fawcett Moore. Her parents died while she was still a child and she had made her home principally with her uncle and aunt, the late Mr. and Mrs. George William Ramsay, in Alexandria, although she still maintained her Sandy Spring residence and spent her summers there. In the past few years Miss Moore had divided her time between Sandy Spring, Alexandria and Harrisonburg, where she was with her cousin, Mrs. Clement E. Conger.

Miss Moore is survived by the following cousins: Mrs. Robert Miller Reese, Mrs. Frank McCormick, Mrs. Lewis Cheeseman, Miss Susan Fawcett, Miss Ellen Fawcett, Laurence and Lewis Fawcett, of Alexandria; Mrs. Conger, of Harrisonburg; Mrs. T. Seddon Taliaferro, of Rock Spring, Wyo.; Mrs. Carlton B. Stabler, of Kennett Square, Pa.; Mrs. Milton Bancroft, Mrs. Joseph Tilton and Mrs. Herbert Adams, of Sandy Spring; Dennis Ramsay, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and Douglas Taylor Ramsay, of Charleston, S. C., and an uncle, Joseph Willis Fawcett, of Texas.

She had been closely identified with Christ Episcopal Church since childhood, and while no definite arrangements have been made, the funeral will be in that church, with burial in Sandy Spring, Md.

Capital News In Brief

50 Years Is 'Nothing'

A half-century mark in Government service was passed yesterday by Dr. Robert A. Daniel, chief engraver of the hydrographic office, Navy Department—and he had to be reminded of it.

When Dr. Daniel first entered the office he served six months on probation, without pay. During the 50 years he has seen 24 hydrographers come and go. He has been chief engraver since 1927.

Last night he shrugged it all off with an "It was nothing." He wants no testimonials, no presents and no publicity. He expects to retire in the fall.

Police Had Busy Day

Police responded to more than 100 calls in an effort to halt illegal discharge of fireworks yesterday. Most miscreants were let off with a warning. Four were arrested. Fantone, 23, of Baltimore; Broadus Graham, 24, of 1149 First street northwest.

D. C. Mixed Pair Captures Bridge Title

Mrs. Henniger and C. M. Hall Beat Best of Five States

By Marian H. Barre.

In a field of 46 pairs comprising the best man and woman bridge partnerships in five States, Mrs. P. E. Henninger and C. Murray Hall annexed the mixed pair title in the Carvel Hall bridge tournament, now in play at Annapolis. Both champions are members of the Washington Bridge League. Mrs. Henninger lives in Colonial Village, Va. Hall is a resident of Chevy Chase, Md.

The win was Hall's second triumph in the tournament. He finished runner-up paired with P. E. Henninger in a previous event for men's pairs. Before this time he had never won a major tournament, though he is a player of outstanding ability. Mrs. Henninger is a former women champion of Alexandria.

A score of 321 match points gave the winners a lead of 10 points over Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Linfenmeyer, of Philadelphia, mixed pair runners-up. Mrs. Van Golder and the Quaker City ace, Charles Soloman, ranked third with 308 points. Fourth place went to Mrs. H. C. White and A. P. Stockvis, a Washington partnership. Mrs. Jean Rohleder, Norfolk, Va., and Martin May, Washington, finished fifth.

Twenty-eight pairs escaped elimination after the qualifying round of the open pair championship, premier event of the tournament. These were the survivors from a field of 88 pairs, playing in two sections. Mrs. Russell Belt, co-winner with Mrs. Jack Bennett in the women's pair game, qualified with top score in section A. Mrs. Belt was paired with Mrs. L. D. Johnson, of Arlington, Va. Mrs. N. T. N. Robinson and Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, Washington, made second score.

An intercity team is defending, led, with Mrs. Leon Lander and Harry Fivel, of Norfolk, second. Other Capital partnerships among the leaders included Representative John C. Kunkel and S. Garton Churchill and Lewis G. Tubbs and Wilfred St. Aubins.

Players who failed to qualify took part in the Arundel County game, run concurrently with the final session of open pairs. The championship for team-of-four will be decided in a two-session game today. An inter-city team is defending, composed of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Stockvis, of Washington, and John R. Crawford and A. M. Hickman, of Philadelphia.

Petty Thieves Ignore Holiday; Victim Slashed

Apologetic Customer Gets $75 in Back Room Of Store; Diamond Lost

Washington's petty thieves took no holiday yesterday but tended strictly to business, snatching purses, looting autos, robbing homes.

One man struggled with a knife bandit who attempted to rob him early yesterday, but lost the fight and his purse containing $4, and required treatment at Sibley Hospital. Lester C. McLeod, 48, a watchman, was walking along Fourth street, between L street and New York avenue northwest, when approached by the thug. In the tussle, McLeod suffered severe face lacerations.

Customer Gets $75

A customer dropped a soda bottle in the store of Ida Steiner, at 1338 Fourteenth street northwest. Apologizing profusely, he carried the broken glass to the back of the store. After he left, the storekeeper discovered $75 missing from the back room, where it had been hidden in a box.

Mamie Vernon, 401 Sixteenth street northeast, reported $71 stolen from a pocketbook hanging in her dining room closet; Elizabeth Burroughs, 1769 T street northwest, told police her purse containing $12 was taken from the dining room table.

A thief broke into the auto of Patrick Hughes, of Chicago, which was parked in the 500 block of East Capitol street. Clothes and other articles valued at $150 were taken. Whiskey worth $100 was stolen from the window of a liquor store at 1201 Ninth street northwest after thieves had smashed the front window.

Diamond Ring Missing

A $150 diamond ring was reported missing by Leona Good, 3909 Northampton street northwest. John L. White, 1419 R street northwest, was boarding a street car at Fourteenth and U streets northwest when his pocket was picked. He lost $13. Two boys snatched the purse of Bessie Anton, 1119 N street northwest, in the 1200 block Twelfth street northwest. They got $5.

Mrs. Louise Lawler, 1115 K street northwest, awoke early yesterday to discover a burglar in the kitchen. He fled with $30 in clothes.

Hoover Plans to Give Two Neutrality Speeches

Palo Alto, Calif., July 2 (AP).—Former President Hoover left here today for Chicago and Cleveland, where he will deliver addresses Tuesday and Wednesday.

In Chicago he will speak on "Neutrality: Shall Our Youth Be Sent to War in Europe?" Before the International Convention of the Christian Endeavor Society in Cleveland he will continue his discussion of neutrality.

Dr. Harris Assails U. S. Neutrality

Treating Aggressor, Victim Impartially Is Unthinkable, Says Methodist Pastor

Support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy was urged yesterday by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris from the pulpit of Foundry Methodist Church.

"To defeat the President's foreign policy in the present crisis will not only spite the President but will also spite America," the minister told a large morning congregation. "To block his policy is to endanger all for which America stands," he added.

Neutrality Called Unthinkable

Declaring that "the heads of aggressor states have ridiculed and railed our democratic processes, have called our American democracy a putrescent corpse of the Goddess of Liberty, and openly declare that they are against all for which America stands," Dr. Harris asked:

"Can it be that our legislators really desire to announce to the world that if these international highwaymen deliberately start a war to vindicate their pagan doctrines that "might makes right" this America, with her moral and material resources, intends to stand aside and treat both aggressor and victim with equal impartiality?" This is unthinkable, he added.

"Will Prove Boomerang"

"If Congress were deliberately endeavoring to give the 'green light' to Hitler and Mussolini it could not act differently," continued the cleric. "Such legislation puts out the eyes of conscience and attempts in the name of our Nation's well-being to impose a dead level of neutrality conduct on the part of our Government . . . between right and wrong . . . between breakers of the laws of nations and nations endeavoring to uphold the law."

"We can't put peace above righteousness without committing national suicide," he declared, "and instead of protecting our interests such attitudes endanger our own peace. Such a policy of moral drift by such a powerful nation as our own will only set back the hands of progress. The tragedy is that such unrighteous neutrality will prove a boomerang. It will not save us from entanglement . . . it will make our entanglement more certain."

Bethesda Waits Fire to See Who's Chief

A. J. Bargagni, new paid chief of the Bethesda Fire Department, sat at his desk in the firehouse and twiddled his thumbs all day yesterday—or whatever fire chiefs do when there aren't any fires to fight.

Bargagni officially took office Saturday and since he took command there hasn't even been an auto fire. He retired from the District of Columbia Fire Department as a lieutenant after many years of service.

The new chief's job isn't a bed of roses even if there aren't any fires. The volunteer firemen have agreed to ignore his orders and maintain allegiance to their volunteer chief, Hiram Musgrove, whose post was abolished by order of the Bethesda fire board. The volunteers voted to continue fighting fires but decided they would accept orders only from Chief Musgrove. They contend that their officers and chief were approved after an election by the fire board and that they are entitled to continue in service until November.

Meanwhile, county police have been ordered to attend all fires, no matter how small, on the off chance that there might be sparks when the two fire chiefs meet on the fire ground. All Montgomery County is awaiting the first fire call to see what happens.

Charlottesville to Park By Meters Wednesday

Charlottesville, Va., July 2.—Parking meters will be installed on Main street Wednesday, according to Police Chief Maurice F. Greaver, who assisted an engineer from the Dual Parking Meter Co. of Oklahoma yesterday in marking off 20-foot spaces.

The meters to be installed here charge 5 cents for 60 minutes of parking. Chief Greaver said that trucks would be permitted to park free while loading and unloading.

Pastor Fears Totalitarian Trend in U.S.

Tendency Endangers Liberty, Dr. Snyder Declares in Sermon

The Federal Government's tendency to enter the real estate, insurance and other fields is encouraging totalitarian rule in this country, Dr. Henry W. Snyder warned St. Paul's Lutheran congregation yesterday.

Such a tendency, he said in a patriotic message, endangers personal liberty and makes it more difficult for the private individual or corporation to conduct its business.

Basic Ideals Urged

Possibilities of discouraging "one-man" rule, he pointed out, rested in development of social consciousness, bringing national and international goodwill; in placing the best mentally and physically equipped people at the head of national affairs; in developing a "national soul" built on Christian and ethical ideals, and in the spiritual growth of the individual.

In another message keyed to the theme of approaching Independence Day, Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich asserted at Metropolitan Presbyterian Church that "the hope of America's future rests not on Capitol Hill or on the brain trusters, but in a return to basic spiritual ideals."

Suffering from a broken leg sustained while playing baseball several days ago, the cleric delivered his address from a chair on the platform.

Patriotism Held Christian

"True patriotism is essentially Christian," the Rev. Walter G. Borchers told a large audience at First Congregational Church, where he serves as assistant pastor.

Speaking at Trinity Methodist Church, where he came as new pastor on June 25, the Rev. Edward B. Wilcox, former Falls Church Methodist pastor, advised that "liberty is more than breaking away from restraint and is a condition brought about by rigorous self-discipline." He spoke on "Liberty and the Law."

Metropolitan Baptist Church sponsored patriotic services last evening in the edifice at Sixth and A streets northeast, with Dr. John Compton Ball and the Rev. Robert C. Savage, pastor and assistant, in charge. The salute to the flag and other rites were held.

Trappers Search Swamp For Flier, Family of 3

Lafitte, La., July 2 (AP).—Trappers and fishermen tonight left for swamps near here, where Jean Lafitte and his pirates once hid, to search for a small monoplane reported to have crashed with its pilot, his wife, and their two children. The pilot's name was given only as "Richards."

U. S. Owes 'Effective' Neutrality To War Dead, Says Gillette

Effective neutrality legislation to save from futility America's sacrifice in the "war to end war" was urged here yesterday by Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, at annual rites of the National Capital Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

He spoke at the Washington Cathedral, where the veterans, members of the "Last Man's Club," of which he is chief of staff; the Daughters of 1812; the Regular Veterans Association; the D. C. Chapter of the American War Mothers and the Woman's Auxiliary marched in a colorful procession, led by the Cathedral choir, in which American, and organization emblems were borne.

Sponsored Trade-at-Risk Bill

"Are we going to say that we can't make a national system of neutrality effective?" asked the legislator, referring to the neutrality fight in Congress. "We have no right to accept the sacrifices these men have made and not make their sacrifices effective," he added.

While he made no reference to the fact in this message, Senator Gillette, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, last May introduced a bill to repeal the present neutrality act and substitute a wartime policy of "trade at your own risk."

Later in his address, Gillette declared he "had no patience with hyphenated Americanism."

Weary of Hyphenators

"I am getting weary of hearing of hyphenated Americans, such as German-Americans, Jewish-Americans and Irish-Americans," said he. "There is only one adjective to tie to Americanism and that is clean Americanism."

The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Cathedral, and Canon Precentor William R. Bradner led the services, in which Dr. Walter C. Hess, commander of the chapter; William B. Covert, senior vice commander; Carl Hendrick, adjutant, and Joel D. Thacker, junior vice commander, also participated.

Joseph Crowley, Real Estate Dealer, Dies

Joseph J. Crowley, Washington real estate dealer, died yesterday at his home, 18 West Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md. He would have been 43 July 20.

He was a native of Washington and had resided in Chevy Chase for the last 20 years. Mr. Crowley was a graduate of St. John's College and Georgetown University. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Margaret J. Crowley; his wife, Frances Peak Crowley, and six children, Joseph, jr., Louis, John, Robert, Thomas and Frances.

Requiem mass will be said Wednesday at 9 a. m. in the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, Western avenue and Chevy Chase Circle. Burial will be private.

Orders for Lumber 21% Over Last Year

Reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association showed last night new orders for the week ended June 24 last were 21 per cent greater than last year's seasonal weekly average. Production during the week was 18 per cent above and shipments 14 per cent above last year's seasonal averages.

The association said production for the first 25 weeks of 1939 was 19 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year, shipments 15 per cent greater, and new orders 17 per cent greater.

Secret Service's Exploits Described By Chief Wilson

Highlights in the work of the United States Secret Service were described yesterday by Chief Frank A. Wilson in an N. B. C. broadcast marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization.

He pointed out the Secret Service was established July 2, 1864, to combat counterfeiters; that it later conducted investigations into the "Whisky Ring," "Louisiana Lottery," "Beef Trust," "Sugar Fraud" and "Teapot Dome" cases; that it smashed the Spanish spy system in the war with Spain, and exposed the German sabotage plots during the World War; that the service took over protection of the President and his family following the assassination of McKinley.

Civic Chiefs Score House Fund Stand

Insistence on Five Million Maximum For Capital Hit As 'Unreasonable'

Expressing concern over the effects of a continued Congressional deadlock on the District supply bill, Washington civic leaders last night were unanimous in their support of Senator Overton's plan for an increased appropriation and in their criticism of the House's "unreasonable" stand for a maximum outlay of $5,000,000.

Senator Overton's original plan for a Federal contribution on a basis of land area in the District would set the payment at close to $8,250,000. He has indicated his willingness to compromise on $6,000,000.

Its fiscal year having ended Friday with no appropriation, the District has been operating under a Presidential order allowing the Commissioners to draw on $30,000 from the United States Treasury.

Call for Suffrage

Leading citizens termed the attitude of the House a "travesty on justice" and indicated that, in their opinion, "the whole complicated mess showed the need for a democratically elected local governing body.

Labor leaders expressed their concern for local relief recipients, most of whom expected checks Saturday. Delay has been partially due to the District supply bill tie-up and to the national relief bill.

A typical comment was that of Harry N. Stull, vice president of both the Federation of Citizens' Associations and the District Suffrage Association: "It is an amazing thing to me that the House and Senate should be so diametrically opposed year after year on this question. We certainly are storing up ammunition in the suffrage fight."

Williams Comments

Lawrence Williams, president of the Board of Trade said: "The House should go at least half way with the Senate. I am confident that if they really went into the facts they would see the absurdity of their position."

Speaking for the District Suffrage Association, Wilbur S. Finch, president, commented: "They never will solve our problems here until they give us a government of our own." He indicated that he expected the Senate to back down on its demands.

Declaring his support for the Overton plan as originally introduced, John Locher, president of the Central Labor Union, said: "We didn't expect to get the whole thing this year, but we ought to at least get the $6,000,000. I would like to see the Senate hold out for that amount. In all justice, we deserve it."

Babp, Katz Speak

David Babp, secretary of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, declared: "They ought to let the people work it out for themselves, because Congress won't work it out."

Sidney R. Katz, secretary of the Industrial Union Council, said: "It is an almost impossible situation. To get immediate relief we have to accept an inadequate appropriation. . . . I know there is suffering among relief clients and there may be more."

New Deal Attacked At Fair Ceremony

New York, July 2 (AP).—Gov. D. Aiken of Vermont dedicated his State's exhibit at the New York World's Fair today with the assertion that "We don't believe in building a world of tomorrow on a foundation of debt."

"We have steadfastly refused to delegate the authority and responsibility for our personal and local affairs to an all-powerful central Government," he said.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

"Goodbye, Mr. Chips" Is One of Cinema's Finest

Robert Donat and Greer Garson Triumph; Phil Lampkin to Lay Aside His Baton; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

WITH ALL DUE RESPECT to Spencer Tracy, Paul Muni and the other eminent screen actors on this side, we are becoming increasingly of the opinion that the most gifted player whose talents are devoted to the contemporary cinema is the young Englishman, Robert Donat.

BELL

This impression began to take form with his uncommonly fine performance opposite Rosalind Russell in "The Citadel." It now becomes a conviction with the previewing of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," based on the James Hilton novel and to be seen as the next attraction on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater.

"Goodbye, Mr. Chips" is a motion-picture play of no ordinary pattern. It deals with a phase of English life little known to the mass of American audiences and moves deliberately and in more or less episodic fashion, but, for all that, creates so true and utterly convincing a study of human frailties and minor triumphs as to become a segment of life itself. The story is told, under Sam Wood's sympathetic and able direction, by the flashback method. We meet Mr. Chips first as the patriarch of Brookfield's faculty, in England, at the age of 83 years, 63 of which have been devoted to the ups and downs of pedagogy in that traditional stronghold of masculine education that dates its history back to the year Columbus discovered America. As Mr. Chips dozes before his fireplace, his entire scholastic life passes in review before his mind's eye, from the day of his beginning as a teacher of England's youth down to the period of the play's opening.

In the usual cinematic sense, there is little action in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." It deals largely with those intangibles that mold the character of a man, and through him the character of others, from timid and frightened youth to a kindly and benign old age. The whole sum and substance of the drama and all of its force are bound up in the character of Mr. Chips, whose life is beset by many vicissitudes. It is only in the central portion of the story that romance—and it is a tragic romance—is introduced. It comes to Mr. Chips in the person of Katherine Ellis, whom he meets on a tramping trip through Austria with a colleague while she is bicycling through Europe with a female companion. This purling interlude is comparatively brief, but gives the picture the instrument of its greatest effectiveness.

In the screen trailer—called that, of course, because it precedes the showing of the picture—Alexander Woollcott iterates and reiterates that "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" is the finest motion picture he ever has seen. When I heard those words come from the Palace screen last Thursday afternoon, I wondered how many pictures Mr. Woollcott might have seen in his lifetime. That no longer matters. Having seen the picture myself, finally—it was run off in Loew's Capitol Theater Saturday midnight for those who were not on that "Young Mr. Lincoln" Memorial Day junket to Springfield, Ill., and so hadn't seen it upon their return to New York—it makes no difference if Mr. Woollcott has seen all of the pictures ever made, his statement still would stand up.

Two Superb Performances

This, as I have said, is primarily due to the tremendously effective portrayal of the title role Robert Donat brings to the screen. He spans the years from the age of 20 to 83 with unfaltering fidelity to the quaint character to which he has been assigned. I was unable to detect any time during the running of the picture Saturday night when Mr. Donat struck a false note. His performance is one of the individual triumphs of the year and deserves to be recognized by the award of an academy "Oscar" for the best acting of 1939 by a male star.

Greer Garson, who assumes the role of Katherine, finds herself confronted with far fewer opportunities, but to those romantic intervals in which she appears, midway of the film, she brings complete charm and competence. Miss Garson never makes a false step, either.

The remainder of the cast, including an uncountable number of adolescent youths—of which Master Terry Kilburn is foremost—is such as to make "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" an irrevocable "must" on the list of every judicious picturegoer.

The voting for the most popular musical comedy or operetta—to be produced by Gene Ford at Loew's Capitol—goes on apace. In fact, it goes on a couple of paces. In nine days, the largest total number of votes ever cast in a local lobby plebiscite has been recorded. The count over the week-end showed that "Irene"—ah, there!—was out in front with 1,214 votes; "Naughty Marietta" second, with 1,102; "Rose Marie" third, with 1,081; "Sally" fourth, with 776, and "The Chocolate Soldier" fifth, with 758. It begins to look as if the issue would be fought out among these five, although every nominee of the 20 has its supporters. Balloting will close on Wednesday night. The winning entry will be presented at the Capitol with a New York cast.

One of the surprises of the season has been the success of the Saturday midnight shows at the Mount Vernon open-air, automobile theater, on the Richmond highway a few miles south of Alexandria, Va. So successful have these innovations proved during the past two weeks that Manager Irving Shapiro is scheduling another extra performance for 12:30 a. m., tonight. In addition to Robert Donat and Madelein Carroll in "The 39 Steps" and supporting program of short screen subjects, this occasion will be marked by a fireworks display and numerous other special attractions. So now you know.

It will come as a great surprise to his many friends in the Capital to learn that Phil Lampkin, "guest conductor" at Loew's Capitol since May 2, 1932, will conduct his last overture on F street next Friday. Phil came to Washington from an 18-month engagement as conductor at Shea's Theater, Buffalo, N. Y., for an engagement tentatively limited to a few weeks. He has been here ever since and has made history, more or less, by the deft showmanship he has displayed on the podium. What his future plans are has not been revealed. More of this later.

If it is the "Box-Office Champions for May" that you have been worrying about, the Motion Picture Herald of July 1, announces them as follows, predicated on bona fide, key city, box-office statements: "Dodge City," "The Hardys Ride High," "Union Pacific," "Wuthering Heights," "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," "Dark Victory," "Man of Conquest" and "Rose of Washington Square." Eight of them in all, rather more than usual, but a list with which Washington can have no possible quarrel.

A Tender Moment in an Exceptional Picture

ROBERT DONAT AND GREER GARSON
as they appear in the pivotal roles of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of James Hilton's novel, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," one of the most extraordinarily appealing film plays in the annals of the cinema. This long-awaited and widely discussed subject will be shown on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater following the current engagement of "Tarzan Finds a Son"

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 2.

ROBERT TAYLOR, who refused the second lead in the movie adaptation of "Northwest Passage," lunched recently with Spencer Tracy . . . Tracy has the leading role in that picture . . . "I want you to understand, Spencer, why I cannot accept second lead," Taylor explained. "You see—I have worked five years to become a star" . . . "That's funny," Tracy replied. "I've worked 25 years—to become an actor."

ONE OF THE REASONS why the Louis-Galento fight films are so execellent is because the film editing was done by Peter Lorre, the screen star. Lorre, who visited the Cotton Club for eight successive nights, went there after the fight and then accompanied Jack Dietz, who bought the movie rights, to the studio where the film was developed and cut . . . Wm. Dodd, the former Ambassador to Germany, is being treated for a throat affliction. His son, Wm. Dodd, jr., is writing a book about his four years in Germany—using the books and private records kept by his father . . . Beryle Markham, the aviatrix, visited the cafes last night and confessed that she'll settle permanently in San Diego. She also said she'd like to organize a corps of aviatrixes for defense purposes.

GYPSY ROSE LEE made her debut in the legitimate theater when she assumed the Nancy Carroll role in "I Must Love Someone" . . . "It's not exactly a Theater Guild drama," Gypsy stated after her performance. "It's somewhat of a naughtily, funny, sexy show. In fact, it has a hairline of difference between straight burlesque and comedy. And I've broken that hairline."

THE CURRENT ISSUE of Time magazine reproduces the newspaper photo which showed Sophie Tucker at the hectic AFA meeting with her hands over her eyes. All the captions explained that Sophie was weeping, because of the free-for-all in the audience. But Sophie insists she wasn't crying then—but merely was wiping perspiration from her face . . . The Ranee of Sarawak will return to America in September, alone, to settle the marriage differences of her daughter, Princess Baba, and Bob Gregory, the wrestler.

EDDIE DOWLING, who was present during the negotiations between Litvinoff and President Roosevelt for America's recognition of Russia, revealed this story yesterday: In the midst of these negotiations Dowling suggested to Litvinoff: "As a good-will gesture, why don't you send the Imperial Russian Ballet over here—to show America that all art has not been destroyed in your country?" . . . "The Mikado of Japan asked for the Imperial Russian Ballet," Litvinoff replied, "and couldn't get it. Here's the reason: Whenever we hear of trouble brewing in certain sections we send the Imperial Ballet there. The people come to see it and—no more trouble."

ARCHIE STEWART, who testified for the State in connection with the $427,000 Rubel robbery case, startled the attorneys by using the word "theologian." Stewart, who frequented the night clubs before his arrest, always boasted an excellent vocabulary—acquired by reading a book a day while he was serving a long prison term . . . The Slate Brothers will replace the the Howard Brothers at Earl Carroll's Cafe . . . As a result of her name having been mentioned in the suit brought by the former Mrs. Myril Alderman against Ruth Etting, Dorothy Lamour won't make any more public appearances in New York. She also stated that when she returns to Hollywood she'll remain in isolation.

WHEN "LEAVE IT TO ME" opened on Broadway, Mary Martin, an unknown who never had appeared on the stage before, drew front-page publicity and raves from the critics . . . The movie scouts soon snared her, and Miss Martin will leave for the Coast . . . For the past few weeks Vinton Freedley, the producer, has been auditioning a horde of noted singers, who are anxious to replace Miss Martin in that coveted role. The other night Freedley decided upon Mary's successor. Her name is Mildred Fenton. She's an unknown from Detroit and never before has appeared on the stage.

MRS. LOUIS ARAGON, wife of the famous writer, is disappointed at the way the Writers Congress was conducted here. "It was different, at the French Writers Congress," Mrs. Aragon insisted. "There Louis got up and read from a paper—for five hours." . . . The American Federation of Actors, involved in a dispute with its parent organization, will insist upon the selection of an impartial referee—such as Mayor LaGuardia or the National Labor Relations Board . . . Jo Davidson, the sculptor who has made busts of the most famous people of the century, was asked whether any one had purchased his bust of Fiorello LaGuardia. "Of course not. I have it," Davidson replied. "I'm still the greatest collector of Jo Davidson in the world."

'Juarez' Now On Screen at Metropolitan

"Juarez," the story of the Indian patriot, who freed Mexico from a 300-year-old tyranny, Friday went into its third downtown week at the Metropolitan, with all its long and thrilling relation of exciting events.

Paul Muni plays with magnificent restraint as President Juarez, the ugly little man in a black frock-coat, who led his people into freedom. Brian Aherne, as Maxmillian, blond and godlike dupe of the French Emperor, Napoleon III, makes believable the puppet ruler who differed from Juarez only in the manner of carrying out his principles.

Bette Davis, as Carlotta, who goes mad when her dream of her husband's ruling a golden realm with benevolent kindness vanishes, is seen but briefly and is to be lauded for taking a small part in a big picture.

John Garfield, as Gen. Porfirio Diaz, is gallant, headstrong, courageous. Joseph Calleia, as the traitor vice president, who sold out to the landowners, is memorable.

While the word "democracy" was the only bar between Maxmillian and Juarez, the breah was unbridgeable and thus blood flowed in Mexico. Once the peons learned they had been tricked into accepting an emperor, and the emperor learned he had been a catspaw, the turn of events was as inexorable as fate.

This is a picture not to miss. It is an unforgettable experience.

In the scientific short subject there is a view of the English mystery airship, controlled by radio, and a shot of the recent Governor's visit to Hyde Park.

Trans-Lux

There is much in the current Trans-Lux Theater show to enthuse an audience. As interesting as are the news pictorials of the week, they run second in interest to the quartette of remarkable shorts, three of which are in color.

One unheralded subject depicts the life of the Bedouins on the Arabian Desert, and it is a very satisfying presentation, artisically, and from the standpoint of authenticity. Another, of the Frisco Fair, in color, is a real antidote for disappointment at inability to attend in person. The Disney cartoon, "The Hockey Champ," with Donald Duck and his impish nephews, is a riot of fun and color, and "Diving Rythm," an exhibition in slow motion, justifies its booking on the sensational merit of the principals.

The news pictorials show such events as the Governor's conference at Hyde Park, and their visit to West Point; Navy bombers departing in mass for Honolulu, the S. S. St. Louis refugees finding haven in Antwerp, the Shriners' parade in Baltimore, Harvard defeating Yale at rowing, and incidents pertaining to, but before and after, the Louis-Galento bout.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 2 (INS).—Don't all speak at once, girls, but Samuel Goldwyn is looking for a Lily Langtry and there isn't an actress on the stage or screen who wouldn't like to play the Jersey Lily. She will be chosen with care not only by Sam but by Stuart L. Lake, noted historian and biographer of Wyatt Earp, who has been chosen to write "Vinegarroon," a story of Texas frontier days for Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan. Maybe you wonder what Lily Langtry has to do with all this. Well, the Texas town of Vinegarroon was rechristened Langtry following the historic appearance of the Lily during the height of the town's lawlessness.

LOUELLA PARSONS

You won't see gary this time as a hard riding, hard shooting Westerner, surprised as you may be. He will play a rich New Yorker, a tenderfoot, while Brennan, as Judge Roy Bean, famed thousands of miles as "The Law West of the Pecos," will do the gun toting.

No studio in Hollywood is working harder to develop young talent than Paramount. John Howard, who has been over there a long time without doing very much of importance, is the latest actor on whom William Le Baron is concentrating. He will put John in Joseph Conrad's vital story, "Victory," and that will be his biggest chance—even bigger than his role in Lloyd Douglas' "Disputed Passage." The locale is the South Seas, but you won't see Dorothy Lamour and her sarong for it isn't that kind of a tropical epic. Those of you who have read "Victory" and others of Conrad's sea stories know as well as I do the trend of his novels, which are far from flirting Tahitian beauties.

In the mad rush to get movie material, Warners never overlook a current event or a good old American custom. I was intrigued over the week-end to hear that the "Bridge of Sighs," the pathway between the New York Courthouse and the Tombs, over which so many tragic figures have walked, is now being prepared by Charles Perry and a stranger, who will be known as convict No. 23962. In other words, he was one of the unlucky people who crossed the bridge. "The Bridge" starts in August with Lew Seiler directing and Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Rosemary Lane and Stanley Fields in the cast.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Charles Corrells (Andy, of Amos & Andy) are positively radiant because the stork promises to keep a date in October. Last year the Corrells lost their infant son; Sam Hoffenstein, writer and author of "poems in praise of practically nothing," whispers to intimates that he plans to remarry soon. But he isn't telling the name of the lady; the rumor that Madeleine Carroll is actually interested in that well-known radio man is gossiped at every dinner table; Lee Tracy off in style for the Catalina-to-Honolulu yacht races; Kitty and Gilbert Miller are headed for Hollywood to attend the opening of the Helen Hayes-Bart Marshall paly, "Ladies and Gentlemen," in Santa Barbara July 9. He is producer of the Hayes comedy, which I hear is riotously funny; Joan Whitney Payson's friends here have received an invitation to her annual Fourth of July shindig but it's a long walk from Hollywood to Manhasset Bay, where she lives.

Lots of prayers were said in Hollywood for Jack Dempsey's recovery.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

By Mayme Ober Peak

Toppers off to Hedda Hopper—the country's first actress to mix printer's ink with grease paint, to turn daily columnist and continue with her acting job . . . A dynamo of a woman flourishing best under high pressure and excitement, who talks over the radio and to woman's clubs, runs a home, keeps one eye on son Bill, exercises two dogs, drives her car, does her own marketing, goes dancing twice a week for slenderizing purposes (that's what she says) keeps in the social whirl and keeps herself two jumps ahead of the style.

When Hedda first joined the notoriously droll fourth estate, she fell off the fashion bandwagon with sigh of relief. Friends hounded her until she climbed back on. Highlights in her going-away wardrobe are five imported prints—all made exactly alike by Edith Head and 16 madder hats than usual. Hedda Hopper can wear a mad hat better than any sane woman I know. Says she loves crazy chapeaux; they make her feel gay, young and silly!

She got her first movie job because she wore snappy clothes smartly. Louis B. Mayer brought her from the stage not because she was a great actress but because of the ultra-sophisticated look of her. It was his first picture, called "Virtuous Wives." Hedda wore a tea gown costing $850—some money in those days for a single costume.

She outdressed the star, Anita Stewart, and there was the devil to pay. Hedda's portrait painted in that historic tea gown hangs in her living room—the tiniest living room in Hollywood but chock full of charm. A gay, sophisticated little room highlighted by a rare collection of Bristol glass—Hedda's hobby. Raisin carpet on the floor, lemon yellow taffeta ruffled curtains at the windows which overlook a garden you could put in the corner of the average star's swimming pool. There's an ivy-covered summer house which serves as office on hot days; Bill's former hall bedroom is the main office where pandemonium usually reigns. Hedda pacing the floor as she dictates. Three telephones ringing . . . two daschunds, "Woolfie" and "Cooper" getting entangled in the cord (which has to reach to the garden) and yelping like fury.

She loves to "take a crack" at people and things. She loves a fight and feud . . . even cooked up a feud once with the late Lilyan Tashman and kept it warm for two years.

The first time I interviewed Hedda was ten years ago—long before she dreamed of becoming a newspaper woman. She told me then "one thing you can't afford to do in Hollywood is to tell the truth." Ask her now how much she tells . . . Her quick come-back is "only a grain of truth . . . If I had told the whole truth, my head would have been shot off the first week I started this column!"

Although a good showman, Hedda is too hardheaded a business woman to go in for show of the Hollywood's 'front' variety. The bungalow she bought with her first contract money is on a back street now, but it's still home to Hopper. She had to fight hard for everything she got, she puts that fight into her column! Her Hopperisms are too barbed at times. The power of the press made Hedda heady for a little while. She evened up a few old scores—but she never forgets she's an actress first.

Schmeling Kayoes Heuser in 47 Seconds of First

Nats Beat A's, 4-3 and 13-2; Gain Sixth Place

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

There was more elation than sadness among the New York Yankees when Lou Gehrig finally benched himself . . . Manager Joe McCarthy and Gehrig's teammates had been in constant fear that Lou, his reflexes dull, would be unable to duck an inside pitch, with tragedy resulting . . .

POVICH

Gehrig's illness is every bit as serious as the Mayo clinic implied, and the medical profession admits itself completely baffled thus far in attempts to deal with that type of germ . . . "Gehrig Day" at Yankee Stadium tomorrow is already reported a sell-out, and among the winners will be the Nats, who will cut in on a share of a gate that may reach 80,000 fans . . . Babe Ruth will greet Gehrig during the ceremonies, and the scene will present a paradox, inasmuch as the man blooming with health will be Ruth, a notorious breaker of training, and the sick man will be Lou Gehrig, a model liver.

The American Football League has already arranged to place teams in Cincinnati, Buffalo, Baltimore and New York, despite attempts of the National League to pooh-pooh its threatened rival . . . and in New York the new league will have the blessings of the Yankee Stadium officials, no less . . . the Stadium has already been contracted for . . . if the league succeeds in placing a franchise in one more big city, then Earl Mack will cast his lot with the circuit and put a league team in Shibe Park . . . Eric Tipton, drafted by the Redskins from Duke, won't report to the Washington club . . . he says he's through with football and that, anyway, "pro football is too tough a racket" . . . the Redskins must take in $15,000 at the gate before they break even on any home game, according to President G. P. Marshall.

Referee Asked Share of Proceeds From Films

Referee Arthur Donovan once demanded a share of the proceeds from heavyweight championship fight films on the ground that he figured equally as much in the films as the fighters and that the producers did not have his permission to exhibit him . . . A. J. W. wants to know the first name of that Greek, Peritonitis, who floored Dempsey, according to the papers . . . the wonder is that Dempsey was caught unawares by a near-bursting appendix, inasmuch as he was the late Tex Rickard's companion during the days when the same illness proved fatal to the promoter . . . Dempsey suffered no loss of prestige when it required him 12 rounds to knock out Bill Brennan, but folks are belittling Joe Louis for letting Tony Galento go four rounds . . . in the words of Galento, Brennan was a bigger bum than Tony.

Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga club, is showing a $60,000 profit on a ball player whom the Nats would not take as a gift . . . when Clark Griffith sold the Chattanooga club to Engel, he had his choice of two players then with Chattanooga . . . he chose Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth and Outfielder Dee Miles and then turned Miles back to Engel . . . Miles was sold by Engel to the Athletics last winter for $25,000 and a player in exchange . . . the player tossed into the deal by the A's was Bill Nicholson, an outfielder . . . two weeks ago Engel sold Nicholson to the Chicago Cubs for $35,000 and a player to be delivered later . . . Engel was the first sponsor of Arch McDonald, now the highest-salaried baseball broadcaster in the land . . . the Chattanooga club owner moved McDonald from behind a grocery counter to the front of a microphone and within three years heard him become nationally famous.

An enterprising Washington bookmaker now numbers more than 200 regular clients on a novel race-betting plan . . . Twenty dollars is posted with the bookie and the bettor, putting up no more money, makes eight $5 win bets each day for six days . . . at the end of the week the bettor is paid all winnings in excess of $240 . . . if his winnings fail to total $240, he loses his original $20 investment . . . so-called smart bettors like the bettors' percentage, but the bookie shows no signs of retiring from the field.

Altrock Technically Violates A. L. Rule

Nick Altrock violates a league rule, technically, when he clowns around the first-base coaching box with a glove on his hand . . . coaches are strictly forbidden to wear gloves on the theory that they may be confused with the first baseman by the player making a throw.

At Yankee Stadium the American League rule compelling clubs to build bat-racks inside the dugouts, aimed at preventing injuries to players going after foul balls, is ignored . . . in the Havana Winter League, where he plays every off-season, he is known as Tarzan Estalella . . . Alex Alexandra's tutor in English doubles as one of Washington's many women taxi drivers . . . a survey of Washington radio sets tuned in last summer revealed that 57 per cent were occupied with Arch McDonald's broadcasts of the Nats' games . . . another survey made last week revealed that 56 per cent of the radio sets in action were being tuned in on Walter Johnson's broadcasts.

Clark Griffith defends his farm system, which fails to include a Class AA or Class A team . . . "Ball players out of Class B leagues can learn more in the big leagues as rookies than they can in the high minors as regulars," he says . . . Griffith points to his 1924 team, which had as its nucleus Goslin, out of the Sally League; Sam Rice, out of the Piedmont League; Fred Marberry, from Little Rock; Ossie Bluege, from Peoria, and Joe Judge and Stanley Harris, who spent only one year in the International League . . . Griffith is planning to take his Washington team to Havana next spring for a three-game exhibition series with Cuban clubs . . . he has also been offered a series of exhibition games in Venezuela, home of Alex Alexandra . . . Griffith does not blame his rookies for the low estate of the Nats, but the hitting slumps of such regulars as Cecil Travis, Buddy Myer and Taft Wright.

Women Try to Steal Max's Bathrobe and Towel After Victory In German Ring Bout

By the Associated Press.

Stuttgart, Germany, July 2.—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, knocked out Adolf Heuser, European heavyweight champion in less than a minute in the first round of their scheduled 15 round title fight today.

Grim and a little gray above the temples, Schmeling threw out a lightning-like right soon after the bout started and Heuser collapsed like an empty sack.

Schmeling didn't take a blow that amounted to anything. Heuser, a stocky muscular fighter, advanced confidently and started to spar with Schmeling. Unsmiling, Max shook off all his attempted blows until an opening presented itself and he slipped across a fast right.

Schmeling weighed 193 and Heuser, 184.

Champ Was Out

After crumbling to the floor, Heuser tried to get up but could not make it. The crowd of 70,000, startled at the sudden knockout soon recovered and roared its appreciation.

The official time was 47 seconds.

As Schmeling walked back to his dressing room several women tried to snatch his towel and bathrobe from him.

Once on the rubbing table, Schmeling was an unusual contrast to the grim, unsmiling prizefighter who stood in the ring waiting to redeem himself with the homefolks after being flattened by Joe Louis.

"It was good, wasn't it?" Max said, a broad grin on his face.

Max Reticent

Machon, as if to apologize for bowling over Heuser who is also a German sports hero, said "you can't tell what's going to happen when that Heuser starts swinging."

Both Max and Machon were reserved about the future. Max said he wanted to "sleep it over" before thinking about America and Joe Louis. He didn't mention Louis by name.

However, Schmeling made it plain he was not through fighting and as the new European heavyweight champion would be receptive to "a good offer."

Buddy Lewis Crosses Plate After Out-of-Park Clout

Lewis' Homer In 9th Frame Wins Opener

Locals Drive Dean From Mound in First Inning of Second; Krakauskas Winner

By Shirley Povich.

The Nats won two ball games and sixth place from the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday. The scores were 4 to 3 and 13 to 2. The second game was a farcical affair, a foregone conclusion after six Washington runs cascaded across the plate in the first inning. But the first game was strictly story-book stuff. Listen:

Washington goes into the last half of the ninth inning faced with a 3-2 deficit. Young Bill Beckman, on the mound for the A's, hasn't allowed a run since the fourth inning. With each rise and fall of his pitching arm defeat is enveloping the Nats and the 15,000 customers are in a moaning mood as Pinch Hitter Jake Early and Sammy West pop to the shortstop.

Two out and nobody on in the last of the ninth. And then, Rookie Bob Prichard lofts a ball to short right field. It falls for a two-base hit at the feet of Eric Tipton, who tries a diving catch.

Homer Wins Game

Well, next up is Buddy Lewis, hitless all afternoon. But this time Buddy Lewis does not go hitless. What he does is to hit a line drive over the rightfield fence for a home run, the first time this season a Washington player has hit the ball over that wall. The tying and winning runs cross the plate and Washington wins the ball game.

The Nats won it, though, over the protests of the Athletics, who stormed Umpire-in-Chief Bill McGowan with loud shouts of "foul" as the Lewis' clout cleared the fence perilously close to the foul line. McGowan won the argument and the Nats the ball game.

That second game was a personal triumph for Joe Krakauskas and Johnny Welaj as the Nats took a 6-run lead in the first inning and merely coasted to victory. For Krakauskas, who shut the A's out until the eighth inning, it was his first victory since April, and for Welaj it was a thumping reprieve from release to the minor leagues.

Slated for Minors

Last week Welaj was ticketed to go back to the Nats' Springfield farm, which was demanding outfielders from Clark Griffith. The transfer papers were virtually made out when Manager Bucky Harris advised Griffith that the Nats would be short of outfielders; that George Case would be lost at least a week on account of leg injuries. So Welaj's release was delayed.

Welaj himself delayed it further yesterday, if, indeed, he did not cancel it entirely. What he did was to open the second game for the Nats with a two-bagger against the leftfield fence. Twice Welaj

Patty Berg Retains Title In Trans-Miss

Drops a Birdie on 30th To Defeat Bea Barrett By 8 and 6 Margin

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, July 2.—Firing a birdie 4 on the thirtieth hole, Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, successfully retained her women's trans-Mississippi golf championship today for the second successive year, beating back a gallant stand by her rival townswoman, Bea Barrett, of Minneapolis, to win, 8 and 6.

Hardly wavering in a week of par golf, the strong, red-headed Miss Berg never gave her rival a chance after the first two holes today, when she slipped three over par. She came back from that ragged beginning to collect three birdies in the next five holes and from that point Bea was always fighting for a chance.

The finishing hole typified Patty's game. She and Bea were straight down the middle, but Bea had a longer second. Patty hit her approach within 5 feet of the pin on the 495-yard par 5 hole, while Bea was 2 feet short. Bea tried to get down, but the ball slipped past, while Patty stroked hers in and the match was over.

Three Players Injured As Bosox, Yanks Split

Henrich, De Sautels and Doerr Injured As Grove Beats Champs in Opener, 7-3; New York Takes Nightcap, 9-3

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 2.—The New York Yankees turned on their vaunted power in the second game of a doubleheader today and whaled four Boston pitchers for 17 hits and a 9-to-3 victory after old Moses Grove handcuffed them with six hits while winning the opener, 7 to 3.

The Red Sox collected only eight hits off Lefty Gomez in the first game—which saw three players forced to retire with injuries—but two of them were vital homers by Manager Joe Cronin and Ted Williams that turned the tide Bostonward to the delight of a near capacity crowd of 35,000.

Williams' smash, coming with two out and two on in the seventh, broke a tie score and sent the Sox ahead to stay. The ball barely cleared the right field bleacher wall as Tommy Henrich crashed into the barrier trying for the catch and suffered a lacerated scalp.

The Yankee star was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, following Bobby Doerr, who was hit on the left elbow by one of Gomez's pitches in the third inning and was forced to quit.

Four stitches were required to close Henrich's wound. X-ray pictures showed no skull injury, but Henrich remained in the hospital overnight for another X-ray check-up tomorrow. He was resting comfortably, attendants said.

X-ray pictures of Doerr's elbow disclosed that the bone structure was not hurt.

Hunt Gains Semifinals At Glen Cove

D. C. Player Defeats Hal Surface in Four Sets; Sabin Scores

By the Associated Press.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 2.—Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Calif., the top-seeded favorite; Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, D. C., winner for the past two years; Ernie Sutter, of New Orleans, and Frank Bowden, of New York, today filled the semi-final brackets in the Nassau Country Club's twenty-fifth Invitation Grass Court Tennis Tournament.

Sabin, after one of the day's stiffest struggles, eliminated J. Norman Anderson, lanky former Dartmouth star, who yesterday trimmed Larry Dee, of San Francisco, and Frank Shields, one-time Davis Cup star. Although troubled by Anderson's powerful service, Sabin finally won out through superior court craft, 6—4, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1.

Hunt outlasted Hal Surface, of Kansas City, 6—3, 6—3, 4—6, 1—6, 6—1, in the day's longest and most exciting match as the Midwesterner tired after rallying to offset Hunt's effective chop shots.

Sutter, intercollegiate champion in 1936 and 1937 ran through J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., veteran, in straight sets, 6—4, 9—7, 6—3, while Bowden took a similar decision from John Doeg, of Rumson, N. J., former national champion, 6—3, 6—2, 9—7. Doeg played two matches today, trimming Dr. Carl Fisher, of New York, 6—2, 6—2, in a delayed second-round encounter.

Connie Mack, Back Home, Reported on Road to Recovery

Family Says Veteran Pilot Will Be Old Self in Couple of Days; Illness Diagnosed

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 2.—Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, was brought home on a stretcher today from Boston, where he became ill Thursday, but a member of the family predicted he would be his "old self" in a "couple of days."

"I talked to him a little while ago, and I think he's a whole lot better," said Roy F. Mack, vice president of the Athletics and son of the 76-year-old "grand old man" of baseball.

"The doctor has diagnosed it as another attack of gall bladder—the same thing that put him down a couple of years ago. We think that in a couple of days he'll be up and around again and his old self.

"We're not at all concerned. We feel fine at the way he's coming along—and the doctor feels the same."

Stands Trip Okay

Only a few friends were on hand when the train carrying Connie from Boston arrived at an early hour this morning. The veteran manager, white-faced and motionless on the stretcher, was carried to a waiting ambulance that bore him to his Germantown home.

Friends said that he stood the overnight trip well. Mrs. Mack, who hurried to the New England city soon after he was stricken, returned with him.

Dr. Roy L. Langdon, the Mack family physician for years, examined Connie shortly after he was put to bed at home but referred queries to Connie's son, Roy.

Connie, whose name outside baseball is Cornelius McGillicuddy, has been living a quiet life since the illness that kept him bedfast for weeks two years ago.

Hopes for Pennant

But he has retained his same old interest in the Athletics, which he has managed since 1901. Since that time his teams have won nine pennants in the American League and five World Series.

Mack has expressed the hope that some day the A's might be at the top again. That is one reason, perhaps, why he said on a recent birthday anniversary he would not voluntarily quit managing until "I have passed my eightieth birthday."

Don Budge Beats Vines, Wins Net Title in Paris

By the Associated Press

Paris, July 2.—Donald Budge, the carrot-thatched American, won the French Professional Tennis Championship today with a smashing 6—2, 7—5, 6—3 victory over another American, Ellsworth Vines.

BUDGE

Vines' service was powerful, but he failed to follow it up, and Budge, with his superior net play and sensational returns, outclassed his opponent completely.

The French team of Henri Cochet and R. Ramillon, put Big Bill Tilden and his partner, Lester Stoeffen, out of the doubles running in the semifinals, with an 8—6, 6—3, 4—6, 7—9, 6—1 victory.

Tilden played weakly today in the decisive fifth set that was a hangover from yesterday's long match that was called by darkness. Budge and Vines later teamed to take the doubles championship from Cochet and Ramillon by the score of 6—4, 6—2, 2—6, 6—4.

Australian Cupmen Win

End Mexican Series With Doubles Victory

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, July 2.—Australia's Davis Cup tennis team, almost a certainty to enter the challenge round, completed its conquest of a weak Mexican team today.

The doubles combination of Jack Bromwich, the two-fisted hitter, and Adrian Quist, veteran international-ist, won over Daniel Hernandez and Eugenio Tapia, 8—6, 6—0, 6—1.

That victory, combined with a pair in the singles yesterday, settled the series outcome, and tomorrow's singles will be mere exhibitions.

The Australians will head now for Long Beach, Calif., where they will meet the Philippine team.

The doubles match was played in perfect weather. More than 4,000 watched the match in which the invaders ran into unexpected opposition in the first set, largely due to the amazingly good form of Hernandez.

Guernsey Retains College Net Title

Haverford, Pa., July 2 (AP).—Stroking with clockwork precision, Frank Guernsey, diminutive Texan from Rice Institute, clung to his national intercollegiate tennis crown today by routing Chester Murphy, University of Chicago star, on Merion Cricket Club's clay courts, 5—1, 6—0, 6—1.

Bucking precedent and pressure, Guernsey was the seventh player in the 55 years of the college competition to retain the title.

The Murphy hopes were further dashed in the doubles final. Chester, teaming with twin-brother Bill, bowed to Doug Imhoff and Bob Peacock, University of California pair, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4, in a thrill-packed match.

Bitsey Grant Wins Tri-State Tennis Championship

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, July 2.—Overcoming a 2-1 lead, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant fought his way to the Tri-State Tennis singles championship over Frank Parker here today, 0—6, 7—5, 2—6, 7—5, 6—2.

Seeded No. 1, the Atlantan was outclassed by the Californian's consistent back-hand shots at the start but staged a superb comeback in the deciding set.

The tourney remained a "jinx" to Parker, who a week ago won the national clay courts championship. This was the fourth year that Parker has gone down in the finals.

Grant paired with Edward Alloo, of Beverly Hills, Calif., to take the doubles title over Parker and Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., 6—2, 6—4, limited to two sets by agreement.

195,338 Turn Out For Sunday Games

New York, July 2 (AP).—Pressaging great crowds for the Independence Day double-header, major league baseball drew 195,338 fans to eight ball parks today for a new 1939 attendance high.

A throng of 51,435 was on hand at the Polo Grounds today to see the Giants clash with the Brooklyn Dodgers while the two games at Chicago between the Cincinnati Reds and the Cubs drew 42,094 spectators in addition to an estimated 10,000 who were turned away.

Klein Winner Of First Half

By the identical score it defeated D. G. S. last Sunday to throw the National City League lead for the first half into a two-way tie, Klein Tavern again demonstrated its superiority over the Grocers yesterday in the playoff on the Ellipse, winning 4 to 2.

The victory was the result of an uphill fight, as the Tavern overcame a two-run lead gained by D. G. S. in the opening inning. Two runs in the fifth put the eventual winners in the van and they improved their position with another tally in the eighth.

Bill Liggett, brother of the Boyd Liggett who took the first victory over D. G. S., hurled yesterday and issued but two safeties. For the first time in his career, Charley Kendall, former McKinley High first baseman, undertook the catching job and handled Liggett's slants brilliantly.

Credit for the win belonged as much to Joe Ciomei and Klein, outfielder, as to Liggett. With two men on in seventh, and Klein nursing a 3-2 lead, Ciomei snagged what

Georgia Coleman's Health Improved

Los Angeles, July 2 (INS).—Tired from the trip but with health improved, Georgia Coleman, 1932 Olympic diving champion, returned today from New York City where she suffered a collapse. Miss Coleman was stricken with infantile paralysis in 1937, but has been waging a winning fight against the disease.

Jack and Hannah Extend Thanks To Well-Wishers

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 2.—Well on the road to recovery, Jack Dempsey today made a blanket acknowledgement of the thousands of messages he nas received from well wishers since his emergency appendicitis operation last Thursday.

In a signed note sent down from his room to reporters waiting at the hospital, Jack said:

"Hannah and I heartily thank all the kind friends and well wishers who sent messages of sympathy, cheer and encouragement. I'd like to greet and thank each one personally, but at present that's impossible. They helped me to get well."

Dempsey So Much Improved That Doctor Leaves Hospital

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 2.—Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, is so much improved there will be no further bulletins issued regarding his condition "unless there is a marked change in his condition."

That was the word issued at 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) by A. A. Jaller, executive officer of the Polyclinic Hospital where Dempsey has been fighting the ravages of peritonitis, following an appendix operation Thursday night.

Dempsey phoned his home this morning and talked to his children.

DiMaggio Denies Marriage Reports

Boston, July 2.—Joe DiMaggio, star Yankee outfielder, tonight denied reports he had flown to New York and married Dorothy Arnold, pretty night club and radio singer.

Joe and Dorothy have admitted they are engaged, but the ballplayer says wedding plans will have to wait until after the baseball season.

Dykes and Lyons Banished; Hank Greenberg Fined $50

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 2.—Manager Jimmy Dykes, Pitcher Ted Lyons and Third Baseman Eric McNair, of the Chicago White Sox, were banished from the playing field at Briggs Stadium today in the fourth inning of the game between the Pale Hose and the Detroit Tigers. The incident followed a disturbance yesterday for which Hank Greenburg, Detroit first baseman, was fined $50 by President William Harridge, of the American League, who also criticized "certain" White Sox players for what he termed "unsportsmanlike conduct."

The row today developed when Umpire Ed Rommel called a third strike on McNair. The latter threw his bat high in the air and Rommel ordered him to the showers. Dykes came charging from the White Sox dugout but before he could reach Rommel, First Base Umpire Cal Hubbard told him he was through. During the argument that followed, several bats were thrown from the Chicago dugout toward the first base coaching box and Hubbard immediately ordered Lyons to the showers.

Near-Record Crowd Sees Cubs Split With Reds; Take Third

42,094 See Hosts Take Nightcap, 9-8

Cincinnati Wins Opener, 11-3, as Derringer Stars; Frey Gets Homer

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 2.—The Chicago Cubs moved into third place today by splitting a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds before an overflow crowd of 42,094, largest of the season, at Wrigley Field.

The league-leading Reds, bombarding three Cub pitchers for 17 hits, smothered their rivals in the first game, 11 to 3, only to lose the nightcap in the ninth inning, 9 to 8.

Paul Derringer gave the Cubs six hits in the first game for his tenth victory while his mates sewed up the game with a five-run outburst in the third inning, including home runs by Lonnie Frey and Ernie Lombardi.

The crowd that packed the Cubs' park was the largest since the first game of the team's pennant-deciding series with Pittsburgh last September. An estimated 10,000 customers were turned away.

Dizzy Dean started the second game and lasted eight and one-third innings, giving up 10 hits before he was jerked during the Reds' four-run rally that tied the score. Harry Craft's triple with the bases loaded was the blow that tied the count.

Browns Split With Indians, 4-3 and 8-2

Mills and Mel Harder Each Pitch 5-Hit Game for Victory

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 2.—Two five-hit pitching performances split a double-header today between the St. Louis Browns and the Cleveland Indians.

Howard Mills hurled the first one, which the Browns won, 4 to 3. The veteran Mel Harder produced another, giving the Indians an 8-to-2 victory.

Johnny Allen and Mills dueled for eight innings in the opener. Then with the score knotted at one run apiece, St. Louis hopped on the Indian right-hander for three runs in their last turn at bat.

The Indians came back with two of their own and had a man on third with one out when Trosky popped up and Outfielder Jeff Heath fanned.

Cleveland grabbed two runs in the first inning of the nightcap and was never headed. First Baseman Hal Trosky pounded out his seventh homer of the year in the fifth inning.

Bees Take Double Bill From Phils

Simmons, Lopez Homer As Boston Captures 9-7 and 4-3 Decisions

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, July 2.—Two timely home runs by Al Lopez and Eddie Miller, plus sparkling defensive play, gave the Boston Bees a clean sweep of a double-header from the Phillies today, 9 to 7 and 4 to 3.

Lopez plastered one of Hugh Mulcahy's pitches into the leftfield stands with the bases full in the second inning of the first game to provide the margin of victory. Miller hit his homer off Syl Johnson with two on in the fourth inning of the nightcap, to break a scoreless tie. Al Simmons and Joe Marty also hit homers in the first game. The Bees got six double plays in the two games.

Manager Casey Stengel, of the Bees, and Merrill May, of the Phils, were banished in the eighth inning of the first game for punching each other after May had bowled over Miller at second trying to prevent a double play.

Brooklyn, Giants Split Two Games

Leo Durocher Ousted In 4th After Run-In With Zeke Bonura

By the Associated Press

New York, July 2.—Those bitter cross-town rivals, the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants, split a double-head today to the divided satisfaction of 51,435 loudly partisan fans.

With Luke Hamlin pitching six-hit ball, the Dodgers took the opener, 3 to 2, and then lost the nightcap, 6-4, to the home run slugging of the Giants.

A circuit blow by Mel Ott with one on in the eighth robbed Hamlin of a shutout. Meanwhile the Dodgers put together three hits for two runs in the second and three more for the deciding run in the third. All the scoring was done off young Bill Lohrman.

The Giants took a four-run lead in the first two frames of the second game as Zeke Bonura and Lou Chiozza hit homers to drive undefeated Whitlow Wyatt out of the box. The Dodgers later tied the score but another home run by Harry Danning put the Giants back in front to stay and caused Ira Hutchinson to be charged with the loss.

The second game was punctuated by heated arguments and was played under protest by the Giants because Manager Bill Terry declared Hutchinson was making an illegal delivery.

Manager Leo Durocher, of the Dodgers, had a run in with Bonura in the fourth and was expelled by Umpire Babe Pinelli. The big New York first baseman was either spiked or elbowed by Durocher, who had hit into a double play. Bonura first threw the ball and then his glove at the opposing pilot, and the two tangled near first base only to be separated by players before doing any damage.

White Sox Are Beaten By Tigers, 5-1

Dykes' Efforts Fail To Stop Battling; 3 Men Banished

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 2.—All of the efforts of Manager Jimmy Dykes to keep his athletes from warring with enemy players and the umpires came to naught today as the Detroit Tigers handed the Pale Hose a 5-to-1 beating behind the four-hit flinging of Tommy Bridges.

Before the game, Dykes was handed a telegram from President William Harridge, of the American League, which advised him that he blamed the Chisox at least in part for a row that occurred yesterday when Hank Greenberg, of the Tigers, took a slap at Joe Kuhel, Chicago's first sacker. Greenberg was fined $50.

"So he thinks we talk too much," said Dykes. "I'll settle that."

Thereupon Dykes sent all of the players who were not actually in the game to the centerfield bullpen, leaving the bench for himself and Coaches Billy Webb and Monty Stratton.

All went well until the fourth inning when Umpire Ed Rommel called a third strike on Eric McNair and the Chicago third sacker threw his bat high in the air. The arbiter chased McNair and when Dykes and Pitcher Ted Lyons got in the argument they too departed, the former going to the bullpen, from where he wig-wagged signals to the bench.

Mel Shorey's Birdie on 19th Hole Beats Walper and Thomson

Spencer's 67 Features Match at Washington; Foursome 12 Under Par

Mrs. Meckley, Sharkey Win Fourball Play; Cox Has 67 at Congressional; Pennoyer Leads at Army-Navy; Furlow Winner

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Mel Shorey's 18-foot birdie putt on the nineteenth hole netted a 1-up victory for the East Potomac pro and Cliff Spencer, the District's National P. G. A. entrants, over Leo Walper and Dave Thomson in a par-smashing exhibition yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Spencer, Beaver Dam pro, led the sub-par assault over the Virginia course with a 67, three under regulation figures, while host mentor Thomson was a shot higher, with 68. Walper was one over par with 71 and Shorey, with a seven on his card, had 72. The foursome divided 14 birdies, and had a best ball of 58 for the par 70 course.

After Walper's birdie 3 won the first hole, Spencer came through with three in a row, 2-3-4, for a 2-up lead, and he and Shorey held the margin to the turn, aided by Shorey's pars on seven and eight. The Walper-Thomson duo made it all even on the twelfth as the latter birdied 10 and 11, and Walper also dropped a birdie putt on 12, and another on 14 for a deuce. Thomson's birdie on the fifteenth gave his team a 2-up lead.

Shorey dropped his second shot on the sixteenth inches from the cup for a sure birdie, while Spencer holed a putt half the length of the green to halve it, and the long-hitting Beaver Dam mentor squared the match with a perfectly played birdie on 17. They halved the final hole in pars, and Shorey, one of the finest putters in the city, lived up to his reputation with the winning birdie on the first extra hole.

Spencer's five birdies led the list, while Thompson with four, Walper three and Shorey two piled up the total of 14. Both teams had best ball totals of 65 for the round. The pros treated one of the largest crowds of the season to the finest scoring exhibition.

In the interclub team play at Washington, White's Pelicans defeated Franklin's Boaster, 9½ to 8½, while Pomeroy's Dingbats won easily over Hotze's Moaners, 15 to 3.

Georgetown Upsets Giants

Semi-Pro Nine Takes Twin Bill, 3-2 and 5-4

Georgetown A. C., a semipro ball club of the Colored Inter-City League, pulled one of the major upsets of the local season yesterday when it turned back the Washington Royal Giants in both ends of a double-header, 3 to 2 and 5 to 4.

Feature of the twin bill was Frazier's 5-hit pitching against the pride of the Giants, Walker, in the first game. Frazier's mates pounded the opposition for nine safeties, most of them coming in the eighth inning when the Athletics came from behind with all three of their runs. The Giants outhit Georgetown, 15-7, in the second game, but were held safe by excellent infield work.

Blair Signs to Meet Mamakos In Feature at Stadium Monday

Unable to obtain a ranking welterweight contender to face Steve Mamakos at the stadium next Monday night, the fistic team of Turner and Ahearn announced yesterday that Frankie Blair has signed for the 10-round feature match with the Golden Greek.

Known as a "spoiler," Blair's most recent victory in New York was scored at the expense of none other than Glenn Lee, the Nebraska Wildcat, whom he stopped in five rounds. Previous to flattening Lee Blair upset Cal Cagney, Al Weill's promising welterweight, who last summer floored Mamakos and gave him his closest fight in a string of 22 consecutive victories.

Blair agreed to the bout after Ken Overlin, Sammy Luftspring, the Canadian champion, and Jimmy Leto, No. 1 welterweight, had turned down offers from Turner and Ahearn.

Mamakos, now the fifth ranking contender for the crown worn by Henry Armstrong, could bolster his championship claims considerably with a victory over Blair, who was recognized as the No. 1 welterweight little more than a year ago.

873 Score of Walsh Paces G-Men in Small Bore Matches

By the Associated Press

Camp Ritchie, Md., July 2.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation added the individual .22-caliber championship to its list of titles when sharpshooting Walter Walsh amassed the highest aggregate score in the slow fire, timed fire, rapid fire and National Match Course matches here today.

Walsh, who broke the world record for individual center-fire pistol shooting yesterday, tied for first in the timed fire match with 199 out of a possible 200, then took second in the slow fire match with a 191, first in the rapid fire with 197, and fifth in the National Match Course with a 286.

His total score for the four matches was 873 out of a possible 900. Capt. Sidney Hinds, of Fort Harrison, Ind., was second with 871 and Paul Goulden, of the United States Coast Guard, Washington, was third with 861.

The matches were part of the Eastern small bore and pistol championships being held on this mountain-ringed target range.

W. H. Oakley, of East Falls Church, Va., and Tom Arnold, of Hyattsville, Md., won the Eastern two-man small bore rifle championship, shooting 774 to beat the team of Walter Stokes, Washington, D. C., and Hugh Riley, Arlington, Va., second with a 764.

Fourth in this match were Roy W. Livingston, Hopewell, Va., and Chester Woo, Washington, D. C., with a 761.

Two D. C. Skippers Seek Sailing Berths

Annapolis, July 2.—One of two District youths, Melville Grosvenor, skipper of the Escape, which won the starboat race off Gibson Island this afternoon, or Dave Dunigan, who, in his Wave, was second, will qualify for the international starboat races to be held at Kiel, Germany, in the middle of August.

The Wave, owned and handled by Dunigan, won the first race of the series and the two are now knotted for first place with the honor to be decided in the third race, which is to be held on July 4.

The Escape won this afternoon over a triangular course, starting and ending near Mountain Point, in 1 hour, 6 minutes and 14 seconds, the Wave being 2 minutes and 50 seconds behind.

Cotton Rules 5-1 Choice in British Open

Little, Bulla Given Good Chance to Win 72-Hole Tournament

By the United Press.

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 2.—It was Henry Cotton against the field tonight as upward of 250 golfers came in from their last practice rounds for the first round of the seventy-ninth British open golf championship tomorrow.

Cotton, winner in 1934 and 1937, was quoted a 5-1 favorite by the bookmakers. He turned in a sparkling 69, four under par, in practice.

In second place, at 6 to 1, was 21-year-old Arthur D'Arcy Locke of South Africa. Down in the pack were a couple of Americans at 8-1—Lawson Little, winner of the U. S. and British amateur titles in 1934 and 1935, and Johnny Bulla, professional from Chicago. The other American entrant, George Low, of Jenkintown, Pa., was 12-1.

Although Cotton was on top, nobody was conceding him the title because this 72-hole tournament shapes up like a wide-open affair. Argentina has a delegation of six men in the field, headed by Jose Jurado, who finished second to Tommy Armour in the 1931 open.

Little and Bulla are conceded an excellent chance. The British still remember Lawson from the days when he was king of the amateurs and, to quote him: "We have an excellent chance of winning. Bulla and Low are in good form and if I regain my putting touch I'll be right up there."

Bulla says he likes this 6,612 course with its par 73, and he doesn't mind the wind which blows over it almost constantly. The natives have gone for him because of the way he belts his tee shots. Bulla surprised them in practice with tee shots that sailed 15 and 20 yards beyond those of England's Archie Compston, one of the longest hitters in Europe.

The tournament will last five days, with 18-hole qualifying rounds tomorrow and Tuesday over two courses—the "old" and "new." At the end of those 36, the low 130—if any players tie for the 130th position they are eliminated—move into the championship proper of 72 holes. Single rounds will be played Wednesday and Thursday on the "old course" with the low 44—ties again are out—going into the final 36 on Friday.

Lynch Double Victor In District Net Play

Hugh Lynch, second-seeded player, became the first quarter-finalist in the open tennis championships at Columbia Country Club yesterday by winning two matches

Former Princeton Star Leads Way Into Quarter-Finals as Eight Seeded Stars Advance; Bensinger and Brooks Beaten

By Jack Munhall.

Out of a welter of minor upsets and hard-fought matches in the second, third and fourth rounds of the District Men's tennis championships at Columbia yesterday Hugh Lynch, seeded second, emerged a double victor and became the first quarter-finalist.

The former Princeton star led the way as the eight seeded players advanced without casualty by trouncing Bobby Bensinger, District and Middle Atlantic boys' champion, 6—4, 6—0, in the third round, and Lieut. H. E. Brooks, Army Leech Cup star, 6—2, 6—3 in the only third round match played.

Brooks, who earlier had accounted for one of the stronger unseeded players when he turned back Austin Rice, 6—2, 6—4, gave Lynch a pretty stiff battle all the way but was outgeneraled at the net.

Five Eliminated

Brooks was one of five Army and Navy Leech Cup eligibles who were eliminated during the course of the day. Most noteworthy of the service victims was Capt. Stanley K. Robinson, U. S. A., who fell before S. P. Hayes, New England's third-ranking player in 1937, 6—0, 8—6.

The only entry from either branch of service who survives is Lieut. Gabriel C. Russell, 1938 United States Army champion and runner-up to Cadet Dick Tindall for current honors. Russell won two matches, defeating Lieut. W. S. McCormick, U. S. N., 6—0, 6—0, in the second round, and Max Bost, 6—1, 6—2, in the second. McCormick suffered injury to his right wrist in the first set when he fell chasing a ball. Ex-rays were made but it has not yet been learned whether his injury is a bad sprain or a break.

Barney Welsh, six-time defending champion who is playing under the handicap of a painfully cut third finger on his right hand, showed great improvement over his Saturday's form as he whipped Miguel Nunez, 6—2, 6—1,

Mitchell, Johnson Score

Third-seeded Dooley Mitchell and fourth-seeded Davie Johnson each won in straight sets but both were extended. Mitchell found youthful Ken Dalby, former Western High ace, troublesome but used his drop shot to telling advantage for a 6—2, 6—3 victory. Johnsen, not up to his best form, defeated Lieut. H. B. Thatcher after a stubborn fight, 7—5, 6—3.

Billy Turner, recent winner of the Junior Davis Cup tournament, recorded a slight upset when he went three sets to beat Ricky Willis, 7—5, 12—14, and 8—6 in a match every bit as close as the scores indicate. It was the eighth straight time in three-set matches that Turner has given his opponent a set before winning.

Second round—R. Donovan defeated Lieut. Bell by default; Johnsen defeated Herbert, 6—2, 7—5; Thatcher defeated Burgess, 6—1, 6—4; Russell defeated McCormick, 6—0, 6—0; Capt. Robinson defeated Fontainini, 6—4, 6—4; Moorhead defeated Kelles, 6—2, 6—1; Drake defeated Dewsnup, 6—2, 6—1.

Third round—Welsh defeated Nunez, 6—2, 6—1; Shore defeated Contreras, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3; Stocklinski defeated Drake, 6—3, 1—6, 7—5; Shelton defeated Judd, 6—2, 8—6; Adair defeated Silva, 6—2, 7—5; Moorhead defeated Taylor, 6—2, 6—1; Lynch defeated Bensinger, 6—4, 6—0; Lieut. Brooks defeated Rice, 6—2, 6—4; Donovan defeated Sturtevant, 6—2, 6—4; Turner defeated Willis, 7—5, 12—14, 6—2; Brinkerhoff defeated D. Bill, 6—3, 6—0; Smith defeated Becker, 7—5, 6—0; Lieut. Russell defeated Host, 6—1, 6—2; Johnsen defeated Lieut. Thatcher, 7—5, 6—3; Hayes defeated Capt. Robinson, 6—0, 8—6; Mitchell defeated Dalby, 6—2, 6—3.

Fourth round—Lynch defeated Lieut. Brooks, 6—2, 6—3.

Nats Defeat A's Twice, Gain Sixth

Lewis' Home Run In Ninth Inning Captures Opener

went to bat in that first inning, and twice he doubled.

Before the game was over, Welaj added a pair of well-tagged left-field singles to his pair of doubles. And a fancy, one-handed catch by Bob Johnson in deep left robbed him of another extra-base hit. Six runs Welaj drove in with his four hits, to lead the Nats' 18-blow attack on Lovell Dean and Bob Joyce.

Pete Appleton was the winning pitched in the first game, but he probably prefers that no questions be asked. Appleton made only four pitches to receive credit for the triumph. He relieved young Walter Masterson with two out and the bases full in the ninth inning, and Sam Chapman at bat. Appleton's fourth pitch to Chapman was a terrific line drive into the hands of Buddy Lewis, who stepped on third base for a side-retiring double play.

It was "Tipton Day" at Griffith Stadium yesterday for 1,000 Petersburg, Va., citizens, come to honor the native son in home-plate ceremonies. Red Tipton, Duke's All-American football star who made the big jump from college baseball to the big leagues, failed to produce any ecstasy among his admirers, however. In eight times at bat, he walked once, made one hit, hit into double plays twice with the bases full, and struck out on his last appearance at the plate.

Despite the nine walks he issued the A's in the first game, young Masterson made a valiant battle of it against Beckman after shoddy fielding by the Nats figured in two of the three Philadelphia runs. He held them scoreless after the second inning, but he was backed by a brilliant infield defense which nipped the A's with four double-plays.

Ferrell Fielding Hero

Rick Ferrell was the fielding hero. With the bases full of Mackmen in the eighth inning and the A's leading 3-2, Ferrell grabbed Ambler's tap in front of the plate, stepped on the plate for a force-out and then doubled Ambler with a throw to Prichard. And in the ninth, after two more of his walks and an infield hit by Johnson had filled the bases again with one out, Masters was relieved by Appleton, who was rescued by Lewis' lightning stab of Chapman's liner.

Encouraged by a base on balls issued to Johnny Lodigiani, lead-off man, the A's scored two runs off Masterson in the first inning, but a muff by Buddy Lewis on Hayes' grounder figured in one of the scores. And in the second inning, it was a fumble by Bobby Estalella in left field that gave the A's a 3-0 lead.

In the fourth the Nats finally roused themselves and scored a pair of runs. Buddy Myer beat out a bunt and Estalella blasted a single off Beckman's shins. Ferrell scored Myer with a single to left and sent Estalella to second. Masterson grounded to Ambler who attempted to touch Ferrell on the base lines, but failing that threw out Masterson at first. Ferrell was later doubled up on the play, but Estalella scored before the out was made and the run counted.

That was the last important thing that happened to Beckman until Lewis whacked that first pitch over the fence in the ninth.

The second game began and ended in the first inning as far as the result was concerned. Eleven Nats went to bat in the inning and Lovell Dean could get only two them out. The third man out in the inning was Dean himself. He was relieved by Joyce after six runs crossed the plate.

Welaj doubled against the left-field wall. Prichard beat out a bunt to Dean. Lewis scored a run with a single to center. Wright forced Lewis, scoring Prichard. Gelbert grounded out to Newsome. Bloodworth doubled to left scoring Wright. Estalella walked. Giuliani singled to center scoring Bloodworth. Krakauskas walked to fill the bases. Welaj hit his second double of the inning—a hot blast off Ambler's shoulder—to drive in the fifth and sixth runs. Joyce finally got the third man out.

From that point it was a breeze for the Nats. Krakauskas, who allowed 11 hits, didn't permit more than one to an inning until the eighth. Welaj drove in two more runs in the fifth with a single and in the fifth Joyce walked Krakky to force a run across, and Welaj produced another single that scored two more. In the seventh Wright, Gelbert and Bloodworth rapped out singles to move two more runs home. It was fun.

Steel Output Slips in Week To 54 Per Cent

Holiday and Inventory Expected to Curtail Activity This Week

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 2.—There will be a sharp let-down this week in steel production, but a prompt recovery from the influence of the holiday and plant vacations is indicated, the magazine Steel said today. Ingot production last week declined ½ point to 54 per cent. A year ago it was 28.

Closing of a number of plants for Independence Day and inventory is having a temporary effect on steel shipments, but prospects are favorable for the maintenance of steel making near its recent level during most of July and August.

The tendency toward firmer steel prices continues. Uncertainity over probable steel requirements of some leading consumers the next six months prevents any accurate forecast of the long range trend in steel making. Steel releases from auto parts makers are growing.

The steel-making rate was unchanged last week at most centers. Chicago gained 1½ per cent to 51; Cincinnati, 5 to 65. Losses were 4½ to 51 at Cleveland, 3 to 51 at Youngstown and 4½ to 35 at Buffalo. Unchanged Pittsburgh at 47; eastern Pennsylvania, 38; Wheeling, 79; Birmingham, 71; New England, 32; Detroit, 57, and St. Louis, 42.

A small decline at Chicago lowered the scrap composite 8 cents to $14.54; the finished steel composite is unchanged at $55.70.

Debt Is the Basic Cause Of Depression, Babson Says

Loans and Mortgages at Peak in 1929 Installment Obligations Now Mounting Big Business Benefits by Low Interest

By Roger W. Babson

Gloucester, Mass., July 2.—Most economists and businessmen agree that the real cause of depression is debt. In 1929, personal bank loans, business loans, brokers' loans, and mortgages on homes and other real estate were at all-time highs. Everyone owed everyone else. When the burden of this debt finally became too heavy, the whole structure collapsed. A good deal of this private debt was liquidated from 1929 to 1932. Since then debts have been increasing rapidly again. The President's latest scheme of issuing $3,000,000,000 of fancy Government bonds is the limit.

In general, since 1933, people have been encouraged to get into debt rather than to get out of debt. For instance, for every dollar that loans on securities have been cut down by New Deal insistence on higher margins, loans on houses have been increased by reducing the down payment. In 1929, a man could buy conservative stocks by putting up 20 per cent of the money, but he could not buy a home unless he put up 30 to 40 per cent. Today, a man can buy a home if he can make a down payment of 10 to 20 per cent, but he cannot buy stocks or bonds unless he can lay 40 per cent on the counter.

ROGER W. BABSON

Installment Sales Booming

Installment debt has also increased sensationally. The Administration sponsored installment selling under the provisions of the first housing act. People were allowed to paint their houses, rebuild their roofs, and do other repair work on an easy-payment basis. The Government also encouraged the sale of electrical appliances on a time basis. This was splendid advertising for time sales schemes. In the boomlet of 1936-1937, installment selling went on a rampage from which it has not yet returned.

Installment selling has spread into many other fields. Look at your current mail-order catalogue and see how some concerns are merchandising "soft" goods on an easy-payment basis. You can buy anything today—even shirts, socks and underwear—on time payments if your total order amounts to $10. Installment selling has made it more difficult than ever to forecast business conditions. Ten years ago if you knew the value of inventories unsold and the amount of bank loans outstanding, you had a good idea as to the trend of future business. Today, the amount owed on installment contracts is also a tremendous factor.

Debt Reduction Discouraged

Not only has little been done to help reduce debt, but the recent tax laws have discouraged businessmen in doing so. For instance, if a small and financially weak concern could buy up its notes at a substantial discount the discount would have to be reported at the end of the year as profit and be taxed at 12 to 16 per cent. Meanwhile, big business concerns, whose bonds and notes have been selling at par or better, have been calling their bonds and refinancing their debt. They have thus been able to take advantage of the lowest interest rates in history and have cut their fixed charges drastically. The small businessman has been unable to do this.

The latest idea in Washington is to encourage debt reduction. It will permit financially weak concerns to buy in their interest-bearing obligations at less than par without incurring a tax liability. As far as helping out the smaller businessman from a credit standpoint, this is the first forward step that Congress has taken in a long time. The undistributed profits tax was also a handicap to business concerns, big and small, who wanted to cut their debts. This tax is being completely abolished in the new "business relief" tax measure now going through Congress.

The bill, which wipes out the tax liability incurred by a company buying in its own obligations below par, is a constructive step. It can become a definite aid to executives, workers and investors of weak business concerns. This new program should help to strengthen many second-grade bond and note issues. In fact, with high-grade corporation bonds selling at all-time highs, many business and professional men, who can afford to take a little extra risk, may be wiser in buying some of the better second-grade issues.

Debt No Longer Disgrace

As I write this column at my birthplace by the sea, I am forcibly reminded of the great change that has taken place since the World War in people's attitude toward debt. Only 25 years ago debt, like smallpox, was something to avoid. Banks, schools and parents encouraged savings. The goal of all was a bank account—even though it started at only $1. Mortgages were a disgrace.

Today, I find an entire change of sentiment here in the old city. Banks, schools and parents no longer encourage deposits. Debt is no longer shunted. Despite this change in attitude, I cannot believe that debt is any less dangerous today than it ever was. Yet, even in the face of this situation, I am optimistic on business for the near future. In fact, June industrial activity was considerably better than May. Moreover, July should be as good a business month as June. However, the changed attitude as to thrift and debt, if continued, makes me very fearful that we are heading into a terrible smash some day!

Rukeyser Says: Politicians Prevent Prosperity

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
International News Economic Commentator

New York, July 2.—Potential prosperity has been aborted by the misbehavior of politicians. Fears over Tientsin and over Danzig have followed other tense moments incidental to the Austrian and Czecho-Slovak crisis. Uncertainty deprives the current generation, in Europe especially, of the peace of mind which it deserves. From an economic standpoint, the jitteriness means that plans for long-term investment in new plants, projects, and civilizing ideas have been still born.

The cost of high jinks by totalitarian adventurers can be measured by both positive and negative terms.

On the positive side, there is the increase in the cost of preparedness in all the principal nations of the world. In human terms, this means a diversion of productive facilities and manpower from comfort goods for the people to equipment for Mars.

On the negative side, the cost is even greater. The human race is temporarily deprived of the "more abundant life" which modern technology, superior tools and power equipment otherwise would make feasible. Peoples everywhere are deprived of the potential immense rise in living standards which would come from a balancing of national economies.

In other words, rotten politics has become the human race's largest extravagance. Saber rattling is lowering living standards when science and invention and business initiative are ready to elevate them.

What is the meaning of all this to Americans?

It seems to me that the existing strained atmosphere is inconsistent with the goody-goody theories of the Hull administration of the State Department, which has been seeking to practice mid-Victorian economies leaning toward free trade which is predicated on assurance of international peace

With the warlords ever marching or threatening to do so, it is not advisable to count on humans and benevolent trade policies from foreign nations such as might warrant our practicing the "unconditional most favored-nation" principle.

On the contrary, a realistic reading of the course of events dictates the wisdom of laying increasing emphasis over here on our home market. This would be based on a recognition that most of our turnover in the coming decade is likely to be based on trades amoung our home population.

Great expansion of turnover therefore will depend on success in opening up new markets within our own gates through raising still higher the living standards of our people. This requires more than mere fiat efforts through legislation. It entails increasing the productivity of persons in backward regions and sweated industries. And it also involves still greater improvement in techniques and efficiency in the more progressive industries.

Once these concepts are clearly in mind, foreign policy will be related to the paramount needs of the internal economy. Home industry and home agriculture will no longer be subject to lynching by free trade theorists. Back in 1934-1935, George N. Peek, as special foreign trade adviser to the President, exercising foresight, pointed out the need of changing tariff and trade policies. But the President, in choosing, decided to back Mr. Hull and his outmoded thinking. Now events are catching up with us, and the realties are likely to govern.

Lumber Orders Are 17 Per Cent Above Last Year

The lumber industry during the week ended June 24 stood at 66 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of production in 1929, 69 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of shipments in 1929, and 75 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of new business in 1929, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important softwood and hardwood mills.

Reported new orders in the week ended June 24 were 21 per cent in excess of the seasonal weekly average of 1938 orders. Reported production was 18 per cent above the seasonal weekly average of 1938 production, and shipments were 14 per cent in excess of 1938 seasonal weekly shipments.

Compared with the preceding week, production of the week ended June 24 was 4 per cent below that week's output; shipments were 2 per cent below shipments, and new orders were 2 per cent below the new business of that 1939 peak week. New business was 5 per cent above production, and shipments were 2 per cent below output in the week ended June 24.

Reported production for the 25 weeks of the year to date was 19 per cent above corresponding weeks of 1938; shipments were 15 per cent above the shipments, and new orders were 17 per cent above the orders of the 1938 period. New business for the 25 weeks of 1939 was 7 per cent above output, and shipments were 5 per cent above output.

LAWYERS' BRIEFS

Big Bank Finds Business Level 'Well-Supported'

New York, July 2 (AP).—The National City Bank of New York said today in its monthly economic review the present level of business is "well supported" following the late spring upturn. "Factory payrolls and farm incomes are larger than a year ago and will buy more due to lower prices," the bank noted.

"The Government is supporting construction and relief work and spreading purchasing power through its cash deficit at an average rate of $250,000,000 or more a month.

"Conservative buying policies have kept the markets orderly, commitments for merchandise and raw materials are low and inventories in distributors' and manufacturers' hands present no troublesome problems.

"Monetary influences are all of a kind to support business and industrial costs, while high, are not rising.

"The steady movement of distribution and consumption is shown by the rise of railway freight car loadings to a new high for the year and by retail sales that on the whole are good. Sales of household equipment are active, which is reflected in the orders reaching the electrical companies.

"The mail order houses are doing exceptional business."

Chain Store Tax Idea Proves a Boomerang

Agitation for chain store taxes in 1938 proved a boomerang to its sponsors, bringing chain stores a larger share of the total retail business, a study of Department of Commerce figures shows.

The report reveals that the sales of independent stores declined 200 per cent more than did the chains' volume as compared to the 1937 level.

Instalment Terms For New Midget Car

Cincinnati, July 2.—The new midget automobile of Crosley Corporation, the first car to be merchandized through department stores since the auto industry's infant days, will be sold for $75 down and $10 a month, it is announced.

World Commodity Index

New York City Bank, Insurance Stocks Decline

New York, July 2.—There was a sharp reaction in the New York bank stock market during the past week with substantial losses recorded at the close, according to figures compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, specialists in bank and insurance stocks. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues on June 30 was $1,411,407,000 compared with $1,472,863,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $61,456,000, or 4.17 per cent.

Insurance stocks in the New York City market also declined to lower levels during the past week. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on June 30 was $579,438,000 compared with $598,797,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $19,359,000, or 3.23 per cent.

Prints Enhance Colonial Entrance

Colored prints, old maps and pictures of historical subjects enhance the charm of the entranceway in a Colonial house. As such entranceways are usually small, the lower portion of the wall—oftentimes vertically paneled—may be painted white, while the upper wall is finished in soft, creamy yellow.

Hang the prints against this yellow background, and add a mahogany-framed mirror above a card table of Chippendale design. If there is room, a pair of mahogany chairs of quaint ladder back design will prove effective. For the floor, select a rich mahogany color of paint to match the brown mahogany handrail and newel posts of the stairs.

The remainder of the woodwork of the stairs should be painted white. Hand-hooked rugs with brilliantly colored floral designs should be spread on the floor.

IN MEMORIAM

JONES, ROBERTA J. In memory of our dear mother, ROBERTA J. JONES, who departed this life one year ago, July 3, 1938.
One year ago, precious mother
Since you went to your heavenly home,
To be with Jesus to wait for my coming;
Precious mother, we have missed you.
A vacant chair no one can fill,
But those last comforting words you left
Still linger in our hearts. "Don't grieve,
Jesus is my best friend."
So we can live and shine for Jesus and
Meet you in that beautiful home prepared for God's children.
HUSBAND AND SON,
JOSEPHINE E. GRIMSLEY.

TRADITION-BREAKING ORDER IN THE STATE HOUSE, BOSTON: NEW GOVERNOR SALTONSTALL DOES NOT WISH THE ELEVATORS TO MAKE A NON-STOP TRIP TO HIS OFFICE WHEN HE APPEARS. HE LIKES TO RIDE WITH THE CLERKS.
YOU CAN'T TELL ABOUT THESE FOREIGNERS. HARDBOILED GENERALS WEAR SLEEVE-HANDKERCHIEFS. AND EVEN LONG, TOUGH-FIBRED KING GUSTAV OF SWEDEN, AN ATHLETE AT 81, OFTEN SPORTS A SNAKE BRACELET.
NO AMOUNT OF HER GREAT & SERIOUS ACTING CAN HIDE THE FACT THAT HELEN HAYES IS A CUT-UP. LAST NEW YEAR'S EVE, AT THE SECOND CURTAIN CALL AFTER HER PERFORMANCE OF "VICTORIA," SHE PULLED A RED HORN FROM HER WHEEL CHAIR, BLEW A RAUCOUS BLAST ON IT!

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Quite a few faces must have been made by the declarer of today's hand, who, after uninspired defense, managed to bring about a squeeze for his three no-trump contract.

Today's Hand

Neither side vulnerable.
NORTH DEALER.

	♠ J 10 ♡ J 10 ◇ Q J 10 9 4 3 ♣ Q 7 2
♠ K 9 5 4 ♡ K 5 4 ◇ 7 6 ♣ A J 10 4	WEST — NORTH — EAST — SOUTH	♠ 8 7 6 2 ♡ 9 8 7 3 ◇ 8 2 ♣ K 6 3
	♠ A Q 3 ♡ A Q 6 2 ◇ A K 5 ♣ 9 3 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ♣.

Here is the way he describes it:

"West led the jack of clubs; dummy played the deuce. East the six and declarer the five. West continued with the club ten, and East took with the king.

"Now if East had shifted to either a heart or a spade I would have been defeated. However, he continued a club and West cashed his two club tricks.

"On trick five, West led a diamond which was taken by South's ace and the ace of hearts was led, followed by the diamond king and a small diamond. On the lead of the fifth diamond the cards were as follows:

	♠ J ♡ J ◇ 3 ♣ None
♠ K 4 ♡ K ◇ None ♣ None	WEST — NORTH — EAST — SOUTH	♠ 8 ♡ 9 8 ◇ None ♣ None
	♠ A Q ♡ Q ◇ None ♣ None

"On the sixth diamond South discarded the heart queen and West was on the spot. If he threw off the heart king the jack would be high in dummy and the spade ace in the South hand. If West discarded the spade four, South would lead the spade jack and cash the ace and queen.

"Declarer made three no trump, losing four club tricks."

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

That "hot weather" agreement is still cooking. The question, broached by members of the UFWA as to whether a definite policy might be established whereby employes will be dismissed before the 4:30 whistle on tropical afternoons, is now before the Council of Personnel Administration. No definite time has been given by the council as to when a reply will be made although they are working right along with a study of the situation.

With bombs (and Roman candles) getting ready to burst in the air for the Fourth, the Smithsonian Institution has just received a "patriotic" item for its collection.

This new addition to the Federal Government's curios is the gold medal which was awarded by Congress to Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott, burly leader of the American forces during the Mexican War. Gen. Scott, as you may remember, is the gentleman sitting on the horse at that traffic-infested circle at Sixteenth street and Massachusetts avenue. We can't recall at this moment whether he's riding downtown or uptown . . . anyway, he's the one.

The medal was bequeathed to the Smithsonian by Mrs. Virginia Scott Hoyt, of New York City, a descendant of its original owner. The institute already has on velvet a similar one which was awarded to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

According to a memo from the museum, there are only a few of these decorations in existence. One was given to George Washington at the end of the Revolution and one to Andrew Jackson for scaring the British home in the War of 1812.

They're about the size of a fair-sized saucer and it took a big man to wear them on his chest and not look as if he were being ambushed. Only the top-ranking soldiers—the commanding generals—could hope to get them. The others had to be satisfied with being awarded silver badges.

After J. Edgar Hoover's address to the Boy Scouts at the World's Fair, it certainly looks as if America's future citizens will have to do more than just one good deed a day in order to keep up with the times. Quick-on-the-draw Hoover pointed out to the young faces lifted to his that they were 1,221,000 strong. From our way of thinking that sounds like a good number, but Mr. Hoover went on to add that they were outnumbered almost four to one by the forces of evil. Counting all murderers, thieves, burglars, embezzlers, arsonists, kidnapers, extortionists and other offenders against the law, there are 4,750,000 beyond the pale, but not all behind the bars. Thinking of that makes you afraid to go out on the street alone.

Fair and Lighter—The next performance of the Federal Employes Playhouse according to Lee Shugar will take place on July 13 at the Agriculture Department.

The quizz program which will be conducted by Gordon Hittenmark, WRC, and Lee Everett, WMAL, will deal mainly with governmental questions in which Federal employes are interested. Shugar is polling employes now for questions, and he promises that if you come around you'll get a real education in matters relating to Uncle Sam's family.

There will be two teams with four apiece . . . and no losers. Everybody is going to get a prize.

During August the Playhouse will go on vacation until the schedule of repairs for the Agricultural Auditorium is finished. Curtains will be up again in September.

Also on the July program will be a Government film about the Norris Dam.

Under the sun there's something new. It's just been discovered by J. J. Fahey, chemist in the Geological Survey laboratory, and it's a mineral composed of double carbonate of sodium and calcium. "Shortite" (it's named in honor of Dr. M. M. Short, a former geologist of the survey, who is now professor of optical mineralogy at the University of Arizona) turned up in sections if ore from the John Hay oil and gas well in Sweetwater County, Wyo.

Mr. Fahey is already on his way to the shortite area, and if everything works out as planned, sections of core 2 inches in diameter and totaling a few hundred feet will come to Washington.

It's the little things in life that count: The next time you buy a lollipop, consider the wooden stick by which you hold it. The people who manufacture those sticks do a gross annual business of more than $8,000,000. This all came out when a Federal grand jury in the Southern District of New York began an investigation recently into the industry. And what an industry!

What we forgot to mention is that Mildred Gross, social director of Local No. 2 of the UFWA, and her committee are planning—way in advance—a Halloween masquerade, a gless club and a smoker and card party.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

M. K. Rawlings

Chapter XXVII

Jody was proud with old Doc's pleasure. They went outside to water the horses and feed them from the scanty stock of hay in the Baxter barn.

Buck said to Jody, "You Baxters is makin' out and that's about all, ain't it?"

Doc said, "Baxter's had to carry the work alone. Time the boy here gets some size to him, they'll prosper."

Buck said, "Size don't seem to mean much to a Baxter."

Mill-wheel mounted his horse and pulled Jody up behind him. Doc mounted and turned away in the opposite direction. Jody waved after him. His heart was light.

He said to Mill-wheel, "You reckon the fawn's yit there? Will you he'p me find him?"

"We'll find him, do he be alive. How you know it's a he?"

"The spots was all in a line. On a doe-fawn, Pa says the spots is ever' which-a-way."

"That's the female of it."

"What you mean?"

"Why, females is on-accountable."

Mill-wheel slapped the horse's flank and they broke into a trot.

"This female business. How come you and your Pa to pitch into us, when we was fightin' Oliver Hutto?"

"You right. Hit were Lem's gal and Oliver's gal. They should of fit it out alone."

"I hate Twink Weatherby."

"I'd not look at her, neither. I got a widder-woman at Fort Gates, knows how to be faithful."

THE MATTER WAS too complicated. Jody gave himself over to thoughts of the fawn. They passed the abandoned clearing.

He said, "Cut to the north, Mill-wheel. Hit were up here Pa got snake-bit and kilt the doe and I seed the fawn."

"What was you and your daddy doin' up this road?"

Jody hesitated.

"We was huntin' our hogs."

"Oh—— Huntin' your hogs, eh? Well, don't fret about them hogs. I jest got a idee they'll be home by sundown."

"Ma and Pa'll be proud to see 'em come in."

"I had no idee you-all was runnin' so tight."

"We ain't runnin' tight. We're all right."

"You' Baxters has got guts; I'll say that."

"You reckon Pa'll not die?"

"Not him. His chitlin's is made o' iron."

Jody said, "Tell me about Fodder-wing. Is he shore enough ailin'? Or didn't Lem want I should see him?"

"He's purely ailin'. He ain't like the rest of us. He ain't like nobody. Seems like he drinks air 'stead o' water and feeds on what the wild creeturs feeds on, 'stead o' bacon."

"He sees things ain't so, don't he? Spaniards and sich."

"He do, but dogged if they ain't times he'll make you think he do see 'em."

"You reckon Lem'll leave me come see him?"

"I'd not risk it yit. I'll git word to you one day when mebbe Lem's gone off, see?"

"I shore crave to see Fodder-wing."

"You'll see him. Now whereabouts you want to go, huntin' that fawn? Hit's gittin' right thick up this trail."

SUDDENLY JODY was unwilling to have Mill-wheel with him. If the fawn was dead, or could not be found, he could not have his disappointment seen. And if the fawn was there, the meeting would be so lovely and so secret that he could not endure to share it.

He said, "Hit's not fur now, but hit's powerful thick for a horse. I kin make it a-foot."

"But I'm daresome to leave you, boy. Suppose you was to git lost, or snake-bit, too?"

"I'll take keer. Hit'll take me likely a long time to find the fawn, if he's wandered. Leave me off right here."

"All right, but you go mighty easy now, pokin' in them palmeeters. This is rattlesnake heaven in these parts. You know north here, and east?"

"There, and there. That fur tall pine makes a bearin'."

"That's right. Now do things go wrong again, you or Buck, one, ride back for me. So long."

"So long, Mill-wheel. I'm shore obliged."

He waved after him. He waited for the sound of the hooves to end, then cut to the right. The scrub was still. Only his own crackling of twigs sounded across the silence. He was eager almost past caution, but he broke a bough and pushed it ahead of him where the growth was thick and the ground invisible. Rattlers got out of the way when they had a chance. Penny had gone farther into the oak thicket than he remembered. He wondered for an instant if he had mistaken his direction. Then a buzzard rose in front of him and flapped into the air. He came into the clearing under the oaks. Buzzards sat in a circle around the carcass of the doe. They turned their heads on their long scrawny necks and hissed at him. He threw his bough at them and they flew into an adjacent tree. Their wings creaked and whistled like rusty pump-handles. The sand showed large cat-prints, he could not tell whether of wild cat or of panther. But the big cats killed fresh, and they had left the doe to the carrion birds. He asked himself whether the sweeter meat of the fawn had scented the air for the curled nostrils.

HE SKIRTED THE CARCASS and parted the grass at the place where he had seen the fawn. It did not seem possible that it was only yesterday. The fawn was not there. He circled the clearing. There was no sound, no sign. The buzzards clacked their wings, impatient to return to their business. He returned to the spot where the fawn had emerged and dropped to all fours, studying the sand for the small hoof-prints. The night's rain had washed away all tracks except those of cat and buzzards. But the cat-sign had not been made in this direction. Under a scrub palmetto he was able to make out a track, pointed and dainty as the mark of a ground-dove. He crawled past the palmetto.

Movement directly in front of him startled him so that he tumbled backward. The fawn lifted its face to his. It turned its head with a wide, wondering motion and shook him through with the stare of its liquid eyes. It was quivering. It made no effort to rise or run. Jody could not trust himself to move.

He whispered, "It's me."

The fawn lifted its nose, scenting him. He reached out one hand and laid it on the soft neck. The touch made him delirious. He moved forward on all fours until he was close beside it. He put his arms around its body. A light convulsion passed over it but it did not stir. He stroked its sides as gently as though the fawn were a china deer and he might break it. Its skin was softer than the white 'coonskin knapsack. It was sleek and clean and had a sweet scent of grass. He rose slowly and lifted the fawn from the ground. It was no heavier than old Julia. Its legs hung limply. They were surprisingly long and he had to hoist the fawn as high as possible under his arm.

He was afraid that it might kick and bleat at sight and smell its mother. He skirted the clearing and pushed his way into the thicket. It was difficult to fight through with his burden. The fawn's legs caught in the bushes and he could not lift his own with freedom. He tried to shield its face from prickling vines. Its head bobbed with his stride. His heart thumped with the mavel of its acceptance of him. He reached the trail and walked as fast as he could until he came to the intersection with the road home. He stopped to rest and set the fawn down on its dangling legs. It wavered on them. It looked at him and bleated.

He said, enchanted, "I'll tote you time I git my breath."

HE REMEMBERED his father's saying tht a fawn would follow that had been first carried. He started away slowly. The fawn stared after him. He came back to it and stroked it and walked away again. It took a few wobbling steps toward him and cried piteously. It was willing to follow him. It belonged to him. It was his own. He was light-headed with his joy. He wanted to fondle it, to run jump with it, to call to it to come to him. He dared not alarm it. He picked it up and carried it in front of him over his two arms. It seemed to him that he walked without effort. He had the strength of a Forrester.

His arms began to ache and he was forced to stop again. When he walked on, the fawn followed him at once. He allowed it to walk a little distance, then picked it up again. The distance home was nothing. He could have walked all day and into the night, carrying it and watching it follow. He was wet with sweat but a light breeze blew through the June morning, cooling him. The sky was as clear as spring water in a blue china cup. He came to the clearing. It was fresh and green after the night's rain. He could see Buck Forrester following old Caesar at the plow in the cornfield. He thought he heard him curse the horse's slowness. He fumbled with the gate latch and was finally obliged to set down the fawn to manage it. It came to him that he would walk into the house, into Penny's bedroom, with the fawn walking behind him. But at the steps, the fawn balked and refused to climb them. He picked it up and went to his father. Penny lay with close deyes.

Jody called, "Pa! Lookit!"

PENNY TURNED his head. Jody stood beside him, the fawn clutched hard against him. It seemed to Penny that the boy's eyes were as bright as the fawn's. His face lightened, seeing them together.

He said, "I'm proud you found him."

"Pa, he wa'n't skeert o' me. He were layin' up right where his mammy had made his bed."

"The does learns 'em that, time they're borned. You kin step on a fawn, times, they lay so still."

"Pa, I toted him, and when I set him down, right off he follored me. Like a dog, Pa."

"Ain't that fine? Let's see him better."

Jody lifted the fawn high. Penny reached out a hand and touched its nose. It bleated and reached hopefully for his fingers.

He said, "Well, leetle feller, I'm sorry I had to take away your mammy."

Langley Will Tilt For the 46th Time In Tournament

Andrew D. Langley, now in his fifty-sixth year, will tilt for the forty-sixth time in the tournament to be held at Oxon Hill, Md., tomorrow. He has been taking part in tournaments since he was 10.

He will ride again in the fifty-fifth annual tournament when riders from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia will participate at Marshall Hall, August 16.

Langley was born in Charles County, Md. At the age of 8 he rode in the country races near his father's farm.

After practicing about the farm for two years he entered the tournaments in and around Maryland. He soon carried many trophies home.

In 1912 he won the Virginia State Championship. In 1913 and 1914 he won the championship for the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. In 1922 he won the Virginia Historical Pagent tilting championship at Richmond.

Langley moved to Arlington County 27 years ago, since when he has been a member of the county police force. He now is oldest in point of service. For four years he was deputy sheriff, and for eight years constable.

Riding tournaments is not the only sport Langley enjoys. During the fall season he spends much of his time hunting with his dogs. He is a baseball fan and a steadfast rooter for the Washington baseball team.

Smith Agrees To Modify NLRB Probe Resolution

By the Associated Press.

Informed legislators said yesterday that Representative Smith (Democrat), Virginia, author of a resolution asking an investigation of the National Labor Relations Board, had agreed to eliminate a provision empowering the investigating committee to recommend legislation.

Members of the House Labor Committee had objected that they were conducting their own inquiry into operation of the Wagner act and would recommend in due course any remedial legislation necessary.

Smith's resolution for an inquiry by a special five-man committee was approved by the House Rules Committee last week. Majority Leader Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, said no action would be taken on it by the House, however, until next week.

Health Service Lists 13,000 Cases Of Smallpox in '38

The danger of an epidemic of smallpox in the United States still exists because of a general apathy toward disease prevention, the Public Health Service said yesterday.

Smallpox could be completely eradicated in the United States, the service declared, by universal vaccination. However, 13,994 cases were reported in the Nation last year.

There is no record of its being found in New Jersey in the past seven years. However, in North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Wyoming and Utah—which have a total population less than that of New Jersey—12,000 cases were reported during the same period.

After responsive rites, the congregation joined in a prayer of dedication, and listened to anthems from the choristers, with Ruth Jenkins, the regular organist, as accompanist.
